House Beats Sales Tax For District, 176-166

Higher Realty Rates, Federal Payment Proposed to Meet $330 Pay Increase

(Roll Call on Page 4)

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House last night killed the District sales-tax bill by a 176-to-166 roll call vote.

Veteran members had no advance warning of the result. The final action reversed a prior roll call which saved the 2 per cent sales tax from being sent back to the District Committee. That vote was 181 to 161 against killing the bill.

Earlier, during nearly six hours of bitter wrangling over the sales tax, the House smacked down by a vote of 110 to 50 the idea of sharply hiking the District personal income tax rates and of making the levy apply to persons here who now do not pay.

Realty Tax Hike Possible

The final vote against the sales tax was announced at 6:10 p. m.

The bill was intended to increase District revenue by some 16 million dollars a year.

By its decisions against sales and income taxes, the House left the District the choice of going into the next year with a sharply reduced budget and no pay raises for its employes, or of raising more revenue by a stiff hike in the property tax rate.

A 50-per-cent increase in real and personal property taxes—a boost from the present $2 to a $3 rate per $100—has been estimated as needed to balance the budget and finance retroactive $330 pay raises for city employes. The Commissioners have authority to hike the property tax rate.

Party Lines Broken

On the final rollcall killing the sales tax, 85 Republicans and 81 Democrats voted for the bill, 50 Republicans teamed up with 125 Democrats and 1 American Laborite to beat it.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), who led the fight for passage, commented angrily: "Let the members who voted to kill the bill find the money. I'm through with it."

Smith said that it would be "so exorbitant" to hike property taxes enough to match the sales tax yield that he doubted it would be done. "I'm going to let it cook awhile," Smith said. He is chairman of the House subcommittee that prepared the sales-tax measure.

His teammate in charge of the bill, Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), came out of the House chamber and saw two leaders of the opposition, Representatives George P. Miller (D., Calif.) and John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) talking to reporters.

After shaking hands with the members, Bates with a grin told reporters "the burden's theirs now to find the revenue or kill the pay raise."

Kennedy, whose demand forced

Postal Clerk, 66, Held for Rifling Mail for Nest Egg

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—Postal Clerk Ralph Rippere, 66, told police today that he had been robbing the mails for eight months because he needed a "nest egg" to retire.

Police arrested the stooped, gray-haired man in a telephone booth in Times Square early today as he sat sorting through stacks of mail. They found more than 250 letters, all addressed to charitable organizations, and $3581 in cash.

Rippere, who has been a postal clerk for 42 years, said he was eligible for retirement six years ago but couldn't afford to retire because of the high cost of living.

CIO to Seek Recommittal Of Rent Bill

A fresh danger to the Administration's rent control program loomed last night when the CIO legislative committee voted to ask that the measure be sent back to committee.

House Democratic leaders, who last week mustered only a 15-vote margin to beat back a Republican attempt to limit extension to 90 days, thus are faced today with possible loss of votes from their own supporters of rent control.

The CIO group asked for recommittal with instructions to bring out a stronger bill. The measure pending before the House for action today would bring rent increases ranging from 25 to 50 per cent, the CIO said, and its passage would wipe out the last two rounds of wage increases. A fresh round of wage demands would inevitably follow, the CIO held.

Meanwhile the hard-pressed Administration forces are beset by still another threat. Gaining momentum all day yesterday was a plan to permit States, counties and municipalities to throw out

Leoffler Loan 'Assures' Him Links Contract

Severine G. Leoffler yesterday was virtually assured a new five-year lease to operate the District's public golf courses because he "advanced" $50,000 to the National Capital Parks Commission for a construction job last summer.

Assistant Secretary of Interior C. Girard Davidson yesterday admitted he made a commitment to Leoffler in December, 1947, and said he is recommending that Leoffler be awarded a new contract.

Davidson explained he made the commitment after Congress refused to appropriate money for a clubhouse at the new Fort Dupont course two years ago, and Leoffler agreed to "advance" the $50,000 to the Parks Commission.

Leoffler's "advance" did not set a precedent in the Interior Department, Davidson said. Private loans were made in connection with work on national parks, Sequoia National Park in particular, the Assistant Secretary said.

Since last November, Davidson continued, it has been the policy not to accept private loans. However, the commitment had been made prior to the old contract's ex-

Gov. Lane Backs 1-Man Rule For State Mental Hospitals

Annapolis, Md., March 14 (AP).—Governor Lane agreed tonight with a General Assembly committee that Maryland mental hospitals should be placed under one-man rule.

He backed legislation to scrap the Board of Mental Hygiene and boards of managers of the five institutions. This could mean "appointment by the Governor of a commission of mental hygiene with full responsibility and authority for the administration of the hospitals."

Lane announced he proposed to carry forward "on a scale never before approached in Maryland" a program which would call for spending $23,907,150 in two years for mental hospitals and $5,731,000 on tuberculosis sanatoriums.

The total of almost 30 million dollars is well beyond the $25,500,000 surplus the State has on hand. However, a bond issue is contemplated to take care of the difference as well as some other things having nothing to do with hospitals.

The Governor submitted bills to the General Assembly to carry out the hospital program he prepared for introduction at a joint session of the House and Senate.

His message concurred in virtually every recommendation of the Legislature's own hospital investigating committee which reported last week.

"The people of Maryland owe a great debt to these men," Lane declared. "They produced one of the most comprehensive reports ever prepared by the General Assembly."

The major objectives of his program were these:

1. A 14.26 per cent average pay raise in the 2055 positions allowed

City Leads Entire Nation In Assaults

(See Table on Page 8)

By Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporter

Washington led every city in the country—including such populous centers as New York and Chicago—in the number of aggravated assaults reported during 1948.

The Uniform Crime Reports for 1948, released yesterday by the FBI, charge Washington with 4049 aggravated assaults, a tremendous advance over the 2390 reported for 1947.

Detroit was second in the number of aggravated assaults for 1948, but its total of 3394 falls far short of the District mark. New York had 2810 aggravated assaults, Chicago had 2343, Los Angeles had 2692, and Philadelphia had only 908.

The smallest number of aggravated assaults in a major city—only 93—was in Milwaukee.

The FBI defines aggravated assault as "assault with intent to kill; assault by shooting, cutting, stabbing, maiming, poisoning, scalding, or by the use of acids." It does not include "simple assault, assault and battery, fighting, etc."

Here is how Washington compares in other crime categories for 1948 with nine other cities with population ranging from 500,000 to 1,000,000:

Second only to Baltimore in the number of murders.
Second only to San Francisco in the number of robberies.
Second only to St. Louis in the number of burglaries.
First in major larcenies.
First in minor larcenies.
Behind Baltimore, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh and San Francisco in the number of auto thefts.

The FBI Uniform Crime Reports show 73 murders here in 1948, eight more than during the previous year. Among comparable cities, Baltimore was first with 110 murders.

The number of robberies here was 1023, an increase over the 959 cases for 1947. In this category, Washington trailed San Francisco which reported 1205 robberies.

Burglaries Drop

There was a drop in the number of burglaries here, from 4593 in 1947 to 4543 in 1948, but even so the figure rated Washington second among 10 comparable cities. St. Louis led in the number of burglaries with 4682.

Washington led in the number of larcenies over $50. There were 1993 such larcenies here in 1948, compared to 1939 the previous year. Runnerup was Boston with 1851 major larcenies.

Washington also led in thefts under $50 with a total of 9294. However, this was a sharp decrease from the previous year's total of 9909. Runnerup with 9162 minor thefts was San Francisco.

The best showing locally was in the category of auto thefts. Auto thefts here dropped to 1438 last year after hitting 1643 in 1947. Auto thefts were highest in San Francisco (2385) and Baltimore (2358). St. Louis, Boston and Pittsburgh also reported more auto thefts than Washington.

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett said there was no doubt that the crime rate had risen last year in the District, but said this is still part of an anticipated increase in crime that follows any war.

"Our new system of making and keeping records of crime, so that every crime that is reported in Washington is recorded, may account for Washington's high spot on the FBI's list," Barrett said.

The FBI, he said, has pointed to Washington as a city having one of the best and most thorough systems of recording reports in the country. The new system was put Gunfire Reported In Yugoslavia At Trieste Border

Trieste (Tuesday), March 15 (U.P.).—Heavy explosions were heard from the Yugoslav side of the border late last night.

There was no immediate explanation of the sounds and there was no official statement.

Trieste police said they had unconfirmed reports that what sounded like gunfire was audible. They had heard of no Yugoslav army maneuvers which might explain the explosions.

Allied sources said they believed 88-mm. (3½ inch) guns might be firing about 10 miles from Muggia.

There were similar unconfirmed reports of apparent artillery fire around Opicina, in the Caruso Mountains on the Yugoslav border. Another report said that apparent machinegun firing was heard near Lipizza northeast of this free territory.

Boy Kept in Room 9 Years To Hide Mother's Sin Escapes

Special to the Washington Post

Boston, March 14.—A new and wonderful life began today for a 14-year-old Roxbury boy whose mother admitted keeping him locked in an unlighted, 6-by-9-foot room for nine years because he was illegitimate and she was ashamed to admit his existence.

Gerald Sullivan, whose only excursions from his room in a dreary, third-floor flat, had been a few quick trips to the street, arranged by a stepbrother, today saw his first church. He saw television. His hair, which had grown to shoulder-length, was cut. People spoke kindly to him and he reacted like a beaten puppy who has found a friend.

And in his temporary home in Jamaica Plain, his room was large and airy. It had electric lights and a bedside radio. It was warm and pleasant, with cheerful curtains on the windows. And he didn't have to go there until bedtime.

His mother, Mrs. Anna F. Sullivan, 45, pleaded guilty today in Roxbury District Court to a charge of neglecting a minor. She was granted a continuance until Tuesday and lodged in Charles Street jail.

Her cell was exactly the same size as the room in which she imprisoned her unwanted son—but it had electricity, running water, other plumbing, and a better view than the blank wall at which Gerald stared through a window, year after year.

Her long-kept secret came spectacularly to light when she and the rest of her children—John, 20, a Marine, who occasionally sneaked his half-brother out into the sun and air when she was gone; Anna, and James, had left the house. She had inadvertently left the door of his room unlocked.

Gerald donned two ragged dresses owned by his young half-sister and then hurried, barefoot, into the street. Police saw him wandering through an alley near the house and stopped him.

"Come here, little girl," said Officer John A. Sullivan.

"I'm not a girl," said Gerald; "I'm a boy. And you're sailors."

They took him to the Roxbury Crossing Station and there the story came out.

Gerald was friendly, of normal intelligence and eager to talk with his new friends. But when the possibility of his returning home was mentioned, he cried.

While this was happening, Mrs. Sullivan, whose neighborhood reputation was one of "always doing good things," had been attending a play at Timilty School—a benefit for St. Francis De Sales Church. When she returned home, the police were waiting. At the station, Gerald wanted to run when his mother was brought in.

"I hate her," he said. "She's mean to me."

Gerald knew only vaguely of God, had never seen a movie, cannot read or write—but occasionally was given crayons and a coloring book. He had never tasted ice cream, and never heard a fairy tale. He knew airplanes because a small patch of sky was visible outside his nailed-down window and they occasionally crossed his view.

When someone asked if he knew who God was, the boy replied: "God is the man who gave us the whole world."

For amusement, he sat with his back against the locked door

Iceland Joins Security Pact Talks Here

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Iceland's Foreign Minister yesterday joined the Foreign Minister of Denmark for exploratory talks here on the North Atlantic Security Pact, while Portugal made similar inquiries at Lisbon.

This raised to an even dozen the nations which are either joining in formal negotiations on the two-continent defense alliance, or engaging in conferences which it is believed will lead to their participation.

A spokesman for the Portuguese Embassy here last night confirmed a report that discussions about the pact are being held in Lisbon, but declined to make any further comment on the talks under way there with the American Embassy.

Want to Know Roles

A major issue in the conversations with Portugal, Denmark and Iceland is the role which they or their possessions will play as defense bases under the security alliance.

During World War II, the United State maintained bases on Greenland—owned by Denmark—on Iceland, and on the Portuguese-owned, mid-Atlantic Azores Islands.

At present, there are United States — maintained bases on Greenland—two airfields and weather observation stations.

Bjarni Benediktsson, Foreign Minister of the strategic island republic of Iceland, held a 35-minute conference yesterday with Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Then he talked for two hours with John D. Hickerson, head of the department's Office of European Affairs, and Charles E. Bohlen, the department's expert on Russian affairs.

Asked later by reporters if he was satisfied that Iceland would not be called upon to provide bases during peacetime, he said:

"Yes, that is quite clear."

He said, "We have had a very interesting talk, and I expect to see the Secretary again."

Benediktsson had emphasized upon his arrival in New York that Iceland definitely will not permit bases to be established on her soil during peacetime.

The whole question of bases, however, has an entirely different concept in the pending treaty if a pact member is invaded or threatened with attack. In that event, it is believed the pact proposes that bases will be available to all

Boyd Is Nearer In as Miners Go Out in Nomination Protest

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Senate committee yesterday approved the President's nomination of Dr. James Boyd to head the United States Bureau of Mines.

Indorsement of the nomination came as 471,000 coal miners began a two-weeks' walkout in protest against the President's appointment.

By a vote of 10 to 1, the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs reported favorably on the naming of the 44-year-old former dean of the Colorado School of Mines.

A full Senate vote on the issue—blocked for the past two years by the heated protests of Lewis and his United Mine Workers—is expected to confirm Dr. Boyd, who has been serving virtually without pay.

On the face of it, the 10-1 vote to uphold Mr. Truman's appointment appears to be a resounding slap of rebuke against John L.'s spectacular method of protest—a 14-day "memorial period" walkout.

Actually, however, Harry S. Truman took this round from John L. Lewis not by a knockout but by a single point.

Only a few minutes before the committee okayed Dr. Boyd 10-1, the same committee voted 6-5 to defeat a move to postpone indefi-

Post as Envoy Offered Him, Wiretap Case Figure Says

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—Crusading multimillionaire Clendenin J. Ryan asserted today he had been offered the ambassadorship to France to call off his fight to oust New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer and destroy the alleged power-behind-the-throne influence of former convict Frank Costello.

That sensational, and quickly denied, charge by the "clean government" champion topped a day of whirlwind developments in the city's melodramatic wiretapping scandal which also saw:

1. Surrender of Kenneth Ryan, the former detective who jumped from a washroom window after allegedly confessing eavesdropping on the telephone conversations of high officials. Within hours, Ryan was charged with wiretapping and with breaking away from police.

2. An indignant denial by Costello that he was the real boss of New York and the head of a national slot machine racket. Costello said he was just a former bootlegger gone straight and that he didn't have enough influence to fix a traffic ticket.

3. Clendenin Ryan said he was willing to tell the grand jury every thing he knows. However, his attorney, John G. Broady, would not waive his immunity, asserting he was in the middle of his investigation for Ryan and would not reveal confidential sources of information.

The 43-year-old millionaire, who, O'Dwyer has intimated, is the financial backer of the wiretapping, went before the grand jury himself after seeking unsuccessfully to confront the mayor in his office.

He told reporters he had been offered the "bribe" of the French ambassadorship by a public rela-

Lucas Plans Final Effort Today for Compromise

Ellender Talks 12 Hours, 20 Mins.; Adjournment Effort By Leader Fails

BULLETIN

The Senate recessed at 2:25 a. m. today after leaders reached an agreement to reopen compromise talks later this morning on the rules change proposal that has kept the Senate tied up in a filibuster for 15 days.

Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) told the Senate that if it became obvious later today that no settlement could be reached he would move to adjourn the Senate and proceed to other legislation.

Earlier, at 12:45 a. m., Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) had yielded the floor after having talked for 12 hours and 20 minutes.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Administration early today attempted to surrender to the Senate's 15-day filibuster, but a Southern Democratic-Republican coalition wanted terms, and threatened to take over.

All compromise efforts collapsed, and Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) sought to salvage rent control and other Truman measures by dropping the party-splitting rules fight.

May Be Dropped for Session

He proposed immediate adjournment of the Senate, wiping the filibuster-provoking rules change off the slate. He set no date for resuming the rules fight, indicating it may be dropped for the session.

There was no certainty, however, that either the Southern or Republican leaders would agree to adjourn. Some of the Dixie leaders said they wanted an ironclad promise from Lucas that civil rights would be abandaned for the session before calling off their end of the fight. Some Republicans were again asking around-the-clock sessions to break the filibuster.

As the hours passed it became more and more doubtful that Lucas had the votes to adjourn. Some Senators speculated that the Administration may have already lost control of the situation to a Southern Democratic-Republican coalition.

Shooting for Record

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) sent a note to Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), who held the floor all day and into the night shooting for the Senate filibuster time record.

The note suggested that Ellender not yield to Lucas for an adjournment resolution, but only for a recess that would keep the filibuster in progress, one informant said.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.) asked Ellender if he had seen the "bulletin" that the majority leader plans to adjourn the Senate.

"How could I see it?" asked Ellender.

Lodge then asked Ellender if he didn't think it would be a great "shock to persons all over the country" who had expected the Senate to do something about the rules change.

Ellender said he didn't know anything about the program.

"I have been talking now for 10 hours, and I can talk for 10 hours more," said the Louisiana Democrat.

Collapse of the rules drive, and with it possibly the stalemating filibuster, came after a three-day

Senators Bar Use Of Aid as Pressure

By The Associated Press

Aid ganted foreign countries under the Marshall Plan won't be used to pressure them into obeying orders of the United Nations Security Council, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided yesterday.

It rejected as "improper" a proposal to deprive any nation of aid which fails to heed the U. N. Council.

The committee took that action as it approved a $5,580,000,000 authorization to keep the Economic Cooperation Administration going until July 1, 1950.

Dutch military action in Indonesia had prompted introduction by some Senators of a relief curtailment amendment.

The committee noted that Paul Hoffman, the ECA administrator, already has the power to cut off aid to any country whenever he deems it necessary and commented:

"The committee felt that it would be improper to use ECA, an agency of one member of the United Nations, to enforce decisions of the Council by means of sanctions, inasmuch as the position of sanctions is thoroughly covered in the charter of the United Nations."

10 Million Dollars for Indonesia

The ECA has 10 million dollars allocated for Indonesia, once peace is achieved there.

During the day Congress received from President Truman a report that U. S. aid to foreign countries totaled $17,200,000,000 in three years from mid-1945 to mid-1948. This was largely ad before the advent of the Marshall Plan which was created only last spring.

Foreign countries supplemented the American aid with $6,300,000,000 in gold and other dollar resources they owned, said the report. It was submitted to the President for Congress by the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems. The council is headed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and includes other Government officials.

The Foreign Relations Committee handed its report to the Senate a few hours before ECA sent Congress an appraisal of recovery efforts in the 16 European nations participating in the Marshall Plan.

ECA Progress Good

ECA said progress generally has been good, and future prospects are even better. Cautious optimism was the keynote of the 14-volume, 859-page printed "Country Studies." In the report, ECA disclosed:

1. It may have to boost beyond the proposed $940,000,000 Great Britain's second-year aid allotment. This came in the face of optimistic reports from some British officials.

2. It will start sending help on July 1 to Portugal, which is not now getting any aid. Portugal asked for $100,600,000 but will get perhaps 10 million dollars.

3. It considers western Germany a "going concern" but believes industrial production goals must be upped. ECA also urged merger of the French zone with the British-American zone as soon as possbile.

4. It hopes for a settlement of civil strife in Indonesia because the Netherlands Indies can be a "direct contribution to European recovery." The agency earmarked 10 million dollars for Indonesia, contingent on peace.

At Key West

Truman Aide Bars Photos From Air

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., March 14.—Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross tonight explained that what White House photographers called "censorship" was merely an effort to protect President Truman's "right of privacy."

Earlier several movie and still photographers had made pictures from a Navy blimp of Mr. Truman and Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson sunning themselves on the President's private beach. Then their blimp had been prevented from landing for 45 minutes.

When they finally reached the ground, Ross was there with James Rowley, chief of the White House Secret Service detail. According to photographers, Ross and Rowley demanded their exposed film and Ross said "None of them will ever see publication."

Photographers said they then exposed their film to light rather than turn them over to Ross, although the movie men did give him their film magazines. Alfonso Muto of International News Photos told Ross at tonight's conference: "You said none of the pictures would see publication. Rather than give you the pleasure of censoring them, we destroyed them."

Flight Arranged by Navy

Most of the photographers said Ross had offered to have their negatives developed by the Navy. They declined, they said, because they were apprehensive of results under those circumstances.

On their side the photographers had the fact that their flight had been arranged by the Navy public relations officer here under direct instructions from the Chief of Naval Operations in Washington. The blimp flight had been arranged with a maximum of publicity and a score of reporters at the morning conference had heard the arrangements.

The naval public relations officer, taken somewhat aback by the unexpected repercussions of what he had thought was a routine mission, said:

"I knew they were going to take pictures in the area where the 'Little White House' is located."

Photographers Had Permission

A photographer said that before they left the ground they were informed that they might photograph any part of Key West or the various naval stations except Boca Chica air station. All photographers who made the flight said Mr. Truman waved at them from the beach and Ross said he did the same when he thought they were Navy photographers. The blimp was hovering less than 200 feet above the beach.

"We were in an area which had been restricted and I went to a telephone and gave notice to the field that the blimp should be kept up until I could get there.

"Had I been informed that the flight was to be made I could have worked out some mutually satisfactory arrangement."

8 Europeans Get Prison Terms at Munich Spy Trial

Munich, Germany, March 14 (AP).—The third in a series of spy trials in the United States zone ended today with eight Europeans sentenced to prison terms ranging from 1 to 18 years.

Altogether, 14 persons have been convicted and sentenced. Two more trials are on tap.

In the trial that ended today, a United States military commission convicted five men and three women of gathering American military information for a foreign power. All eight admitted having been employed by the Czechoslovak Intellegence Service, but all pleaded extenuating circumstances. Their excuses were that they were either coerced or tricked into working for the Czech intelligence.

Heaviest penalties were imposed on Robert Kruse and Adolf Frank. Both got 18 years. The three women defendants received these sentences:

Gertie Doerre, 25, a Sudeten German, 12 years; Edith Dittrich, 25, a Czech, 9 years; Marie Hablik, 37, a Sudeton German, 8 years.

Berlin Blockade Raised to Let . . . 6 Bears Through

Hamburg, Germany, March 14 (AP).—The East-West blockade was temporarily lifted today to allow six bears to enter the British zone.

Even bears have to have "papers" in this country. Police on both sides of the border at Vorsfelde solemnly checked Russian and English permits allowing the bears to travel. Rubber stamps and printed words in Russian, German and English are a must for everyone crossing this border.

The bears were out of their train to pass through the pedestrians' barrier for the benefit of photographers.

One rode a bicycle, another had his scooter. The other four walked. Two bored bears snatched the chance to climb a tree. After they were recaptured, the bear troupe boarded the train again to resume the journey to a west German circus.

Spy Suspect Terms Case 'A Comedy'

New York, March 14 (AP).—A Soviet engineer today denounced his prosecution on an espionage charge as "a comedy."

"The provocative methods against me, a Soviet diplomat, show me this is a comedy," Valentin A. Gubitchev, 32, told Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind.

"It makes me wonder whether there is any use in bringing into this comedy one more person by having a defense counsel."

The judge replied there was no comedy as far as the court was concerned and that Gubitchev would be making a mistake to treat the case with "levity."

The Russian, a United Nations aide, made his statement through an interpreter at his arraignment on an indictment charging that he and Miss Judith Coplon, 27, Brooklyn-born analyst for the Department of Justice, conspired to pass United States defense and intelligence secrets to a foreign power. Miss Coplon pleaded innocent and was released on $20,000 bail.

Gubitchev told the court he had not been arrested, and repeated his claim of diplomatic immunity. He claimed the U. S. Government had recognized his diplomatic status by issuing him a diplomatic visa.

The engineer said he was unable to make up his mind whether he would accept the services of Fowler Hamilton, court-assigned counsel. Judge Rifkind gave him an adjournment until Tuesday morning to decide.

"I realize," Judge Rifkind told Gubitchev, "that you are in a strange land and maybe the habits, customs and traditions which make up our freedom are unknown to you."

The court told the engineer he had been arrested and "you are now in custody."

When the court again asked Gubitchev whether he wanted Hamilton's services, the Russian said "I would like to resort to my right not to answer that."

Judge Rifkind leaned forward and said slowly:

"Mr. Gubitchev, this is not a game we are playing. You are over 21. I am not asking any questions as to guilt or innocence of what you are accused."

As the debate between the court and the prisoner continued, Lev Tolokonnikov, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy, listened closely while his secretary took notes.

Gubitchev, suspended from his United Nations assignment, is being held in $100,000 bail.

Envoy From Iran Tells Acheson of Russian Pressure

Iranian Ambassador Hussien Ala called on Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday, and later told reporters that increasing Russian pressure on Iran is causing his government "great anxiety."

In recent weeks, through an intensive propaganda drive by the Soviet press and radio, Ala said, Russia has charged that Iran is being converted into a United States military base with Iran engaging in "unfriendly acts."

There was no comment by the State Department on Ala's visit.

It is believed in Government circles that increase of the Russian propaganda barrage is tied in with recent shipments of surplus United States' military equipment to Iran.

Red Army Games To Include 50,000 German Police

Berlin, March 14 (U.P.).—The British licensed newspaper Telegraf reported today that 50,000 Soviet zone policemen will participate in the Red Army's spring maneuvers and that 5000 east zone policemen were being mobolized for service as "volunteers" in the rebel Greek army.

The Telegraf said the Soviet zone ministry of Interior insisted the German policemen will only "direct traffic" in the maneuver area but that actually "the policemen constitute a military unit which will actively participate."

FBI Discloses Costes Helped Capture Spy

By the United Press

Justice Department records show that in 1945 Dieudonne Costes helped the FBI agents capture Paul Jean Marie Cavaillez, an espionage agent for the Germans, in Washington and New York.

"Upon reaching the United States Cavaillez teamed up with Costes, unaware that he latter was working under FBI supervision," the department said. From then until his arrest Cavaillez, worked closely with Costes, who in turn, worked with the FBI.

Fooled Nazis, Costes Says in His Defense

Paris, March 14 (AP).—Dieudonne Costes (Coste in America), pioneer Transatlantic airman, testified today he "fooled" the Germans and helped the Allies while he was connected with both the German and American espionage services in World II.

He is being tried by a French military court on a charge of intelligence with the enemy.

"I never had any intention of betraying my country," he said.

In 1930 Costes and Maurice Bellonte made the first East-West flight over the North Atlantic.

In 1943, Costes told the court, he came to New York as a trusted agent of the German army's counter intelligence service. He said that before he left Europe he had gone to work for the United States.

Asked why the Germans called him one of their "best-paid" and most valuable agents, Costes replied:

"I fooled the Germans and I think they wanted to take revenge on me."

Coates said the Germans fitted him out with ink for secret writing, a list of German agents in Spain and Portugal, a cigarette lighter holding microfilms of a secret code and photographs of a radio operator to be sent to meet him later in the United States.

Costes said he turned all these over to America and gave the British a full account of the airfields in the Paris area.

He said he and FBI Agents drew up reports on American aviation which he sent to the Germans. "Some of the information was even true," he smiled.

Forrestal Asks Expansion of B-36 Force

By Charles Corddry
United Press Reporter

The Budget Bureau is considering a Defense Department recommendation for expansion of the Air Force's fleet of B-36 "intercontinental" superbombers, it was revealed last night.

The proposal is based in part on conclusions from recent tests, all conducted under combat conditions, that the mammoth aircraft is virtually immune from interception and has the range to attack any Russian target from North American bases.

The B-36 has a demonstrated radius of operation of more than 4000 miles.

Military planners have marked off some 70 strategic targets in Russia as possible objectives in the event of a war. The Air Force has given assurances that they are within the range of bases in Alaska or Labrador.

Forwarded to the Budget Bureau by Defense Secretary James Forrestal, the Air Force request involves expenditure of 300 million dollars made available from cancelled contracts.

It was reported that 39 new B-36s would be ordered and that B-36s and B-50 Superforts ordered under prior contracts would be modernized. The new B-36s would be equipped with four jet engines to augment the six piston engines which power present types.

Defense officials refused to discuss the 70 Russian targets known to have been included within the range of North American-based superbombers.

By coincidence or not, investigation showed yesterday that there are 70 Russian cities, according to the Rand-McNally world atlas, which have a population of 100,000 or more.

Russians Come Up With Own Don Ameche

London, March 14 (AP).—The name of the man who really invented the telephone, according to the Soviet News Agency Tass, is Pavel Schilling, not Alexander Graham Bell.

Tass said Schilling contrived his telephone in Russia in 1832, 44 years before Bell put his together in the United States. Schilling also was credited with inventing the first submarine cable and with devising the first system for stringing telegraph wires on poles.

Board Denies Story of VA Medical Rift

The medical advisory board to Veterans' Administration last night issued a statement expressing "full confidence" in present medical operations of VA.

The special statement was made expressly to counteract "recent criticism directed against the medical care program of the Veterans' Administration in certain publications."

It followed a full day of investigation by the 19-member board of published reports of a widening rift between Carl R. Gray, jr., Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, and Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, chief medical director for VA. The articles have appeared daily since March 9 in the New York (Evening) Post.

During yesterday's board meeting, both Gray and Dr. Magnuson, and their immediate subordinates, were called before the group of the Nation's leading members of the medical profession to testify to the true state of affairs. The board found, it said under signatures of its chairman and vice chairman:

"Contrary to implications in some press reports, the council finds that there is complete agreement in the basic policies between the Administrator and the Chief Medical Director, who are responsible for medical care.

"General Gray, Dr. Magnuson, and all others have only one objective in view; that is, to give the veteran the very best medical care.

"The council also finds that no major change in policy has taken place or is contemplated since this program was first initiated and developed by General Bradley and General Hawley three years ago, with the exception of a change in branch offices, which was done for increased efficiency of operation."

Signing the statement were the board chairman, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., member of the board of governors of the Mayo Clinic, and Dr. Roy R. Kracke, of Birmingham, Ala., dean and professor of medicine at the University of Alabama School of Medicine, vice chairman.

30 Alaskans Flying To Oppose Gruening

An opponent to the confirmation of Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska for another four-year term said yesterday a special airplane will bring 30 Alaskans here to testify against him.

Axis Sally Case Hearing Slated

Arguments on a motion for a new trial for Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, convicted of treason by a District Court jury last week, are slated to be heard Friday, it was announced yesterday.

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin has indicated he will base his request for a new trial on grounds that Federal Judge Edward M. Curran's conduct of the trial was prejudicial to Miss Gillars, and that the jurist erred in rulings on evidence.

Sentencing has been deferred pending action on the motion.

5 Others Relieved In Soviet Shakeup

Reds Fight Pact

Italy Guards U. S., British Consulates

Rome, Italy, March 14 (U.P.)—Police guards were strengthened around United States and British consulates in Italy tonight as tension grew over the North Atlantic Security Pact.

The Communist-controlled National Labor Confederation talked of calling a limited general strike in protest against the alliance, which Italy has been invited to join.

In Rome, Milan, Turin and Bologna, police and carabinieri were alerted for extra duty.

15 Hurt in Naples As Leftists Riot

Rome, March 14 (AP).—Fifteen persons were injured today in rioting led by leftists in Naples.

Heated debate on the proposed North Atlantic Pact continued in the Chamber of Deputies as the government pressed for approval of its plan to join.

Moscow, March 14 (U.P.)—Five more men, including Nikolai A. Voznesensky, vice premier and chairman of the state planning commission, have been relieved of duties in Russia's shakeup in its high leadership, it was announced today.

Voznesensky, 45, is the youngest member of the 13-man political bureau of the Communist Party which rules this country. He was replaced as vice premier and state planning commission chairman by Maxim Z. Saburov, but remains on the Politburo.

Others relieved of their posts and their successors are:

Ivan Golyakov, president of the Supreme Court, succeeded by Anatoli Golin.

Nikifor Natalevich, vice president of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet or parliament, for White Russia, succeeded by Vassily Kozlov.

Georgi Sturua, vice president of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet for Georgia, succeeded by Vassily Gogua.

Peter Popkov, member of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, succeeded by Vassily Andrianov.

The new changes were divulged when the Supreme Soviet ratified them at its final session today.

[At the same time the presidium announced formation of a new ministry—the ministry for construction machinery and industry enterprises, according to the Associated Press. It is headed by Nikolai A. Dygaya. This ministry is a combination of the former ministry of construction, military and naval enterprises and the machinery industries construction administration. Dygaya headed the former ministry.]

The Supreme Soviet also unanimously approved Russia's record budget, including 79,079,000,000 rubles ($15,815,000,000) for national defense. Various actions of the government taken since the last annual Supreme Soviet meeting also were ratified.

As the supreme Soviet held its final session it was announced that Andrei Y. Vishinsky would hold his first reception as foreign minister Tuesday in honor of Kim Ir Sen, Premier of the Russian-sponsored North Korean regime. Kim Ir Sen has been here, with a delegation which includes seven of his cabinet ministers, since March 3.

Heads of diplomatic missions and foreign correspondents were invited, with the exception of the envoys of the United States and other Western countries, which recognize the Korean government as set up in the American occupation zone.

It was disclosed that the relief of Voznesensky from two of the three posts dated back to March 5, the day after the series of changes started with the relief of Viacheslav M. Molotov from his foreign ministry portfolio.

No reason was given for the relief of Voznesensky, Supreme Court President Golyakov, or Vice President of the Supreme Soviet Sturua.

Similarly, no reason was given for the relief of Molotov and Foreign Trade Minister A. I. Mikoyan, who like Voznesensky are members of the Politburo.

In the instances of the others mentioned today, Natalevich was releived as vice president of the Supreme Soviet because "he no longer works in White Russia."

Popkov was relieved as a member of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet because he no longer works in Leningrad. However, Popkov was mentioned as still being secretary of the Leningrad committee of the Communist Party, a post of the highest importance, and presumably he retains that job.

In approving the newly announced replacement, the parliament also approved those such as the appointment of Vishinsky to succeed Molotov as Foreign Minister.

The burget in its final form calls for expenditure of 415,355,000,000 rubles or $83,071,000,000 and revenues totaling 446,043,000,000 rubles or $6,137,600,000.

Five Nations Discuss Arms Requirements

London, March 14 (NYHT). The five western European union powers of the Brussels Treaty discussed today their military needs and obligations under the forthcoming North Atlantic Pact.

The two-day conference of Foreign, Defense and Finance Ministers of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg opened in the usual atmosphere of secrecy, which will be broken with a communique when they finish their talks Tuesday.

The conference was understood to be concerned primarily with the problem of integrating the joint defense plans already in operation by the five Brussels pact nations with the defense organization to be built up under the North Atlantic Pact when the five European countries joined the United States and Canada.

The delegations which attended the conference were headed by the Foreign Ministers of the five countries, Ernest Bevin of Britain, Robert Schuman of France, Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, Dr. Joseph Bech of Luxembourg and Dr. D. U. Stikker of the Netherlands. Prime Minister Pierre du Pong of Luxembourg also attended because he holds the portfolio of Minister of Defense in his government.

In addition to discussing the military implications of the North Atlantic Pact, it was understood that the five governments would give their formal approval to the final draft of the pact at this meeting.

The fact that economic implications of the North Atlantic Pact also were under review was seen in the presence at the talks of such financial experts as Sir Stafford Cripps, British chancellor of the exchequer.

While the talks were on, Brig. Gen. Marshall S. Carter, new special assistant to Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, took up his new post.

Australian Advocates Pacific Defense Pact

Canberra, Australia, March 14 (AP).—Australia's Defense Minister said today he would like to see a Pacific defense pact set up along the lines of the projected North Atlantic alliance.

The official, John J. Dedman, made the statement as representatives of Britain, New Zealand and Australia opened defense talks here.

Iceland Asks Pact Terms

members of the defense alliance for their collective security.

Denmark's Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen, who arrived here Friday, has already discussed with State Department officials the problem of bases on Greenland, and their relation to the pact.

Discuss Military Aid

Rasmussen yesterday had morning and afternoon conferences with Assistant Secretary of State Ernest Gross to discuss what military aid Denmark can expect to receive to support her position in the defense alliance.

Gross heads a staff which is drafting military aid legislation to put "teeth" into the pact and also extend aid to other countries whose security is regarded as vital to the United States.

"The American officials listened very attentively and sympathetically to what we explained," Rasmussen told reporters later. "I gave general information on the Danish military requirements," he said, "and I explained Denmark's position as we see it."

The Unted States, Great Britain, Canada, France, Norway, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, which have been participating in the actual treaty negotiations, have announced that the text of the pact will be released to the public Friday. It will be signed here in early April, and then submitted to each country for ratification.

Italy Expected to Join

In addition to Denmark, Iceland and Portugal, Italy is expected to join the treaty, despite the fact that the Italian government's announcement of its intention to join the negotiations is meeting strong opposition from Italian Communists.

Meanwhile, Economic Cooperation Administrator Hoffman yesterday told a delegation of 12 visting Swedish labor leaders that:

"There is only one aggressor nation" in the world today, "and that is Russia . . . If we unite and stay united," he said, "there will be no attack."

Hoffman made no mention of the pact in his talk. Sweden, the only Scandinavian nation not participating in the treaty talks, decided after an unsuccessful attempt at a Scandinavian Defense Alliance, to try to maintain the same neutrality she held in World War II.

Allies Demand Reds Take Stand On Austrian Pact

London, March 14 (U.P.)—British, French and American delegates demanded today at the 133d session on the Austrian peace treaty that Russia say "yes" or "no" to Yugoslavia's territorial and reparations demands on Austria.

Soviet Delegate Georgi Zarubin, who supports Yugoslavia's claims "in principle," suggested that the conference temporarily pass over the disputed question.

United States Delegate Samuel Reber, backed by the French and British delegates, firmly opposed the Soviet proposal. Reber said the United States could not afford to bargain with the political and economic stability of Austria.

Von Hindenburg's Son An 'Odd Job Man'

Hamburg, Germany, March 14 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Oskar von Hindenburg, son of the former German president, was described before a denazification court today as an "odd job man" who ekes out a living running errands.

Hindenburg is being tried at his own request so that his $600 bank account can be freed. As an alleged Nazi sympathizer, his funds are frozen. The charges allege that Hindenburg, now 66, helped Adolf Hitler become his father's successor as head of the German state.

Mrs. Ybarbo's Term Reduced In GI Killing

Wiesbaden, Germany, March 14 (U.P.)—A United States military court today reduced to five years the 20-year prison term to which Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo, 23, Malden, Mass., was sentenced last December for the fatal shooting of her husband, Sergt. John Ybarbo, after a GI-fraulein party in her home.

Mrs. Ybarbo was tried under both German and military government law. The court found she was not subject to military government law, and said all American civilians in Germany were subject to German law. German law provides a maximum sentence of five years for her offense.

In lightenin_ the sentence, the court decided the shooting of Ybarbo, from Goliad, Tex., was the result of a "long and intolerable course of cruelty and ill-treatment by the soldier-husband."

Indonesians To Fight On, U. N. Warned

Lake Success, March 14 (AP).—A representative of the Indonesian Republic told the U. N. today the Dutch-Indonesian conflict will be settled on battlefields unless quick diplomatic action is taken.

L. N. Palar, Indonesian delegate, said he was giving "solemn warning" that republican guerillas will not stand idly by while the Dutch continue policies of reprisals against republic leaders.

The council adjourned until 3 p. m. (E.S.T.) Wednesday without taking any action.

Dutch Fight Guerillas 30 Miles From Batavia

Batavia, Java, March 14 (U.P.) Dutch and Indonesian troops were reported fighting near Buitenzorg, only 30 miles south of here, today, as the Indonesians began their largest guerilla operations in the Batavia area in more than a year.

Dutch headquarters announced 500 heavily armed republicans attacked Soekaboemi, 55 miles south of Batavia, during the night. The Indonesians were reported thrown back.

The Dutch said that in heavy fighting in eastern central and western Java 370 Indonesians were killed in the last week.

Burma Offers Karen Rebels State of Own

Rangoon, Burma, March 14. (AP). The hard-pressed Burmese government offered today to give the rebellious Karen tribesmen an autonomous state of their own within the Burma union.

The decision was announced as reports reached Rangoon that the Karens had captured all of Mandalay in a three-day battle with government troops.

Mandalay, a city sacred to some sects, is 350 miles north of Rangoon, on the Irrawaddy River. It has a population of 200,000 and is the second largest city in Burma.

According to the newspaper, Voice of the Peacock, the Karens launched an attack on Sagaing on the other side of the Irrawaddy after seizing all of Mandalay.

The government conceded yesterday that part of Mandalay was in the hands of the rebels, and an official statement today confirmed that Karens there were shelling Sagaing.

Wholesale surrenders by Karens occurred in the vicinity of Henzada, 75 miles northwest of Rangoon, the government claimed. It said units which had not surrendered were retreating.

The government announced an amnesty for Karens in Insein, a suburb of Rangoon, provided the rebels lay down their arms by Thursday. Insurgents in other parts of Burma were called on to surrender by March 31 on similar terms.

Ex-Red Leader Refused Release on Bail Request

Toronto, March 14 (U.P.)—Sam Carr, former Communist Party organizer charged with uttering a false passport for an international spy, today was refused a request for release on bail.

Carr's attorney said his client is ill.

The Ontario Supreme Court said that bail was refused because there were too many opportunities for Carr's escape.

Sun Indicted In Deal Aiding Girl Friend

Nanking, China, March 14 (U.P.). A Control Yuan committee has voted eight to seven to impeach outgoing Premier Sun Fo for allegedly reimbursing a Shanghai girl friend with government funds for dyestuffs puppet property a reliable source said today.

The Control Yuan is one of five divisions of the Chinese government an has the constitutional powers of audit and impeachment though in the past strong opposition within the government has not permitted it to exercise these powers.

Sun previously came under attack by legislative members who charged he had paid as much as $650,000 (U. S.) to his friend, Miss Lan Yi of Shanghai, out of the central trust of China for her properties auctioned by the government as puppet property.

Five Control Yuan members who investigated the case have submitted their report to the control Yuan which is expected to meet shortly to study the impeachment resolution. The members were Hsiung Tsai-wei, Chin Yue-huang, Ni Pi, Ho Chi-chou and Yu Pei-huo.

The report has been kept secret but a reliable source said it contained these details:

Eighty-four drums of dyes belonging to Miss Lan Yi auctioned as puppet property. The government sold the dyes after it discovered she had been friendly with one of China's top puppets under the Japanese, Chen Kung-po.

Sun Fo allegedly wrote letters to T. V. Soong, Chang Chun and Wong Wen-hao when those three were premiers, asking them to return the dyes to Miss Lan. His requests were rejected. The report was said to contain photostatic copies of his letters.

Reds Believed Ready for Peace

When Sun Fo himself became premier he ordered the property returned. Since it already had been auctioned he ordered the Central Trust of China to pay compensation in U. S. dollars according to the then prevailing price of dyes—which bring enormous prices on the China market.

The new Premier, Ho Ying-chin, meanwhile was expected today from Shanghai, where he conferred at length with W. W. Yen, chairman of an unofficial peace mission to communist-occupied Peiping, to get firsthand information on the communists.

Ho was said to have expressed the opinion that he was convinced the Communists were ready for peace. He also was said to be anxious for American aid to China but he made it plain he wanted the "people" and not the government to benefit.

Israelis Take Positions Along Border

Rhodes, March 14 (U.P.)—An Israeli mechanized force 3000-strong has taken up positions along the Palestine - Trans-Jordan frontier north of British-defended Aqaba, a United Nations field report said today.

The dispatch arrived shortly after acting United Nations mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunche filed a resume of the tense situation in the Gulf of Aqaba area to the Security Council. Bunche said that:

1. Jewish troops occupied Umm Rashrash, a bare two miles from the British force at Aqaba, last Wednesday. Aqaba is Trans-Jordan's Red Sea outlet.

Swinging North

2. Since Wednesday Jewish forces have been sighted swinging north along the Wadi Araba, skirting the Trans-Jordan border. The report indicated Israel is trying to clear the last Trans-Jordan units out of Palestine.

3. In the only clash so far a small Arab legion and Israeli force met last week.

(First uncensored details from Beersheba said Israeli troops swept across the Negev to the shores of the Gulf of Aqaba, firing only a few shots along the way. The Arab Legion was forced to retreat into Trans-Jordan.

Not His Final Report

Bunche, in his message to the council sent early this morning, stressed this is not his final report on the situation. Yesterday Bunche indicated both Israel and Trans-Jordan were guilty of violating the Palestine truce.

(A Tel Aviv dispatch said the Israeli cabinet met to discuss foreign reaction to Israel's occupation of Elath coastal strip, but no details were revealed. Bunche's statement on the apparent Israeli breach of the truce was said to be on the agenda.)

British Troop Orders Furnished to Israel

London, March 14 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman said today Israel has been given details of military orders to British troops guarding the Trans-Jordan port of Aqaba. He said the orders were divulged to prevent "the danger of an untoward incident."

He declined to say what the orders were. It was reported unofficially that British troops in Aqaba have been ordered to repel any Israeli attempt to cross the Trans-Jordan frontier. Israel has said it has no intentions of going into Trans-Jordan or attacking Aqaba.

The admiralty announced that the 1400-ton British sloop Magpie arrived at Aqaba last Thursday.

3 Former CAA Men Are Accused Of Air Piracy

Shanghai, March 14 (U.P.)—A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Administration charged today that the air piracy of a China National Airways Corp. plane on January 30 between Shanghai and Tsinan was engineered and directed by Hing Kuo-cheng, American-trained former assistant CAA director. Two other former CAA employes also were accused in the mid-air hijacking.

Six gunmen forced the pilot, Don Hassig, an American, to relinquish the controls. On reaching Communist-held Tsinan the kidnaper-pilot made two passes at the airfield and then forced Hassig to take the controls and land the plane.

Philippine Senators End 22-Day Strike

Manila, March 14 (AP).—A 22-day strike by a faction of the Philippine Senate ended tonight.

Ousted Senate President Jose Avelino and nine of his supporters agreed to resume sessions tomorrow for the first time since February 21. Their decision followed a 7-to-3 vote of the Philippine Supreme Court to uphold the election of Mariano J. Cuenco as acting Senate president.

Poles Sentence Priests

Rome, Italy, March 14 (U.P.)—The Vatican Radio reported from Lodz, Poland, today that a military tribunal had sentenced two Catholic priests to death on charges of "giving aid and encouragement" to an underground anti-Communist organization.

It said a third priest was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment.

District Sales Tax Defeated by House

the two key roll calls, said the committee should now consider four other sources of getting the District more revenue—probably in combination: (1) more from the income tax (2) more from property taxes (3) an increase in the 12 million-dollar Federal payment, and (4) authority to borrow for needed construction.

Miller said he favored having the Commissioners "put in a rational ad valorem (property) tax like other cities have." He added: "The property tax here is far below that of other cities."

Tables Turned by Vote

Kennedy, when informed of Smith's reaction, said "if he wants to resign and give us the responsibility we'll be glad to take it. He emphasized he was not calling for Smith's resignation as head of the tax subcommittee, but only for a chance to let the minority tackle the problem.

The final vote came as a victory for the District Committee minority of six, who fought the bill hard before and after it came to the floor.

One of the group, Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) proposed broadening the present personal income tax here, and an increase in its rates as a substitute for the sales-tax bill.

Foes Win Roll-Call Vote

Representatives Water K. Granger (D., Utah) and Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) joined with Klein, Kennedy and Miller in fighting the sales tax through the debate. Representative James H. Morrison (D., La.) was the sixth member of the anti-sales tax bloc in the District Committee.

Last year the House approved the sales tax without a roll call, 116 to 71 and the Senate killed it. Getting the roll call was a key element in this year's strategy to beat the sales tax. The first roll call came on the motion of Representative T. Millet Hand (R., N. Y.) to send the bill back to the committee.

By its final overthrow of the sales tax, the House also killed a plan to cut from $10,000 to $5000 the exemption in the District's unincorporated business tax, and a plan for increasing from $1000 to $2000 the basic exemptions in the District's personal income tax law. These were in the sales tax bill as a separate title.

Slight Chance Remains

Members pointed out that the House action on the sales tax does not finally foreclose the chance that another sales-tax bill could be presented in this Congress. But they said it made such chances very slim. Any new sales-tax bill would have to be in a different form.

Besides overturning the District Committee majority, the House vote repudiated the demand of the Commissioners who had made the sales tax the top item in their program for solving the city's revenue problems.

A bitter note against Commissioner John Russell Young was sounded by Representative Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio) who told the House during debate that the Commissioner's speech at this year's Washington Board of Trade dinner was "very unfortunate" and an "insult to the intellect of any member of Congress." He said he was suspicious of their recommendations "if that is the kind of administration they have in the District."

The Board of Trade has played a leading role in support of the sales tax.

Sasscer Offers New Approach

A new approach to District taxation was suggested to the House by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) whose congressional district includes Prince Georges County.

Sasscer, backing the sales tax, said he would like to see a commission representing the District and the adjoining States set up to synchronize their revenue structures as far as possible. "Today half the metropolitan area of Washington has a sales tax and half does not," said Sasscer. "I do not believe the economy of a city can prosper with that sort of a line drawn across it."

Maryland has the sales tax. Virginia does not.

Nearly a third of the House's day went to discussion of amendments to the sales tax. Voice votes approved exemptions for candy, soft drinks, and for newspaper, radio and television, advertising. Other voice votes killed proposals to tax all food, and to exempt all food, leaving food for home consumption exempt, and restaurant meals subject to the tax. A 47-89 standing vote beat a plan of Representative Sasscer to exempt all drugs, leaving the exemption only for drugs sold on prescription.

Suffrage Supported

But while the final vote made the details of the sales tax pointless, debate pointed up some general Congressional views about how the District should be run.

Representative Edwin Arthur Hall (R., N. Y.) said the fairer method of imposing a sales tax would be first to approve a bill for District suffrage and then let the people here decide whether they want a sales tax.

Representative James C. Auchinloss (R., N. J.) leader in last year's fight for a Washington home rule bill, reminded the House that his plan included authority for the District to borrow for public improvements. He said that authority would eliminate the need of increased taxes, and might even produce opportunity for reducing the Federal payment.

For Higher U. S. Payment

Representative Paul C. Jones (D., Mo.) said he favored the sales tax, an increase in property taxes, and an increase in income taxes here, but "I'm against an increase in the Federal payment." Representative A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) said he favored the sales tax, increased property taxes, and said he would "not be averse" to boosting the Federal contribution from the present 12 to 18 or 20 million dollars a year.

Several members of the anti-sales tax side cited the District as having low property tax rates—an issue raised recently by the House Appropriations Committee when it trimmed the District budget by some 4 million, and suggested the Commissioners cover the deficit by hiking property taxes.

One sharp flurry arose from Klein's proposal for raising the needed revenue by the income tax. Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) said it would be a "completely ruthless" measure for Federal workers here.

Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.) proposed that the District's revenue problem be solved by having the local government take over the liquor business here.

Representative Smith set the pace for sales tax supporters with the statement that it would be "the fairest and most equitable levy.

"If we don't adopt the sales tax I just don't know where you're going to get the money to carry on the operations of the District," said Smith. "The budget has been cut to the bone. It does not carry a single dollar for new construction, for which there is a crying need."

High Valuations Cited

Representative Bates said "no large city in the United States is facing a more difficult financial situation than the District." While conceding that real estate taxes here may be low, Bates reminded the House that District property owners had seen their taxes hiked 30 per cent 2 years ago.

But Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.) declared that while District property tax rates are low, the valuations to which the rates are applied are probably higher here than in any other city in the United States. He pointed out, too, that a large proportion of the land here is federally owned and not subject to local taxes.

Opponents of the sales tax denounced the measure as unfair, iniquitous, and a heavy burden on those least able to pay.

On my way to the market this morning, I noticed a telephone truck parked in front of Jane Paul's house. I wasn't surprised when Jane called this afternoon to say she'd gotten her telephone.

She said she is on a party line, the same as I am. The telephone installer had explained that about seven out of every ten families with telephones are on party lines. Jane said if it weren't for party-line service, she would have had to wait a lot longer for her telephone.

That reminded me of something I was reading in the newspaper last night about the telephone company's construction and improvement program. The news article said that "in spite of the rapid progress being made on this program, some people are still waiting for telephones." It went on to say that "the company was making the widest possible use of party-line facilities because party lines mean more services for more people, sooner." The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company.

Fight to Change Rules Is Called Off

search for a compromise satisfactory to two hopelessly split Democratic factions and the Senate Republican minority.

Southern Democrats, after wining the first round Friday night, when the Senate overrode a filibuster-breaking ruling by Vice-President Barkley 46 to 41, walked off with the second decision as well.

Together with Republican leaders, they had agreed to accept one version of the so-called "Wherry compromise" permitting a "constitutional" two-thirds of the Senate to close debate on anything but a further rules change.

But Northern and Western Democrats, after a long day of round-robin conferences, branded this "no compromise at all."

A "constitutional two-thirds" means two-thirds of all 96 Senators. In other words, it would have taken 64 Senate votes to shut off debate, compared with the present simple two-thirds of those present and voting.

A majority of Administration Democrats said they would never agree to a proposal that in their judgment made it even more difficult to close debate.

Lucas reported their decision to a top level conference representing all three factions in the fight, Southern Democrats, Administration Democrats and Republican leaders.

A few minutes later, Lucas called in reporters and announced:

"We are perfectly aware that this filibuster can run on for weeks. They (the Southerners) have the manpower to do it. In the meantime, rent control would go out the window, not to mention the log jam of other legislation . . .

"So we are going to move to adjourn the Senate later tonight."

A reporter asked Lucas if the decision to drop the rules fight had President Truman's approval.

"I haven't talked to Mr. Truman, and don't know," Lucas replied. "I have some responsibility as majority leader."

Leaving the conference, Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), whose suggestion for a compromise started the three-day talks, told newsmen:

"The Administration did not accept the compromise. It is too bad to come so close to an agreement and then cast it aside and turn to some other legislation."

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), floor manager of the Southern forces, left the conference with Senator Harry Flood Byrd (D., Va.), who sat in on the talks.

"We yielded as much as honorable men could and perhaps more than reasonable men should," said Russell. "Every feeler of compromise put by the Administration has been withdrawn.

"Sunday's meeting was apparently futile and an effort to talk us into surrender in a star chamber session.

"We are told the only thing the Administration will accept is the original Hayden-Wherry resolution we have been opposing for two weeks. We, of course, will not accept that.

"If Democratic leaders want a knockdown fight, we are prepared to give it to them."

Holding the floor all day for the Southerners, in the longest speech yet in the talkathon, was Senator Ellender.

Taking the floor at 12:26 p. m., Ellender said he was prepared to talk 20 hours.

Ellender charged the proposed change to a bullet-proof two-thirds rule, to invoke cloture on any pending business "is dictated solely by the agitation of pressure groups to throw a political sop to certain minorities, particularly the Negro."

He said a single issue faced the Senate: "Will free speech continue . . . or will it give way to gag rule."

Speaking steadily in a low voice, without any time out for quorum calls, or any food except chocolate bars, Ellender droned on and on.

After he had been speaking for five hours on the rules situation, he casually announced:

"I now propose to discuss the poll tax for a few hours."

The day-long and futile pursuit of a compromise stemmed from Sunday morning's unusual meeting of leaders from all factions.

First Northern and Western Democrats met with Lucas at 10 a. m. They rejected flatly Southern Democratic feelers on a three-fourths cloture rule on everything except further changes in the rule. At this first meeting, Administration Democrats did not completely slam the door on proposals for Constitutional two-thirds cloture one of them said.

Apprised that three-fourths cloture was out, Southern leaders early in the afternoon agreed over the objections of some Dixie extremists to Constitutional two-thirds cloture, providing debate continued to be unlimited on a motion to call up further changes in the rules.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee held a meeting. It authorized GOP negotiators, Senators Wherry, William F. Knowland (Calif.) and Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.) to act for Senate Republicans. The latter group informally agreed to go along with the Constitutional two-thirds proposal if it would bring a compromise. Should the compromise have come off, Senate Republicans planned to hold a full conference on it Wednesday.

At 3 p. m. the top leaders of all factions met again. Negotiating for Administration forces were Senators Lucas, Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) and Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.). Representing the Southern group were Russell and Byrd.

At this meeting, Southern Democrats refused to agree to anything short of a Constitutional two-thirds rule. No agreement was reached, and Lucas called another meeting of his Northern-Western Democratic group. Meanwhile, a committee consisting of Wherry, Hayden and Russell was designated to "perfect" the original Wherry compromise, with a Constitutional two-thirds percentage, so it would be in legislative form if the meeting took a compromise turn.

Northern and Western Democrats then met at 5 p. m. to pass final judgment for the Administration. This meeting was a hot one, with some New Deal Senators warning against "appeasing" the Southerners. Only a handful favored the Constitutional two-thirds proposal and the majority told Lucas to accept nothing less than a hole-proof two-thirds cloture rule, applicable to everything but a further change in the rules. Lucas was given carte blanche to use his own judgment on whether to adjourn the Senate and proceed to other Truman measures.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (Conn.), chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told newsmen the proposal for a Constitutional two-thirds was "no compromise at all."

McGrath said it might require anywhere "from 4 to 10" more Senate votes to invoke cloture than the Senate's present two-thirds rule makes necessary.

At 8 p. m., Lucas broke the news to top-level representatives of the three factions at a meeting that lasted only a few minutes.

Then he called in reporters and told them:

"The primary difference between the groups is over whether a constitutional two-thirds or a simple two-thirds of the Senate should provide cloture.

"We (Administration forces) definitely feel the rule (present two-thirds cloture) now is proper. Many of our fellows feel a constitutional majority rule (49 Senators) would be adequate and fair. We came to the Senate by a majority vote.

"But all of our people were willing to get away from a constitutional majority if we could come to a straight two-thirds rule, in order to get an agreement."

In saying he would propose an adjournment to end the filibuster Lucas pointed out that rent control would expire March 31 unless extended.

He said although the rent control bil is still in committee, it may be impossible to bring it out in time if the Senate meets around the clock.

"They (Banking Committee leaders) have served notice on us they will be unable to met to bring out a bill if the Senate stays in continuous session," he said. "Consequently there could be no rent control."

Lucas went on to stress that the ECA authorization, now on the Senate calendar, is up against an April 3 deadline, and that such additional measures as long range housing, reciprocal trade extension, the Taft-Hartley repeal bill and a disaster loan sought by Western States is also being jeopardized by the filibuster.

He was asked if he intended to call up the rules change motion again later. He said he stood on his statement that it would be laid aside "temporarily."

More Building Trades Unions Taking Negroes, Parley Told

Negroes are being accepted into the undermanned building trades unions to a greater degree than ever before, Samuel B. Danley of the Labo Department's Division of Labor Standards said yesterday.

In New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and especially in New Orleans, he said, Negroes have recently made great advances in gaining membership in construction unions.

Danley spoke on the current trends in employment of Negro craftsmen before about 1000 Phelps Vocational High School students at the opening session of the National Urban League's seventeenth annual Vocational Opportunity Campaign sponsored by the Washington Urban League.

The great demand for building trades workers, he said, was breaking down discrimination against Negroes by unions, employers and established community patterns.

Danley stressed the need for intensive training and said there will be good opportunities somewhere in the Nation during the next few years for skilled Negro workers in the building, printing, machinist, radio and electronics fields.

Racial Case In High Court

By Chalmers Roberts
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court agreed yesterday to decide whether railroads in the South are discriminating against Negroes when they inforce segregation in dining cars.

The case involves Elmer W. Henderson, now director of the American Council for Human Rights and officers at 1130 Sixth st. nw. He brought the case in Baltimore but now lives at 3729 Jay st. ne. At the time, he was on Government business for the President's Committee for Fair Employment Practices, he said yesterday.

The case dates back to May 17, 1942, when Henderson boarded a war-crowded Southern Railway train here for a trip South. At dinner, while the train was in Virginia, he was refused service at the two curtained-off tables generally used by Negroes, because they were partially filled by white diners.

Henderson brought a case before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which upheld the railroad, but the District Court in Baltimore later said the dining car rules did not afford "substantial equality of treatment." The railroad then changed its rules to provide one table for four persons exclusively for Negroes and set off by a wooden partition. When the ICC refused to act further, Henderson went back to court.

This time the court said the new rules removed the previous inequality and hence there now was no discrimination against Negroes. The court said the Supreme Court decision against segregation on interstate bus lines did not apply to dining cars. It said the dining car segregation rules didn't cause any more burden on Negro passengers than did the wait for seats which faced all passengers on crowded trains.

N. Y. Express Clerks Prepared to Picket

New York, March 14 (AP).—Railway Express Agency clerks set up a picket headquarters today as they awaited a final go-ahead on plans to ring New York area railroad terminals.

However, there was no final decision on whether New York's Grand Central Terminal and Pennsylvania Station would be picket targets.

In Chicago, George M. Harrison, president of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said he had approved plans for picketing "right away."

He said he acted because of what he termed a "company lockout" of 9000 agency employes.

A contract dispute led to his decision.

"Our men have been reporting for work but the company has them locked out," Harrison told a reporter. "The company has been acting like a bunch of children.

"So if they don't lift the embargo, we will picket the express terminals—and that means right now."

Daniel J. Sullivan, general chairman of the union here, said his pickets were ready to go into action. They await only the official word from Harrison, he added.

Sullivan said he was "very pleased" with Harrison's attitude.

The New York leader originally named Grand Central and Pennsylvania Station as picket targets. In view of Harrison's statement which appeared to limit picketing to express — not passenger — terminals. Sullivan said he would reserve a decision until he received complete instructions.

[Sixty-eight Railway Express employes in Washington were laid off yesterday as a result of the New York express strike.

[The workers, all members of Lodge 2037, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, will remain out as long as the New York dispute continues.

[An embargo on air, rail, and truck express shipments to and from New York was placed by the Railway Express Company Wednesday. The workers are seeking a 40-hour week and hourly wage increases.—Editor's note.]

Optical Union Becomes CIO International

The CIO got a new international union yesterday, due to the Taft-Hartley law's non-Communist provision.

The new international is the United Optical & Instrument Workers of America that started out as a CIO organizing committee trying to round up enough members to become a full-fledged union.

As such, it has been denied bargaining authority through Government-sponsored elections because its top officer, CIO President Philip Murray, has refused on grounds of principle to sign the statement that he is not a Communist.

Senate Group Approves Boyd

nitely committee action on the Boyd appointment.

Here's what happened in the executive session of the committee, as disclosed by Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) and by other sources:

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), who is not a member of the committee, appeared under the rules of senatorial courtesy and urged the committee to hold hearings on his bill to separate the coal mine inspection functions of the U. S. Bureau of Mines and set them up in an autonomous agency.

Favorable Senate action on his bill, Johnson argued, would eliminate the Boyd issue. John L. Lewis has charged that Boyd is unqualified to hold the mines bureau directorship because he has had no experience with coal mines. Senator Johnson left the committee room after having his say.

Whereupon, Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.), former Secretary of Agriculture and a good friend of President Truman, moved that the Boyd appointment be given the green light.

Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), who as a majority member of the committee opposed and blocked committee action on the appointment in the preceding Eightieth Congress, then offered a substitute motion to defer action on Boyd until the Senate had held hearings and acted on the Johnson bill.

Senator Anderson countered with a motion to table Senator Millikin's substitute. Anderson's strategy barely won out 6-5.

The committee then voted to approve the nomination of Boyd, 10-1, Millikin casting the single negative vote.

The 10 voting in the affirmative were Democrats O'Mahoney, Anderson, McFarland (Ariz.), Miller (Idaho), Kerr (Okla.), and Republicans Butler (Nebr.), Cordon (Oreg.), Ecton (Mont.), Malone (Nev.), Watkins (Utah).

One Democrat, Downey (Calif.), voted present, and another, Murray (Mont.), was absent from the meeting.

Not Complete Loss

Even with the 10-1 approval of a nominee he opposed, John L. Lewis got something of a half-loaf out of the Senat committee. Chairman O'Mahoney announced the committee would soon begin hearings on the Johnson bill, which while not indorsed by the United Mine Workers, would be acceptable to the UMW if Boyd is finally confirmed to head up the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

The hearings would not be confined to separating coal mining inspection from the Bureau of Mines, O'Mahoney said. The committee would also consider legislation for giving the Federal Government the authority to enforce mine safety and health standards. Such power is presently held by the 48 States.

This step, advocated but defeated in the Eightieth Congress, is strongly indorsed by John L. and the United Mine Workers. This issue, some observers believe, is much more important to the miners than the appointment of Boyd.

These observers also believe that the two-week memorial period work stoppage, called ostensibly to protest the Boyd appointment and to mourn for the mining casualties of 1948, is more fundamentally John L.'s typically dramatic method of again publicizing the need for Federal safety laws with teeth.

Federal power to enforce safety standards in mines was advocated by a Senate subcommittee following investigation into the Centralia mine explosion in 1947, when 111 Illinois miners were killed. But the full committee limited the Bureau of Mines to publicizing unsafe and unhealthy conditions because of strong opposition to have the Federal Government enchore the domain of the States.

There's another reason suggested for the 14-day work stoppage. Like the other reasons, it is a matter of speculation, since John L. plays his cards very close to the vest. This argument states that with a record 45-day stockpile of coal above ground, and with new contract negotiations in the offing, John L. called the "memorial period" in order to reduce the coal reserves and thereby strengthen his hand at the bargaining table.

This is the opinion held by many coal operators, some of whom characterize the "memorial period" as a downright "strike."

Whatever it is, some 471,000 UMW east of the Mississippi stayed out of the pits yesterday and prepared to enjoy a 'two weeks' holiday.

At the same time, the coal-carrying railroads laid off or took steps to furlough around 70,000 of their employes for the same period or longer. Largest layoffs were by Pennsy, 20,000, and Chesapeake & Ohio, 15,000.

T-H Repeal Backed By Independents

By The Associated Press

Presidents of two independent unions pushed organized labor's campaign on Capitol Hill yesterday for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law.

They were Harvey W. Brown, head of the International Association of Machinists, and Dor Mahon, of Des Moines, president of the National Brotherhood of Packinghouse Workers.

They were witnesses before a House Labor Subcommittee which is holding hearings on the Truman Administration's bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Law.

The House group is expected to favor the bill. In fact, two Republicans have complained the subcommittee was "stacked" for repeal. Representatives McConnell (R., Pa.) and Nixon (R., Calif.) told a reporter the hearings were largely a waste of time because the Democrats had made up their minds in advance.

Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.) replied: "The Republicans are just sore because they know we've got the votes to lick them." Lesinski is chairman of the full Labor Committee, and appointed the 13-member subcommittee.

Brown told the subcommittee he believes the Taft-Hartley Law was intended "to strangle and deplete the treasuries of labor unions, thereby destroying the rights of organization and collective action."

He said the law "has proven itself to be a barrier to wholesome collective relationship," between unions and employers.

Asked by Representative Bailey (D., W. Va.) to explain this, Brown replied:

"Under the law, the employer can spike the shop with persons who are intended to create confusion and turmoil, rather than work for orderly relations. The union cannot get rid of them as long as they pay their dues."

Mahon is a vice president of the Confederated Unions of America as well as president of the Brotherhood of Packinghouse workers. He urged that any labor law passed by Congress guarantee the rights of independent labor unions to bargain for workers.

Any labor bill approved by the committee, he said, should "provide for fair and equal treatment for independent unions which are an integral part of the American labor movement, as distinguished from those forms of totalitarian government where every worker must belong to one big union under a supreme dictator."

No Cut In Pay

Accord Near On Railroad 5-Day Week

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—A new shorter work-week contract giving nearly half of the Nation's million nonoperating railroad employes weekends off was all but complete tonight.

There are still wrinkles to be ironed out when management and union committees meet at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. But, a railroad spokesman said, "the broad issues of applying the 40-hour week have been agreed upon and only minor details have to be settled."

The present work week is 48 hours. Carriers and unions have agreed to the 40-hour week with no cut in pay, to become effective September 1 this year. Also agreed to was a 7-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to October 1, 1948.

The new contract is being written in conformance with recommendations made by a presidential fact-finding board headed by Dr. William M. Leiserson. The panel was called in twice by the negotiators after making its report to President Truman December 17.

Union Local Beats 4 From International

Pottstown, Pa., March 14 (AP).—L. S. Buckmaster, international president of the CIO-United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers, and three other men were beaten during a meeting of the union's Local 336 last night, police reported.

Police said Buckmaster was not injured, but Fred L. Howard, of Norristown, Pa., an international union representative, was treated at Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises.

The others beaten, police said, were O. H. Bosley, Newark, N. J., district representative, and Fleet Perrine, Akron, Ohio general organization director. Buckmaster is a resident of Akron.

Robert E. Garber, president of the local, told police the four men were attacked after a vote of the membership rejected their request to speak.

Buckmaster took hold of a microphone and was just starting to speak when persons in the audience stormed hte platform and pushed him, witnesses said.

Local 336 is made up of some 1900 employes of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company in Pottstown.

Buckmaster and the other union officials said the several recent walkouts at the plant were unauthorized.

Garber, however, said there has been only one wildcat strike.

In the last national union election in which Buckmaster was elected by a margin of only two votes, Garber claimed that the Pottstown local's votes were not counted.

30 Twine Makers Accused by FTC Of Conspiracy

The Federal Trade Commission said yesterday it had issued a complaint charging 30 makers and distributors of twine products "with combination and conspiracy to lessen and eliminate competition and to restrain trade" in those commodities.

The Carded Yarn Association, Inc., of Charlotte, N. C., and the Cotton Textile Institute, New York City, also were named in the complaint, the FTC said.

Effect of the "combination and conspiracy," the FTC stated, was to impose an "unreasonable hardship and burden" on the purchasing public by depriving it of the right to purchase twine products at competitive prices.

The FTC said that, among other things, the manufacturers had reduced the number of hours and working shifts in their plants to curtail production, and create scarcity of products.

49,000 Last Month

Maryland Jobless Hit Postwar Top

Annapolis, Md., March 14 (AP).—Unemployment in Maryland last month was the highest it has been since the war, Russell L. Davis, director of the Department of Employment Security, reported today.

He said the State had 49,000 jobless during February, an increase of 96 per cent over February, 1948.

Davis said the high rate of unemployment could not be laid entirely to seasonal layoffs, which occurred in the construction, beverage, shipbuilding and retail industries.

He pointed out that the increased joblessness would also result in a "decrease in consumer purchasing power," with subsequent declines in orders and sales.

Layoffs in Maryland have affected practically all types of construction workers, with homebuilding plans "tentative and uncertain." Davis said the demand for houses costing over $8500 is sharply down, with the drop in building activities greater than the normal seasonal decline.

He said semi-skilled and unskilled labor is "abundant," and that women and older workers are entering the labor market because of financial hardship.

Sears Cuts Refrigerator Prices 8 Pct.

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co. today cut prices an average of 8 per cent on its refrigerators. It was the second reduction within three months by the country's largest retail merchandising firm.

Company officials said the reductions were made as "a needed sales stimulant resulting from the return to an old-fashioned competitive market in refrigerators." Reductions will go in effect immediately and apply to both retail stores and the mail order division.

Lamb Prices Set New March Record of $29

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Live lambs set another new price peak for March today at $29 a hundred pounds. This topped the previous record set last week at a quarter less.

Last week's estimated total of 8500 on sale at this market was the lowest since last summer's seasonally reduced numbers. A year ago approximately 16,000 head were received for sale in the comparable week of March.

Textron Puts 2000 On 3-Day Work Week

Suncook, N. H., March 14 (AP).—Two thousand Textron, Inc., workers in Nashua and Suncook went on a three-day work week today.

Division Manager Cushman has announced the curtailment at the Jackson plant was "only temporary, due to seasonal slack in the textile industry."

Kaiser-Frazer Reopens Its Assembly Lines

Detroit, March 14 (AP).—Kaiser-Frazer Corp. reopened its assembly lines today after a three-week shutdown.

The resumption of assembly-line operations brought approximately 7000 workers back to their jobs. They began work on K-F's new utility models, combining the appearance of sedans but incorporating the carrying utilities of station wagons and light trucks.

Labor Dept. Shifts Asked

mum wages for seamen—now a function of the United States Maritime Commission.

6. Consolidating enforcement of labor standards in Government contracts, now handled by contracting departments and agencies, in the Labor Department.

7. Consolidating "prevailing wage" research, now carried on by various agencies, in the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The Labor Department "has been steadily denuded of functions," the Hoover Commission points out in its report to Congress as follows:

The United States Employment Service, now part of the Bureau of Employment Security, was transferred to Federal Security Agency in 1948; Immigration and Naturalization Service, to Justice Department, 1940; Children's Bureau, to Federal Security Agency, 1946; Conciliation Service, made independent, 1947.

The way the Labor Department is presently set up, the commission said, with an administrative expenditure of 16 million dollars a year and a personnel roll of 3400, "the department has about the same number of top officials as certain other departments with 100 times the expenditures and number of employes."

"In general, it may be said that the department is now overmanned at the top levels for the functions which remain," the report stated. "The department has lost much of its significance. It should be given more essential work to do if it is to maintain a significance comparable to the other great executive departments."

Three of the 12 members of the commission, created by Congress to recommend reforms in the executive branch of the Government, opposed placing the independent Selective Service System in the Labor Department. They are Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, former Representative Carter Manasco, and Secretary of State Dean Acheson. They argued Selective Service could be more effective as an independent unit.

On its transfer recommendations, the commission declared that the units suggested "are more nearly related to the problems of labor than those with which they are now associated." The majority, in voting for transfer of Selective Service, added:

"This system functions essentially for the purpose of mobilizing the manpower of the country for military service. . . . To place it under the Secretary of Defense would raise the most serious objections, since its operation involves many considerations which require that its supervision be objective and not biased in favor of the military. On the other hand, the effect of conscription on the labor force must receive the continual examination which can be provided by the Labor Department."

Although one of its task forces earlier recommended the return of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to the Labor Department, the commission took no stand on this issue because Congress is currently considering the issue.

Crusader Alleges Attempt at Bribe

tions executive, Benjamin Sonnenberg. Ryan said he asked to have their offer put in writing. Sonnenberg immediately denied the claim.

"Of course, I never did any such thing nor have I had any contact with Mr. Ryan since I helped him on a property case last year," Sonnenberg said. "I simply cannot understand why he should say such a thing."

Clendenin Ryan came from the grand jury chamber smiling and holding his fingers aloft in the "V for victory" sign. He said he had waived immunity, that he would tell the grand jury all he knew and that he would be back Tuesday.

His attorney, Broady, said he had not waived immunity. Under law, a grand jury cannot force a witness to testify against himself on matters that might result in his own indictment.

Broady read a statement saying he was in the middle of his investigation and that some of his sources are "right in the middle of O'Dwyer's camp."

"Some have told me that were I to reveal the information before the completion of the investigation their lives and the safety of their families might be endangered. The leads I have might take me right into the District Attorney's own office and they might turn up information helpful to the District Attorney."

The wheels of justice were grinding fast for former detective Ryan, who showed up at the office of Attorney James Murray and then went along to surrender to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan.

Murray said Kenneth Ryan had jumped out the City Hall window Saturday morning so he could "go to church." Whatever his motive, the grand jury indicted him almost immediately for "escaping from lawful custody" and the district attorney charged him a short time later with wiretapping.

He pleaded innocent to the first charge and was released on $7500 bail. On the second accusation, Ryan was paroled in custody of his attorney pending expected action by the grand jury regarding wiretapping.

The Italian-born Costello, once the acquaintance of underworld characters Lucky Luciano and Joe Adonis, got into the act with a long letter to California's Gov. Earl Warren. He took the occasion not only to deny that State's charges that he headed the slot machine racket but also to state that he had no influence with O'Dwyer, with Tammany Hall or with the city government.

Costello said he would have to be a multiple-headed freak "like those pickled in alcohol" to direct all the sinister activities attributed to him and wrote:

"Governor, the truth is that I have so little influence over officials and judges in New York City that I can't square a traffic ticket for myself."

Meanwhile, Edward M. Jones, the former Secret Service agent also involved in the wiretapping investigation, sought unsuccessfully to obtain a writ of habeas corpus so that he could not be held as a material witness.

Judge Morris Eder, told that Jones' wife was hysterical with grief and that Jones appeared to be "hypnotized," told Jones' attorneys the wife could visit her husband in jail and acidly questioned the former treasury agent, drawing the information that he had not been given dope, pills or hypnotic treatments.

"This isn't Russia," said Eder.

Clendenin Ryan, the friend of the John Jacob Astors who has turned from breeding Guernsey cows to scouring "corruption" from government, showed up at the Mayor's office an hour before he was to appear before the grand jury.

Told that the Mayor was absent, attending a conference on the city budget, Ryan shouted:

"Is he lazy or yellow or what? I want to see him and he's never here. He's lazy."

D. C. Is First In Assaults

into operation after an investigation by The Washington Post had shown the police system was faulty and that many crime complaints were being "pocketed." Figures were corrected back to January 1, 1947.

Barrett also emphasized that Washington stands high in the percentage of serious crime cases solved last year. This, he said, includes aggravated assaults, is particularly true of murders and includes robberies.

He also pointed to the number of vacancies on the police force. Soon 39 rookies will leave the police training school to become active policemen, but there will still be 175 vacancies. If these posts were filled, and each one of the 175 men prevented a crime a day, the local crime figures would tumble, he said.

National Trends Shown

Some national trends are also apparent in the Uniform Crime Reports made public by RBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

It is shown that there were about 1,686,670 major law violations in the United States last year—"a serious crime for every 18.7 seconds."

The total was 1.3 per cent greater than that of 1947 but about 1 per cent below the all-time record set in 1946, the first postwar year.

Hoover said that nationally "with the passing of each day" last year an average of 36 persons were murdered, 255 were assaulted or raped, 463 automobiles were stolen, and 2672 miscellaneous larcenies took place.

The FBI figures show that all serious crimes, except negligent manslaughter and auto theft, ran far above prewar averages.

Special note to families who buy "for keeps"

Here's some additional good news about the enduring economy of Packard ownership:

1. Packard has put the s-t-r-e-t-c-h on gasoline mileage. The new "free-breathing" Packard straight-eight engine is the thrift sensation of the fine car field.

2. Upkeep costs are the lowest ever . . . proved by dealer records. And Packard durability is the highest ever! (P.S.—Of all the Packards built, in the last 49 years, over 50% are still in service!)

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Now that you're so close to the price of a Packard—why not own one!

You'll find many a make of car, today, in the Packard "price class"—but only one of them is a Packard!

No other car can match the proud distinction of Packard styling—because Packard has never shared its beauty with any other car of lesser name.

No other car has duplicated Packard's turbine-smooth, amazingly thrifty, "free-breathing" power . . . because Packard has had a broader range of power-building experience than any other single manufacturer.

And as for luxurious riding comfort—Packard's exclusive "self-controlling" suspension system will treat you to a limousine dream ride such as you've never known.

So, if the price tags you've been looking at are near the two-thousand-dollar mark—why not step up to the car you'll be proudest to own "for keeps"? It awaits your inspection right now . . . at your nearby Packard dealer!

Sen. Byrd To Vote Against Wallgren

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) announced yesterday he will vote against President Truman's appointment of Mon C. Wallgren to head the National Security Resources Board.

Byrd's vote may be the deciding factor Tuesday when the Senate Armed Services Committee has scheduled a showdown on the nomination.

Six Republicans of the 13-member group were reported likely to oppose Wallgren's confirmation.

Although he did not say so, friends stated Byrd may vote to table the nomination. If a majority of the committee takes this action, the appointment could be brought to the Senate floor only by discharging the committee from considering it.

Byrd said in a statement he had "reluctantly reached the conclusion that Mr. Wallgren does not possess the administrative qualifications from the standpoint of training, experience and competency to perform the extremely important functions devolving upon him should his appointment be confirmed."

Wallgren, a former Senator and former Governor of Washington, is a personal friend of Mr. Truman. The President named him to the $14,000-a-year job February 7.

Senator Cain (R., Wash.) has attacked Wallgren before the Armed Services Committee and in the Senate. Cain charged Wallgren is incompetent, and is "soft" toward Communists, accusations that the nominee denied.

Byrd said: 'I do not believe Mr. Wallgren is a Communist or that he has any sympathy with communism and I do not impugn his integrity.

"But the testimony before the committee convinces me that he has been careless in some of his appointments as Governor of the State of Washington." He added:

"Never before have such tremendous responsibilities been vested by law in a single agency. The responsibilities of this position are so vast and so vital to our security that we need a man of the caliber of Bernard Baruch."

Would Void Insurance On Morals Grounds

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—An insurance company today filed suit to void a policy covering $156,000 in stolen jewels because of the "morals" of a lovely Romanian actress and a wealthy textile manufacturer who hold the policy.

The Mercury Insurance Co., in a unique suit filed in Federal Court, charged that blonde Lisette Verea, stage and screen actress, and Erhart Ruegg misrepresented themselves in the policy as husband and wife while actually they were only "cohabitating together." The company said Ruegg was and still is married to another woman.

Fay Orders Probe Of Pyramid Clubs

A Federal Grand Jury investigation of Washington's pyramid clubs was ordered yesterday.

The action was taken by the United States Attorney after Dan Thomas, 28, of 81 Hawaii ave. ne., a bricklayer, told reporters he founded the first pyramid club here two weeks ago, and that it already numbers 10,000 persons.

Thomas

United States Attorney George Morris Fay said that after a study of the methodology of pyramid clubs he concluded they are illegal, as violating the District's lottery laws.

He said that to constitute a violation, there need be but three elements. They are:

1. The patron must pay something.

2. He must pay it for a chance.

3. There must be a prize offered.

All three elements are present, he said, in the pyramid setup, where for a dollar a club member has a chance in 12 days to receive $2048 if no link in the pyramid is unbroken.

Fay said that in the grand jury investigation, he hopes to call Thomas as a witness.

the hospitals. He had suggested this step in a $1,572,000 supplemental budget appropriation to establish a gross salary system. This would permit payroll deductions for cost of employe maintenance provided at the hospitals.

2. A $23,907,150 two-year building program, of which $19,994,800 would be spent the first year, to increase the patient capacity from 6389 to 8976 under U. S. Public Health Service standards. (The present "overcrowded" population is 8881.)

If his requests for money are approved, the Governor said, work could begin within three months on employes' housing. Construction of patient buildings could be under way by next fall.

Eastern Shore State Hospital—Infirmary building for 70 patients, $600,000; auditorium and recreation building, $200,000; alterations, etc., $90,000; employes' housing, $38,000; utilities, water tank, etc., $196,800; grand total, 1,124,800. The program would increase the patient capacity of 345 to 415 and when space utilization is completed the capacity would be 515.

Rosewood State Training School—Two 50-bed infirmary buildings, $864,000; six 30-boy cottages, $890,000; school shops, $200,000; gymnasium, $100,000; renovation and fireproofing of cottages, $454,000; employes' housing, $475,000; utilities and space utilization, $1,371,000; grand total $4,345,000. The capacity would be increased from 935 to 1215.

Lane Asks $5.7 Million Tuberculosis Aid

Annapolis, Md., March 14 (AP).—So that Maryland might have "up-to-date" State hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis, Governor Lane recommended tonight a $5,731,555 improvement program for the four sanatoria.

More than half the money would be used to enlarge Mount Wilson Sanatorium.

He suggested the money be spent on a modernization program as follows:

At Maryland Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Sabillasville—A $1,022,700 construction program, including a new four-story wing on one of the buildings. The $900,000 addition would be used for vocational rehabilitation facilities, new kitchens, dining rooms, a library and a number of additional beds. Another $30,000 would be used to inclose four open-type patients' cottages. The rest would be spent on miscellaneous improvements.

Mount Wilson—construction of a new 300-bed unit, which would provide "adequate facilities for chest surgery," and would cost an estimated $3,800,000. An additional $66,500 for alterations and repairs was recommended.

Pine Bluff—New sewage facilities and plumbing repairs, at a cost of $52,555.

Henryton—A $125,000 renovation job on the main building, $200,000 for construction of a 40-bed wing for children, and a $375,000 nurses' home.

Action Deferred On Daylight Time

House action on daylight saving time for Washington was deferred yesterday. Members said the bill probably will come up at the next District Day, March 28.

The Senate has approved a bill to let Washington have daylight saving time every summer.

Falls Church Puts Curb on Comic Books

A voluntary program to eliminate sale of "objectionable, immoral and obscene" comic books in Falls Church was agreed upon last night by the city council.

Under the program, Mayor Albert M. Orme will appoint a special committee to work with city merchants and urge them to refrain from selling such books.

In presenting the plan, City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said the purely voluntary system should save Falls Church "from the hazards of an outright legal ban" on comic books, and a possible court test.

The mayor's committe would try to eliminate those comic books which feature prominently accounts of "arson, assault, burglary, kidnaping, mayhem, murder, rape, larceny, manslaughter, and prostitution."

And also included are books which use "indecent, immoral, or lascivious" drawings.

Councilman Lee M. Rhoads, who proposed control of the comic books, said the council acted from "no false sense of prudery" or desire to "censor" publications.

Rhoads suggested that the mayor's committee make a survey of all vendors of comic books at regular intervals to be sure no undesirable books are being sold.

Four delegates to a northern Virginia conference on regional sewage disposal problems were appointed last night.

Appointed by the council were Councilmen John McRae and Lee M. Rhoads, City Attorney LaRue Van Meter and City Manager Roy F. Dunn.

Man's Death Ruled Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday in the death of Richard Horn, 50, of 1531 D st. se. Horn collapsed while descending the steps in front of a home in the 100 block of 16th st. se. about 5 a. m. and died almost immediately.

Dr. MacDonald said Horn's death was caused by a fractured skull. An autopsy disclosed that he had suffered two cerebral hemorrhages, one recently and one some time ago, when he had apparently been the victim of another fall, Dr. MacDonald said.

Maryland U. Budget Hit In New Bill

Annapolis, Md., March 14 (AP).—Another bill to force the University of Maryland to submit its budget requests in detailed, instead of lump sum, form was introduced in the House of Delegates tonight.

The measure, almost identical with one which failed by a single vote margin last week, was sponsored by six delegates from Baltimore County. The first measure was introduced by Delegate Whitworth (R., Montgomery).

Backers of the move to make the university show in detail how it intends to spend its money contend the legislature and the taxpayers have a right to the information.

The university has used the lump sum method of filing its budget for many years.

Delegate Robinson (D., Baltimore, 4th), introduced another bill relating to lump sum budget requests. This would bar the Governor from submitting lump sum appropriations for any State department or agency unless the department requested in writing that an exception be made.

The request would have to be in by the October 1 preceding the General Assembly session, and would need approval by the Director of Budget and Procurement.

Painting Exhibit at GW Postponed Indefinitely

An exhibit of paintings by Ethel Machanic scheduled to open today in the George Washington University Library has been postponed indefinitely.

That was announced yesterday by John Russell Mason, librarian and curator of art, who said it was because the dispute between the railway clerks and the Railway Express Agency in New York City prevented shipment of the paintings to Washington.

The library's current exhibits of Edmond J. Fitzgerald's work will continue until the dispute is settled, Mason said.

Rape Attacks Reported by Girl, Woman

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—Police investigated today the rape of a 16-year-old girl and the attempted rape of a 27-year-old woman less than three hours later.

The attacks were said to have taken place yesterday within one mile of each other, and in both cases the victims were threatened with sharp instruments.

Police said the girl reported hearing a window opened in the basement of her home about 2:15 a. m. She said a man approached her bed, brandished a pair of shears and warned "If you scream, I'll kill you."

Patrolman Eugene Dailey said the girl described her assailant as a Negro wearing a leather jacket.

The woman reported an intruder entered her second-floor apartment about 4:45 a. m. and threatened her with a knife. She said she cut both hands on the knife in an attempt to defend herself, screamed and ran from her bedroom.

OUR BANK PLAN FOR AUTOMOBILE FINANCING

Offers three important advantages:

1 You can obtain a Second National Bank automobile loan at a reasonable rate.

2 You may include the cost of insurance in your loan—and not be faced with a large lump sum premium that ordinarily would be paid in advance.

3 By systematic and prompt payments, you establish bank credit, that may prove valuable later.

Consult one of our officers before you purchase a car. He will gladly give you the details of this advantageous plan.

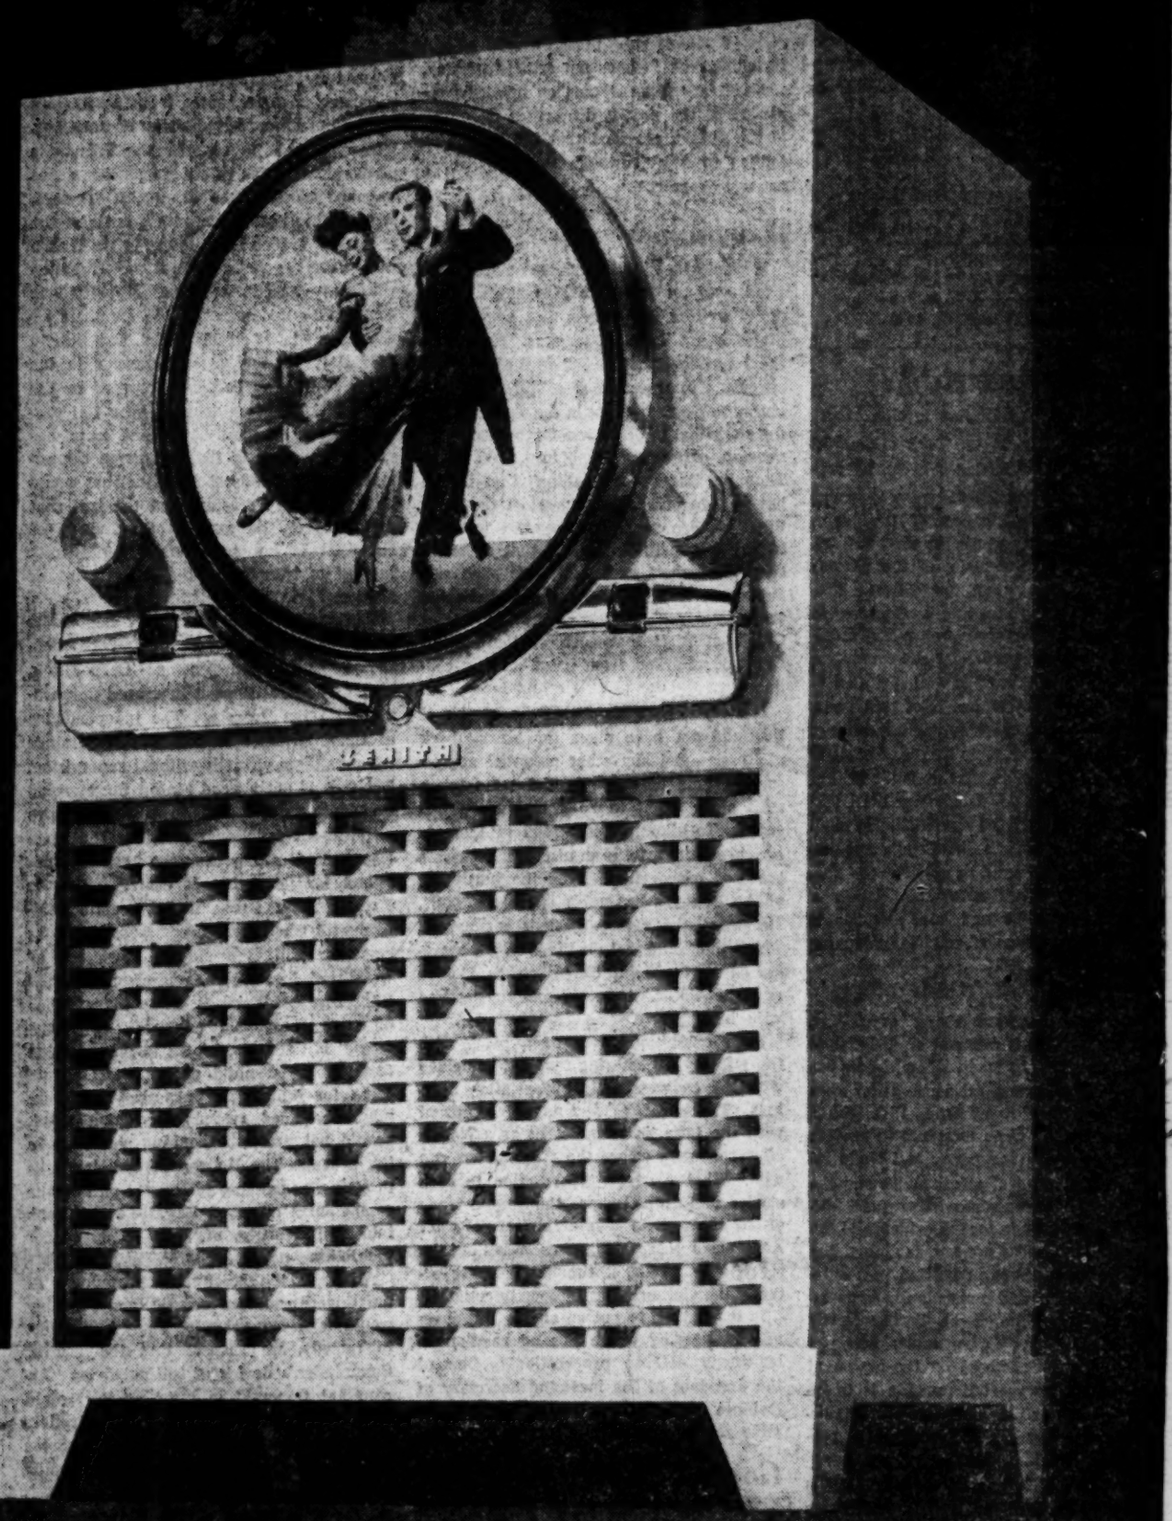
Expected Changes in Wavelengths will not Obsolete Zenith Television



Some facts the Public is entitled to know

In a published letter written in the public interest by Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, dated February 15, 1949, to the Honorable Wayne Coy, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Senator Johnson said among other things:

Quote: "Also, we are concerned deeply with respect to the marketing of television sets. Television-set manufacturers and spokesmen for some broadcasters have repeatedly declared that present-day sets will not be outmoded in the near future. Nevertheless, it appears obvious to us that when and if licensing is authorized in the ultra-high-frequencies and television develops in those frequencies, television sets being manufactured today will be obsolescent. While it is contended that an attachment can be made which will meet such a contingency, in part, we are not greatly impressed with the efficacy of similar attachments for FM frequency shifts. We note that no purchaser of a television set today is warned or advised that such an attachment may be necessary or, in fact, that in a matter of a few months or years, the set for which he is paying $200 to $1,000 may be junk. We wonder, therefore, if some action cannot be taken by the Federal Communications Commission which would result in set-manufacturers making clear to such buyers that caveat emptor should not enter into the purchase of such a highly complex and intricate mechanism as a television set.

"We understand that the Federal Communications Commission has no present legal authority to compel such action. If the Commission is of this opinion also, or that suggestions to television manufacturers to correct this practice may fall on deaf ears, we would appreciate recommendations for legislation to meet thi problem. The public requires protection." Unquote.

Chairman Wayne Coy, by direction of the Federal Communications Commission, in responding to Senator Johnson's letter on February 25th, said among other things:

Quote: . . ."The 12 channels presently available for television are not nearly enough to take care of the demand." * * * * "Of course, if ultra high channels are added there will be some obsolescence. To be sure, converters can readily be made which will alleviate the matter somewhat, but as recognized in your letter converters are not as satisfactory as regular receivers." End of quote.

In its May, 1945, published report the Federal Communications Commission stated, ". . . there is insufficient spectrum space available below 300 megacycles to make possible a truly nation-wide and competitive television system . . . development of the upper portion of the spectrum is necessary for the establishment of a truly nationwide and competitive television system."

In a public notice issued on May 5, 1948, the FCC reiterated its opinion of May, 1945, and pointed out that the 475-890 megacycle band would have to be used for television if this country were to have a nationwide competitive system of television.

So public notice has been given by FCC.

FOR YOUR INSURANCE

EVERY Zenith television receiver is equipped with a specially designed built-in turret tuner with provision for receiving the proposed new ultra high frequency channels on the present standards.

Dictator's Reward

The Senate's Interior and Insular Affairs Committee has taken up the challenge of John L. Lewis and hurled it back. By vote of 10 to 1 the committee yesterday approved the President's nomination of Dr. James Boyd to be Director of the Bureau of Mines. This appointment was one of the reasons cited by the boss miner for calling a two-week layoff in the coal mines. Contrary to John L.'s grumbling complaint, a preponderance of the testimony before the committee indicates that Dr. Boyd is well qualified to run the Bureau of Mines. But that issue, which ought to be the only one for congressional consideration, is no longer of primary importance. The present issue—and Mr. Lewis has made it so—is whether the UMW or the Congress of the United States shall advise and consent to Dr. Boyd's appointment. We are pleased to see that the Senate Committee has given Mr. Lewis a categorical brush-off and hope the Senate as a whole will soon affirm this judgment.

Shifting Wage Strategy

Whether prices are rising or falling, whether inflation is rampant or deflation is the bogey of the moment, labor leaders can find arguments to support demands for wage increases. Last week the CIO called for "substantial" wage increases to provide a reservoir of buying power and "help relieve the piling up of merchandise and the drop of jobs in consumer industries." Although protesting, in face of evidence to the contrary, that prices are not declining, the CIO has by indirection admitted that inflation is subsiding and demands for wage increases can no longer be buttressed by pointing to rising living costs; hence a change in strategy based on the argument that the way to avert depression is to increase consumer purchasing power by raising wages, expanding social insurance programs and slashing profits.

The defect of this formula is that it fails to make allowance for the effect of wage increases on business activity and employment. Higher wages may spur buying at retail levels, provided employment holds up. But if wages are raised, production costs will also rise and so will prices of produced goods. A rise in prices coming at a time when consumers are showing increasing resistance to high prices can only result in further loss of custom and curtailment of productive activity. That in turn means fewer jobs, more part-time work and layoffs. Under such conditions the profits that the CIO considers excessive would vanish in advance of the tax increases on corporate businesses that the CIO favors, and consumer purchasing power would decline along with the drop in business activity. The CIO's method of stimulating the business patient is, in short, calculated to undermine his constitution and weaken his resistance to the impact of adverse influences.

Reviewing The Press

Some of Dr. Robert M. Hutchins' caustic criticism of the press has borne fruit in the establishment on a trial basis of a 12-member board to review the performance of American newspapers. The board is the direct outgrowth of a suggestion by the trade magazine, Editor & Publisher, in response to Dr. Hutchins' comments at a recent meeting of the National Conference of Editorial Writers in Louisville. The review body will consist of six laymen or educators appointed by Dr. Hutchins, and six competent newspapermen selected by Editor & Publisher. Their job will be to attempt an informed discussion of the good and bad aspects of the press.

Dr. Hutchins regards members of the press as teachers. Some of them, he says, are bad teachers because they don't read, as evidenced by their treatment of the report of the Commission on Freedom of the Press. There can be no excuse, of course, for the straw men set up in the press response to the commission report. Nor is it an adequate defense to say that probably the great majority of newspapers, including most of those cited by Dr. Hutchins, attempt to do an honest job by their lights. Honesty of effort in the press is not enough when it is based upon erroneous premises.

How to develop a sense of responsibility is the object of the Hutchins report, a Free and Responsible Press, and it ought to be a no less vital concern of the press. But it cannot be developed without a thorough understanding of the causes of acknowledged lapses. These lapses stem far more from mechanical problems and fallibilities in judgment and the nature of news itself than from any deliberate falsifications.

It is here, we think, that the Hutchins approach falls down. The principal criticism to be made of the Hutchins report is that it fails to take sufficient account of the practical workings and problems of the press—in other words, the nonintentional deficiencies. The same flaw is to be found in Dr. Hutchins' reiterated proposal for a group of disinterested laymen to review annually the performance of the press. The aim is certainly worth while, but no review which does not encompass a full knowledge of the day-to-day difficulties can hope to present a workable formula for improvement.

The new review board seems to us to offer an entirely commendable way in which to execute Dr. Hutchins' concept and at the same time to guard against the kind of Olympian report that would fail of its purpose. Certainly the press, which, as Dr. Hutchins notes, dishes out criticism freely, can well afford to support an informed appraisal of the way it discharges its duties to the public, provided that the review be related to defects within the newspapers' power to correct.

Warmongering

It would be hard to convince a foreigner reading of the latest wave of publicity exploits by the Air Force that the United States is not hell-bent for war. First came the round-the-world flight of the B-50 and attendant interpretations of this country's ability to bomb any spot in the world. Then the story that the B-36 had flown 9600 miles nonstop, carrying a bomb load 5000 miles. Then the Air Force "finding" that Russia has no adequate defense against the B-36. Finally, there comes what appears to be an inspired leak to the effect that some 70 strategic targets in Russia have been earmarked as possible bombing objectives and that the Air Force has assured the Joint Chiefs of Staff that each of these cities could be attacked from bases on this continent.

Military strategists would be remiss if they did not have plans for hitting back at Russia—and any other potential aggressor—in time of war. By the same token such plans ought to be a highly guarded secret. To allow a description of them to be leaked into print is an utterly inexcusable piece of provocation. Even the blustering of the Russians has never approached this. Moreover, the rather dubious manner in which the "findings" on the B-36 were presented to the Joint Chiefs makes it look as if the Air Force was primarily concerned with headlines.

Such exhibitionism is of a piece with the military huckstering that has coincided with the congressional appropriation hearings. The effect, to anyone not cognizant with the facts, is to indict us as a Nation of warmongers where the military has run wild. What must be the reaction to such stories in Europe, where the very essence of our efforts is to counteract fears of war? How much more dangerous must be the reaction in Russia, if the Russians are actually the victims of an insecurity complex!

Is it not time to put an end to this juvenile swaggering which has no relation to legitimate defense preparations? One of the first jobs of the incoming Secretary of Defense ought to be to muzzle the irresponsible zealots before they talk us into war.

Communist Citizens

How to meet the threat posed by conspirators who hide behind American freedoms while attempting overthrow of this Government is a question that has puzzled many of the country's best legal minds. The recent parrotlike statements of loyalty to Russia by William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist Party, and Eugene Dennis, secretary, are little short of treason. In company with similar utterances by Communist heads in other countries, they leave no doubt as to the foreign direction of the Communist Party. But in addition to demonstrating the potential danger of a fifth column, they also tend to hinder clear thinking about the basic issue.

One suggested check on the conspiracy is Representative Walter's bill to deprive members of the Communist Party, native born and naturalized, of their American citizenship. Mr. Walter defends his bill on the ground that the Nationality Act of 1940 provides specific reasons for which American citizens may lose nationality. Among these is "taking an oath or making an affirmation or other formal declaration of allegiance to a foreign state." Mr. Walter apparently holds that membership in the Communist Party means per se allegiance to Russia.

The leaders of the American Communist Party have virtually confessed that they are agents of the Soviet Union. Still, the party has not been outlawed, and as long as it remains a legal entity the Walter bill seems to us of doubtful constitutionality. It would in effect penalize American citizens for something that has not been prohibited by law. Mr. Walter opposes outlawing the party. So does Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, because he fears that course would merely drive the Communists underground. But the Walter bill, it seems to us, would have much the same effect. It would give the Communists a martyrdom they have energetically sought. Getting at party membership, especially secret membership, would prove extremely difficult. It would invite the sort of witch-hunting the country has tried to avoid. To enact such legislation while the conspiracy trial of 11 Communists is just getting under way in New York would be especially unfortunate. The outcome certainly will have a bearing on the handling of Communists.

An even more fundamental consideration is whether the Walter bill, in the process of getting at the Communists, would not do violence to something very precious in the American system. Traditional American freedoms have always been construed to include the right to believe in anything one chooses, be it the McKinley tariff or Karl Marx. There is nothing to prevent the close surveillance of Communists and prosecution at the first sign of overt subversive action. But the question Americans should be asking themselves is whether the Communist menace, alarming as it is, constitutes a sufficiently clear and present danger in this country to warrant depriving any group of citizens of rights that all free Americans should possess without question.

Treasury Shakeup

In its report on the Treasury Department the Hoover Commission goes too far in mere juggling of boxes in the organization charts. To the extent that its proposals conform to the central principle of shifting bureaus and divisions in accord with well-defined functional lines, the report merits as much support as most of its predecessors have done. Some of the shifts favored by a majority of the commission members, however, seem to us to fly into the face of an orderly division of functions.

The proposal to transfer the Treasury's nonfiscal activities to other agencies seems to make sense. These include, to be sure, some of the best managed segments of the executive branch. But there is no reason why these agencies should not function with even greater efficiency if shifted to some other department to which their activities are more closely allied. The Bureau of Federal Supply clearly belongs in the Office of General Services proposed by the Hoover Commission to take over the procurement of supplies. The Coast Guard has a closer relation to the Commerce Department than to the fiscal functions that would be left in the Treasury, and the fact that four-fifths of the work of the Bureau of Narcotics is law-enforcement would fully justify its transfer to the Department of Justice.

The weakness of the report lies in its proposals to move the Export-Import Bank, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation into the Treasury. The independence of these agencies is bad in theory, since it leaves them virtually without supervision. But that is not a good reason for merging them into a department to which they have no clear-cut functional relation. The State Department, rather than the Treasury, has itched for years to get control over the Export-Import Bank; its diplomatic dealings with some foreign countries might be smoother if they could be lubricated by well-timed loans. Yet Congress set up the Export-Import Bank to make loans which offer "a reasonable assurance of repayment." If Congress wanted to place a huge fund at the disposal of the Secretary of State for diplomatic purposes—and there might be good reasons for doing so—it should not prescribe banking standards in the process. The Hoover Commission fails to offer a convincing reason for putting the competently managed Export-Import Bank into the Treasury, nor does it do so for the RFC.

Although the accounting procedures of the Government are chaotic, and probably would take ten years of study and effort to remedy, we suspect that the Hoover Commission's device of setting up an "Accountant General" in the Treasury would give the Government two Comptrollers General, when one is quite enough. Some of the proposed internal changes would be an improvement, notably the merger of the field offices of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs. But the report appears to us to recommend entirely too much juggling of agencies merely for the sake of juggling.

The Great Illusion

The People Know Best, a little book by Morris Ernst and David Loth, is likely to have a searchlight rather than a bombshell effect. It is in a sense a post-mortem on the election of Harry Truman. More than that, it is a probing analysis of how and why the press, the columnists, the radio commentators, and the polls went so far wrong on the outcome. Most of all, and most importantly, it examines the threat to freedom of opinion and of truth in American democracy that could arise from the great disillusionment.

The first reaction of a public that had upset the confident predictions of the pundits and the polls was to laugh at their discomfiture. And the first reaction of those who misjudged the people was astonished humility. Actually neither reaction went very deep. The basic revelation of the election was that the purveyors of information and the molders of opinion had been so far removed from the people that they had signally failed to have any influence. And from this the next step could easily be a deepening of cynicism among the people about the facts and opinions offered them in print and on the air.

The responsibility for seeing that such a consequence does not flow from what has happened is twofold, the authors believe. The people must be neither gullible nor cynical, but questioning. A constant demand for knowledge of facts as facts, opinions as opinions, for the grounds of any interpretation and the biases that sway it, are essential on the one hand. On the other hand, the media of information and opinion must themselves come down to solid earth. "We have a right," say the authors speaking on behalf of the people, "to expect that men and women who have taken upon themselves the formidable responsibility for molding our thinking should make themselves so clear that we can easily distinguish their facts from their opinions."

This is a challenge we think most of the press is anxious to meet. We hope the radio is, too. It is vital not merely for the continuance of our own freedom to print the best paper our judgment and ability permits. It is vital for the freedom of our readers and of our entire society to live and think for themselves.

Pressure On Iran

Drew Pearson, in his column published on March 11, says that Ambassador John Wiley at Tehran thinks that the next Soviet move will be in Iran. That possibility, Pearson says, is behind "feverish American plans to fortify Iran."

There certainly can be no such plans. If there were and if they were carried out, the Soviets would have a right under the Soviet-Persian Agreement of 1921 to send Soviet armed forces into Iran. Thus, the "fortification" of Iran would precipitate the very disaster that we should try to prevent.

If Pearson uses the word "fortify" to mean arm, we should keep in mind that we have already given Iran substantial quantities of military equipment on extremely generous terms. It was reported in the press on February 9 that an American shipment of arms had arrived at the Iranian port of Bandar Shahpur on the Persian Gulf. There is no reason to believe that any further arming of Iran would protect that unhappy country from the Soviet Union. With growing indications that such measures have failed in Iran, can we wisely or safely send more of our military resources down the Persian drain?

It is suggested that the State Department might give thought to three possible measures to meet the Iranian situation: (1) a guarantee, if feasible an international one, designed to safeguard Iran from foreign aggression and calculated to reduce, rather than increase, the chances of war starting in the Iranian area; (2) an immediate protest by Iran or the United States or both to the United Nations, based on alleged interferences by the Soviets in Iran's internal affairs and calling for an investigation on the ground by a U. N. commission; and (3) insistence by the United States that the Iranian government do as much as it can without delay to remove those conditions, political, governmental and administrative, which contribute to popular unrest and stand in the way of Iran's proposed program of economic development. There are things that Iran can do to help herself.

Teacher College Merger

The March 10 report of a speech by Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of the American University, deserves notice by thinking citizens.

Dr. Douglass sensibly proposed that a merging of white and Negro teachers' colleges should be considered as a step toward "creating unity of the human family in Washington."

Merging on the teacher training level commends itself on several points. First of all, the economic advantage is obvious. Second, the attitudes created in the teachers through working together in preparation will bring about appreciation and understanding as no amount of talking about this matter can.

Third, one takes it as axiomatic that the purpose of education for all is the preparation of students for intelligent living as well-prepared, educated citizens. This purpose is identical in both teachers' colleges. It cannot come about entirely so long as the very source of the teacher's preparation denies its basic principle—that of the unity of the human family.

GRACE S. YAUKEY.
Bethesda.

I should like to applaud this approach to a serious problem, but also to point out serious inconsistency. Dr. Douglass' own college of arts and sciences does not permit Negroes to register.

The school of social sciences and public affairs does permit Negroes to register; thus, the two divisions of the American University lack a common program concerning the admission of Negro students.

Issei Citizenship

Regarding my article on the naturalization of Oriental aliens in The Washington Post of March 13, I should like to correct an error in the title. It should have read: "45,000 Issei Look to the Senate" instead of "45,000 Nisei Look to the Senate." The word "Nisei," which was substituted in error by the editors for "Issei," actually refers to an American-born person of Japanese ancestry. He is already a citizen.

In one sense the title was correct, for the Nisei does look to the Senate to correct the outstanding fault of our naturalization laws—the racial bar that prevents his Issei parents (foreign-born persons of Japanese ancestry) from attaining American citizenship. Only Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), as chairman of the two-man Senate subcommittee on Immigration and Naturalization, stands between citizenship for 45,000 Issei and their continued alien status.

Value Of Vivisection

In response to the letter on vivisection by Mrs. Charles E. Russell in the March 10 issue, will she kindly answer the following questions:

What are the names of these "enlightened medical authorities" who state that "experimentation on other animals has no value whatever in curing or decreasing human ills?"

What accounts for the remarkable decrease in cases of diphtheria and smallpox over a period of, say, the last 20 years? Has she ever heard of the "ferret," that little animal which is used for the development of distemper vaccine and has, thereby, prevented death in so many pet dogs from this dreaded disease?

Whatever could have happened to rabies in recent years, and how is ths disease prevented? Should a law be passed forbidding all vaccinations? Does cancer in the dog, for instance, differ from cancer in the human? If she were severely burned, would she appreciate safe intravenous fluids? Or does she not know that animals are used to detect toxic substances in all batches of such fluids?

Does she know that the new insulin preparations save the lives of some people who might have died as a result of old insulin preparations? Does she think that all the knowledge about heart stimulants and similar drugs is now known; that no new findings can come of further experimentation? By what means were antibiotics and the sulfa drugs developed, by studies on humans?

Restrictive Covenants

In your issue of February 27 was a letter dealing with "restrictive covenants." The writer of that letter in part stated that white residents "fear the influx of the lower classes of colored residents and the social problems that might entail."

Are we then to assume that in those areas where restrictive covenants exist the people who abide by them are usually composed of the middle class or upper class of whites; that only the lower class of colored residents attempt to move into neighborhoods covered with restrictive covenants; that the social problems which might be entailed are to be ignored and avoided instead of being approached with constructive ideas?

Most of the restrictive covenants I have seen included clauses against Indians and Jews also. Are we to believe that only whites can live peaceably together irrespective of individual income, character traits, and racial strains.

The Federation of Citizens Associations and the Board of Trade were not elected by public poll or vote to express the thoughts of the true Washingtonians. They are neither social workers or sociologists and are not competent enough to say, without attempting a series of experiments, what would happen to values, morals, inhibitions, and human nature if people were given the opportunity to understand each other.

Easy Paroles

Bold headlines in nearly every issue of the daily newspapers shock us with the latest in a series of brutal assaults, rapings, and killings. Frequently not a dozen editions later a capture of a fiend is announced.

Many of these desperadoes have only recently been paroled from our penal institutions, to which they had been sentenced for perpetrating crimes equally as violent as the latest. Are our prisons becoming so filled with criminals that the States cannot afford to feed them, and thereupon release them upon the slightest of pretexts so as to make room for a new influx of prisoners?

Seemingly our juries are too easily swayed by the brilliant rhetoric of defense attorneys, rendering a "not guilty" verdict in too many instances, and too often abhorring the extreme penalty—capital punishment. Is there any wonder then that scores of individuals will take a chance with the law, knowing that they can engage the services of "the lawyer who has never lost a case"?

Many of them may have lost the case at the bar of justice, but they have won an early parole for their client later. And, without methods of enforcing the parollee to trod the straight and narrow path in his future, nothing stands in his way toward committing more car-stealing, housebreaking, armed robberies, assaults, rapes, and murders.

Arms For Europe

Discussion is on in Washington, concerning the spending of two billions of good American dollars, to rearm western Europe. It would be shameful extravagance if we rearmed any country that has an economy which is not strictly capitalistic.

It seems to me that if we really have this extra two billion to spare, we should make ourselves that much stronger. Then if Russia started anything, we could act directly with this two billion dollar's worth.

A Policy For Germany

FOR AT least two years, the State Department has been planning to take over administration of the American zone of occupied Germany. The State Department planners have so long been on the outside looking in that they cannot bring themselves to believe this miracle will come to pass.

Yet once again they are dusting off and refurbishing the organization charts and the detailed plans. And this time there is some reason to hope that civilians may ultimately determine and administer German policy which has up until now been largely determined by the military.

One reason for the new hope is the presence in the State Department of Robert Murphy at the head of a Division of German and Austrian Affairs. Murphy has been sitting for four years at General Clay's right hand in Berlin. He knows the problem thoroughly and he has the confidence of military men who would, of course, continue to have an important role in the occupation.

Whether Murphy in Washington as a civilian administrator in Berlin could reverse the trend of the past year is a question. Decisions have been taken by former Undersecretary of Army William Draper in the Pentagon building and Clay in Berlin that seem to commit this country for a long way into the future.

THERE IS a growing and unhappy conviction in this country that United States policy means the return of German industry to former Nazi owners. This seemed to be confirmed in the recent announcement of the 12 Germans nominated to supervise the great industrial complex of the Ruhr.

Several of these men served the Nazis as managers of German steel and coal when Hitler was pushing every blast furnace to the utmost limit for rearmament. It may be argued that they are not technically the former "owners" of German industry. Nor are they members of the Krupp family.

But often in a large corporate structure, management exerts more influence than ownership. The answer Clay and his advisers is that only men with management and technical skill can restore Ruhr production.

What is little known in this country, however, is that the German trade unions sent in their own list of nominees who were comparatively free of the taint of having worked for the Nazis. There are indications that the State Department favored this list.

It is a significant fact that the 12 men nominated by the Bizonal Economic Council have not yet been approved by the three military governors—General Clay and his opposite British and French numbers. The loud opposition from the United States may have something to do with the delay since Clay announced on February 26 that the decision would be taken in a week or 10 days.

THE TIME has come, it seems to me, to organize American public opinion behind a really democratic policy for Germany; a policy that would win the allegiance of the German people and not just a few managers at the top. There are signs that Secretary of State Dean Acheson wants to institute such a policy.

A Nation-wide conference on foreign policy would be extremely useful to Acheson and to the country. Such a conference would bring together representatives of labor, the farm organizations, the cooperatives and a wide band of independent groups representing important sections of public opinion.

The first move before such a gathering would be to review the steps that have led to the present impasse. Then it would be the duty of the conference to formulate a positive approach to the German problem. Acheson himself would in all probability want to come and address such a representative assembly.

The conference would not necessarily be restricted to Germany. The whole course of United States foreign policy could be reviewed and appraised. The educational value of such a meeting, in terms of public opinion and understanding, could not be estimated.

Too long we have been put off with guesses and half answers. What is more, no policy-maker, however strong his intentions, can move much beyond public opinion. The kind of gathering proposed here could be expected to back Acheson in a new approach to Germany.

As is all too apparent in Congress today, the promises and counter-promises on campaign are quickly forgotten. A little reminder, spelled out in terms of popular conviction, is in order.

Finding The Way

The complaint of the Congressman whom Mr. Childs quotes (March 9) that he had had no guidance on legislation and was not even told where the men's room was is somewhat disturbing.

In spite of the men of American men for management and mothering, pointed out by some of the critics of our society, there are still quite a few things that men, even Congressmen, must find out for themselves. Where they stand on legislation and the location of the men's room are only two of them.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Secret Russo-German Negotiation

A BIG STORY, originating in the British zone of Germany through Reuters, the British news agency, has just reached this country. It reports a meeting, held in "extreme secrecy," of west German conservative economic and political leaders with the former German Ambassador in Moscow, Rudolf Nadolny, who lives in the Soviet zone and "has been used in the past by the Soviet military administration for compromise offers to the west."

LIPPMANN

The Reuters dispatch, which would not normally have been filed without the assent of the British authorities, says that the meeting took place in the home of Dr. Andreas Hermes, former leader of the Christian Democratic Union and now head of the farmers' organizations in the western zones. The report states that the conference was attended by Dr. Hermann Puender, the chief German executive of the Anglo-American bizonal administration, by Prof. Ludwig Erhard, bizonal Director of Economic Affairs, and that about a dozen of the "leading political and industrial figures from the Anglo-American and the French zones" were invited.

IT IS important to note that Hermes, Puender, and Erhard are key figures in western Germany, that they are conservatives, not only anti-Communist but a good long way to the right of the Socialists, and that they are in very good standing with our military authorities. It is also important to note that their secret meeting with a German diplomat of prewar days was disclosed by the semi-official British news agency.

Finally we must note that, according to the dispatch, the invitation to the conference said that "political developments in the last few months have given rise to the fear that the splitting up of our fatherland may not remain provisional but may become permanent or at least long term."

IT IS difficult to believe that this story is untrue. A responsible agency like Reuters operating under British military government would not file an unverified dispatch containing such unqualified and sensational statements of fact. The story is, moreover, quite credible in that sooner or later negotiations of this kind between the west and east Germans were in the nature of things bound to take place.

For the idea, so assiduously cultivated by the German inexperts, that the west Germans will, because they are anti-Communist, line up obediently, tamely, and gratefully for the cold war, is and always has been the most dangerous kind of self-delusion. The Germans, especially the conservative Germans, who have been so abnormally nationalistic and patriotic for generations would, if this official mythology were true, now have become suddenly abnormally unnationalistic and unpatriotic. They would, indeed, be lacking in ordinary human self-interest if they did not make the most of the fact that the cold war which divides Germany is at once an extreme danger and an immense opportunity.

THE DANGER, of course, is that if war broke out, it would be in Germany both a civil war and an international war. In the civil war whoever captured a city or a village would hang or shoot his opponents. As for the international war, the Germans have undoubtedly been reading the earnest, but remarkably naive, discussions as to whether Europe is to be defended with 10, with 20, or with 30 divisions on the Rhine or the Loire, or the Pyrenees.

Even if they have heard the suggestion, as they have, that German military manpower is worth thinking about too, they cannot fail to have noticed that western Germany between the Elbe and the Rhine is the appointed battlefield and a principal target area.

TO SUPPOSE that the Germans will do nothing about this—especially when they are to have a constitution, a government, elections, and officials dependent upon German votes,—is to suppose the impossible. The instinct of self-preservation alone would impel them to do what the Reuters dispatch says they are doing—namely, to open up their own negotiations with the Russians for that settlement which the Soviet government and the Western powers seem to be incapable of reaching.

No doubt the Western powers can still prevent the Germans and the Russians from coming to terms. The Reuters dispatch, exposing this secret conference, may interrupt the negotiations. But somehow or other they will be resumed because both the Russians and the Germans have each so much to gain, each so much to offer the other.

HERR NADOLNY, the German diplomat from the Soviet zone, is said to be a member of the so-called Nauheim Kreis—an organization of German conservatives which has headquarters in western Germany. The public proposals of the Nauheim Kreis are that Germany as a whole shall by an international treaty and by its own constitution be established as a neutralized, unarmed, unfortified, inviolate, federal state. This proposal, which exists in the form of a draft treaty, has been favorably commented upon in a German newspaper of the Soviet zone which is an organ of the Red army.

We may expect to hear more of this in the future. It is, I think, reasonable to assume that in the secret conversations which are now taking place between the Russians and the Germans they must be discussing what would happen if the Western powers agree to negotiate on the basis of this proposal, and also what the Germans and the Russians will do if the Western powers refuse.

MY OWN guess is that German-Russian negotiations will surely go on anyway. But if we refuse to negotiate on a four-power basis for the neutralization and evacuation of Germany, the German-Russian negotiations will be accelerated and will acquire increasing momentum under the pressure of the German voters and the politicians who appeal to them. Our refusal will identify us with partition, with occupation, and with the use of Germany as a battlefield, and our position would be, as respects propaganda, hopeless. It would undermine fatally the occupation, and destroy not only our control but our influence in Germany.

If, on the other hand, being adequately prepared and with astute men to represent us, we accept the negotiation for an all-German settlement, we can then still hope to exercise a sufficient influence upon the settlement. Then, but only then when we are not identified with partition, occupation, and the danger of war, will the ideological pull of the West against the East, the fear of Russia, the economic dependence of western Germany, and the prospect of being readmitted into civilized society, work in our favor.

Off The Record

Postlude

High Artistry Is Shown By Curzon

Clifford Curzon, playing last night in Constitution Hall, did for piano music of the nineteenth century that for which it has long been waiting.

He played it with complete respect for the great personalities who created it, with penetrating musicianship and with sensational craftsmanship. It is fashionable these days, if lacking in intelligence, to decry the writings of Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann and Liszt, as old-fashioned, over romantic, urduly sentimental.

Curzon, a new personality on our concert stages, plays the piano as we remember Josef Hofmann, Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Harold Bauer playing it. He yields no tribute to distortion in phrasing. He does not linger over notes longer than the composer requests. But his playing is infused with a poetic sense of line. Inner voices respond to his skilled fingers. The larger shape of works he plays emerges clearly, in proper proportion.

Schumann's nearly forgotten G Minor Sonata was revived in wizard-like manner, but its slow movement sang like the real Lied that it is. Schubert, Brahms and Chopin fell from Curzon's fingers in exquisite succession.

Franz Liszt's tremendous sonata closed the program. It was delivered in the most hair-raising way possible within bounds of absolute rectitude. Curzon realizes one of the prime problems in modern piano playing: he knows that the top tones of any piano are far lighter than those in the middle and lower register. He adjusted his dynamics in the Liszt to this fact, even as he handled its prodigious demands.

Even so, we venture to presume that his playing of this same work will achieve a certain greater breadth in coming years. This could come to best advantage in the rapid sections in B minor. Otherwise the sonata seemed to have met its second contemporary master, Vladimir Horowitz being the other.

A further measure of Curzon's artistry came in encores, by Scarlatti, Poulenc, and was it Liszt? A large audience greeted the newcomer with increasing enthusiasm and finally with cheers. We shall be most happy to see Clifford Curzon return frequently.

Senator Asks U. S. Subsidies For Hospitals

Federal subsidies for hospitals and community dental care programs for children were urged yesterday as alternatives to the proposed Federal compulsory compulsory health insurance program.

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), said "the place for the Federal Government to start is in subsidizing hospitals on a per-patient-bed basis."

The Senator, a dentist, spoke at the opening luncheon of the Post-graduate Clinic being sponsored by the D. C. Dental Society at the Shortham Hotel.

He joined Dr. Clyde E. Minges, president of the American Dental Association, another luncheon speaker, in opposing the proposed Government-health insurance plan. The cost of this program could be as high as 18 per cent of the total payrolls of the country, Sen. Hunt declared.

Dr. Minges called for community programs to make preventive dental care and treatment available to all children.

The ADA president, who termed the proposed compulsory insurance plan a "political, rather than scientific approach," also advocated more dental research, and said the funds provided for such research by the National Institute of Health were "inadequate." He also spoke for a Federal Department of Health.

Senator Hunt also announced he is sponsoring a bill to make the Army Dental Corps autonomous and not subject to Medical Corps administration and decisions.

Administration of dental health services in the Veterans' Administration, as well, should be the right and duty of dental officers rather than medical officers, he declared. Everything done in the VA dental service has to be approved by medical officers now, he declared.

Other speakers were Dr. Harold Hillenbrand, ADA general secretary; Dr. Edward D. Leifer, president of the D. C. Dental Society, and Dr. John A. O'Keefe, chairman of the clinic.

Scientific sessions are scheduled for today and Wednesday. Panel discussions on oral surgery and children's dentistry and 11 registered clinics will be held.

10-Cent Tax Rise Is Asked

The Fairfax County School Board last night voted to ask for a 10 cent tax rate increase next year to help build six four-room schools.

The increase would bring in about $50,000, board members said. It would be added to $220,000 which the board has set aside to put up small unfinished buildings around the county where most needed.

The budget now goes to the Fairfax board of supervisors, which will hold a public hearing on the entire county budget next month.

The fiscal year starts July 1 and the budget must be adopted before May 1.

If the request is approved it will increase the county tax rate from $3.19 to $3.29 for each $100 assessed valuation.

Citizens Group Asks Study of Strayer Report

The American University Park Citizens Association last night voted to ask the Federation of Citizens Association to study the Strayer School Report for possible action.

In its meeting at Hurst Hall, American University campus, the association asked that a committee make a two-fold study of the report to become better informed on its contents and to implement action along lines approved by the federation.

The action followed a discussion and analysis of the report by Dr. M. Virginia O'Neil, supervisor of student teaching at Wilson Teachers College and the federation's second vice president. Dr. O'Neil emphasized that she was not speaking in an official capacity, but rather as a "citizen-teacher."

Dr. O'Neil urged concerted citizen action to "get behind the report." She cited the "tremendous" changes in the California school system following publication of a similar report there.

Rhode Island Avenue

The Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association yesterday sent a letter to Traffic Director George E. Keneipp requesting a "prompt" reply on why nothing has been done about putting up a traffic light at the intersection of Eastern and Rhode Island aves. ne.

The Association, which made a request for the light in January, 1948, has written twice to Keneipp in recent months about the situation but has received no reply, an officer of the Association said.

When asked about the matter, Keneipp said a letter will be sent to the Association explaining that since the first communication, in January, 1948, which was answered within two days of receipt, the problem of putting up the light has not changed.

Traffic at the intersection justifies a signal light, and one will be placed there as soon as possible, he said. But the intersection in question is one of about 40 listed as needing lights. The Department's budget allows for putting up only 6 or 7 lights a year, since installation costs about $2500 at an intersection.

Glover Park

The operator of the new five digit dial system was explained to a meeting of the Glover Park Citizens Association last night by Wells Thompson of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The telephone company also provided a vocal trio for entertainment. Members of the trio were Steve Cassola, Orville Taylor and Ed Cee.

Burleith

The injection of "milky disease spore powder" into the ground was prescribed last night as an effective method cutting down Japanese beetles.

The powder, by destroying the beetle grub, would decimate the bothersome pests, said Dr. Bennett A. Porter of the Department of Agriculture at a meeting of the Burleith Citizens Association, but there is no known method of completely eradicating them.

The meeting at the Gordon Junior High School was attended by more than 100 persons including visitors from the Georgetown Progressive and Foxhall Village Citizens Associations.

Takoma Park

The Takoma Park Citizens Association last night went on record as favoring the reappointment of John Russell Young as District Commissioner.

At a meeting at the Takoma Park Library, 5th and Cedar sts. nw., the group also voted to favor the proposed $330 retroactive pay increase for District firemen, teachers and policemen and to ask the city for construction of sidewalks along Blair rd. between Aspen and 4th sts. nw. Eight persons were present at the meeting.

Ivy City

Charles H. Houston, Washington attorney, was indorsed last night by the Ivy City Civic Association for District Commissioner. The association met in the Alexander Crummell School, Gallaudet st. and Central pl. ne.

Garfield-Douglas Heights

The Rev. Stephen G. Spottswood, president of the Washington branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, last night said his organization was committed to the complete integration of the Negro into all phases of American life.

The NAACP, he said at a meeting of the Garfield-Douglas Heights Citizens Association, is committed to fair employment practices legislation, and the eradication of segreation in the Nation's Capital.

The 75 members at the meeting in the Turner School, Stanton and Alabama sts. se., indorsed Attorney Charles H. Houston for District Commissioner.

Northeast Boundary

The Northeast Boundary Citizens Association last night made plans to ask the Board of Education to send a committee to Congress demanding restoration of funds in the 1950 District budget for the construction of the Spingarn High School.

The 45 members present at the meeting in the Burville School, Division ave. and Bell pl., also indorsed Charles H. Houston, Washington attorney, for District Commissioner.

Bills Attack Montgomery Board Setup

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 14—A two-way legislative assault against the Governor's appointive authority in Montgomery County held the attention of Maryland State legislators tonight.

The two controversial measures would set up an elected school board in the county, and place the appointive authority for the Montgomery Liquor Control Board in the hands of the Montgomery County Council.

Members of both boards now are appointed by the Governor.

Bearing an unfavorable report of the House judiciary committee, the elective school board bill was expected to be presented to the full House Tuesday. Its defeat has been forecast.

Liquor Bill Attacked

Defeat of the liquor bill was urged today in a letter received by Senator George W. Della (Baltimore) from two attorneys for the Liquor Control Board and the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commisison.

Della is chairman of the Senate judiciary committee currently considering the legislation.

In adidtion to transferring appointive authority for the liquor board, the legislation also would transfer title of the liquor building in Silver Spring from the liquor board to the council.

The attorneys, James W. Gill and J. Bond Smith, both Democratic leaders in the county, charged in the letter to Della that "the plain palpable objective of the legislation is to vest further powers in the county council beyond those vested by the constitution."

Republican Move Cited

Citing defeat last week of a move by the Republican county legislative delegation to transfer major functions of the Planning Commission to the county council, the attorneys accused the county lawmakers of trying now to "harass" both the Park and Planning Commission and the liquor board. The Park and Planning Commission is housed in the liquor building.

Advised of the letter's contents, Senator Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery), who sponsored the measure pointed out that both the liquor building title and appointive powers were held by the former Democratic county commissioners from 1933 to 1945.

Declaring his measure would "take politics out of liquor," he pointed out that the bill provides that no more than three of the five liquor board members shall belong to the same political party.

Vehicle, Boat Bids Opened in Salvage Sale

Bids ranging from $93.75 for a wartime boat to $440 for a 1942 pickup truck were opened at a Bolling Air Force Base salvage sale yesterday.

It was a strictly "as is" sale of 16 motor vehicles, while the boat was motorless, said Lieut. Donald Baer, salvage officer, who added that all bids will have to be sent to the Area Contracting Officer in Middletown, Pa., for approval.

High bids were $100 and $150, respectively, for two 1941 Plymouth sedans; $300 for a 1940 Buick sedan; $216 to $440 for 11 1942 Ford half-ton pickup trucks; $131 for a 1943 15-passenger Ford bus, and $181 for a 1942 Chevrolet half-ton caryall.

Successful bidders will be notified, probably in about two weeks.

Anna 'Sistie' Seagraves Is Expectant Mother

Portland, Ore., March 14 (U.P.)—Mrs. Anna Eleanor Boettiger Seagraves, 21, once known to the Nation as "Sistie," said today she was expecting a baby "some time this summer." This will make Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President, a great-grandmother.

Mrs. Seagraves, wife of Van H. Seagraves, a Portland salesman, is the eldest granddaughter of the Roosevelts. She is the daughter of Mrs. John Boettiger. She took the name Boettiger following her mother's divorce from New York broker, Curtis Dahl, and her marriage to newspaperman Boettiger.

U. S. Industrial Titans Report Record Nets

By S. Oliver Goodman

Titans of American industry yesterday revealed their results for 1948, generally showing records for sales and net income. Among them were:

General Motors Corp., with net income of $440,447,724, equal to $9.72 a common share. This compared with a 1947 net of $287,991,373, or $6.24 a share. Sales hit a record high of $4,701,770,340, compared with $3,815,159,163 for 1947.

Texas Co., with net income of $165,980,930, or $12.03 a common share. This compared with 1947 net of $106,312,617, or $7.90 a share.

Pennsylvania Railroad, with net of $34,429,934, equal to $2.28 a common share. This compared with 1947 net of $7,285,125 or 20 cents a share. Operating revenues of $999,982,900 compared with $903,268,089 in 1947.

International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., with net of $39,108,404, or $2.55 a common share. This compared with 1947 net of $33,503,466, or $2.16 a share. Net sales of $197,021,736 compared with $17,480,168.

Celanese Corp. of America with net of $39,484,000 or $6.61 a common share. This compares with 1947 net of $24,173,417 or $3.83 a share. Sales of $230,384,672 compared with $181,083,608 in 1947.

Borden Co. with net of $19,179,427 or $4.46 a common share. This compared with 1947 net of $19,793,276 or $4.61 a share. Sales last year rose 7.7 per cent to $649,592,375.

Skelly Oil Co., with net of $38,914,350, or $36.04 a common share. This compared with 1947 net of $21,090,936, or $21.59 a share.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Charles W. Van Horn, vice president in charge of operation and maintenance for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, retires today after a 52-year railroad career. He will be succeeded by William C. Baker . . . Frederick A. Potts, president of the Philadelphia National Bank, has been named treasurer of the newly formed National Committee for the International Trade Organization. Routine operations of the group will be conducted from Washington by Charles R. Weaver as executive assistant to the chairman . . . Robert G. Ferguson has been named treasurer of Pan American Airways.

Van Horn

JEWELERS ELECT—New officers of the Greater Washington Retail Jewelers Association, Inc., are George Falkenstein, president; Robert King, vice president; Sol Lynn, secretary, and Harry Koenigsberg, treasurer. The association recently went on record as opposing legislation that would regulate the practice of optometry in the District of Columbia.

MEETINGS: Martin I. Scott, president of American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, will address the local chapter at a luncheon Wednesday in Army and Navy Club . . . Herman C. Heiser of Crown Can Co. will be speaker Wednesday night at a dinner meeting of Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants in Lafayette Hotel . . . In addition to nominating six new directors, D. C. Life Underwriters Association will hear Nathan P. Paulus at a morning session Thursday in the Commerce Department auditorium.

NEW CAMPAIGN: The greatest peacetime bond campaign will start May 16. It will be known as the "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive" and much of the promotion will urge people to go to banks to buy bonds, according to Harry L. Merrick, chairman of the promotion section of the District Savings Bond Division. "District banks by cooperating with the bond program," Merrick said, "are making an indispensable contribution to the economic health of the community and have been largely responsible for the almost 600 million dollars in buying power . . . already stored up by local bond buyers."

ORDERS: Outstanding orders of Washington department stores on January 31 were 44 per cent less than on the same date last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Goods on hand on the same date were 4 per cent less. January sales here were 2 per cent improved over the same 1948 month, while the Fifth Reserve District showed a 1 per cent dip in the same period.

EXCESS RECORDS: The bogie of excess record-keeping will be faced tonight by members of the Washington Chapter of the National Office Management Association. At a panel session starting at 7:30 in the Dodge Hotel, members will be told how to avoid the red tape of Government and of private business that keeps too many useless records, bogging down production with paper work.

New York Cotton

New York, March 14 (AP).—Cotton futures turned firm in late dealings today on aggressive short covering and mill buying. News that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had recommended that the ECA be granted full funds it seeks for the next 15 months influenced the upturn. The appropriations would cover a large volume of cotton exports. There has been some agitation for a cut in the program. Final prices were 20 cents a bale lower to 45 cents a bale higher, with the new-crop months leading the advance.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Grains ended mixed with price changes small on the Board of Trade today. During the session wheat acted weakest, oats steadiest and corn the most undecided.

Duplicating the action of most days last week, the market started out on a weak note. Losses in wheat and corn ran to more than a cent. Local traders were mostly bearish. But, also as happened several times last week, prices edged a little higher as the day wore on.

At the close wheat was ½ to ⅝ cent lower than Saturday, corne was ¼ lower to ¼ cent higher, oats were ⅜ to ⅝ cents higher, rye was ¾ to 1 cent lower, soybeans were ¼ to ¾ lower and lard was 15 to 22 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Stole Truck, $5000 in Wire To Make $175, Man Admits

A 26-year-old man admitted in court yesterday that he stole $5000 worth of copper wire, burned the insulation off, and sold the metal—in a truck he stole to set up operations.

He was held for the Prince Georges County grand jury.

John G. Thomas, 1000 60th ave., Fairmount Heights, was bound over by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court under $5000 bond after pleading guilty to:

Stealing a truck February 27, driving it across the street and loading it with wire looted from a construction company, burning the insulation off, and selling the copper in Baltimore.

Detective Richard A. Pearson testified that Thomas stole the truck from a cinder block firm in Beaver Heights. Then, he told the court, Thomas broke into the nearby construction company four different times and carried off wire valued at more than $5000. He sold it to a Baltimore junk dealer for a total of $175, Pearson said.

Thomas was caught the fifth time he visited the construction company—about 2 a. m. Saturday—by County Police Pvts. James H. Burgess and William F. Little, it was testified. Police went there after a report came that a man had crawled over the firm's fence.

He was charged with auto theft and four counts of breaking and entering. The truck was recovered in a wooded section near Fairmount Heights, police said.

St. Patrick's Fete Set

The annual St. Patrick's celebration of the Silver Spring (Md.) Board of Trade will be observed with a "Ladies Nite" dinner and dance Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at Indian Spring Country Club, Colesville rd.

Lake Charles (Louisiana) Gas Line System . . . Plancor 1118

This gas line system is a going concern offering a profitable investment opportunity. It is offered for sale on a "where is, as is" basis, for use in place and for continuing operation.

This offer, identical with that advertised in January with a cut-off date of February 10, 1949, establishes a new cut-off date of April 18, 1949.

THE PROPERTY consists of about 100 miles of gas transmission lines of varying diameter, three tracts of land totaling 4.827 acres and right-of-way strip for the entire length of the system. Other improvements include metering stations, dehydration stations, a two-way radio system and miscellaneous buildings. There are no compressor stations, since well pressure is used to propel the gas.

Pipe is high-pressure welded steel, coated and installed through the Louisiana Parishes of Calcasieu and Jefferson Davis and into Cameron and Acadia Parishes. Most of the line is 10, 12 and 16-inch pipe, with some 6, 8, 14 and 20-inch. This well-built line has received first-class maintenance at all times and has been a consistent net income producer.

LOCATION. Starting near the city of Lake Charles, this line extends to Woodlawn, North Tepetate, Lakeside and Chalkley. It serves a group of well-diversified industrial plants and is capable of serving others placed in its distribution scheme.

The line takes gas from six different suppliers and there are additional potential sources. Gas supply contracts range in terms up to 25 years, with renewal options and renegotiation clauses in the contracts.

SEALED BIDS for the purchase of this line will be received at the Washington, D. C. address below until 2:00 P.M., E.S.T., April 18, 1949, at which time all sealed proposals will be publicly opened and read. Interested parties will be given every opportunity to inspect the property and study engineering reports and other pertinent data. One on the Aisle—

Odets Too Angry At Film Capital

By Richard L. Coe

CLIFFORD ODETS, one of the theater's "white hopes" a decade ago, has come back from Hollywood feeling, I regret to report, too sorry for himself to have written a good play.

The first Odets play in some seasons stars John Garfield at New York's National Theater, which you might call the Natural National. This is "The Big Knife" and concerns the self-destructive quality of Hollywood, a beehive it treats with the seriousness usually lacking in plays about filmland. Unfortunately, Odets is still too angry about Hollywood and its mores to have achieved a perspective. I've an idea "The Big Knife" would have been a far better play had he not tackled the subject until he'd reaccustomed himself to the less blatant air of the theater.

For though "The Big Knife" has some fine individual scenes and the forceful Garfield is a particularly able performer, it fails to hold one's patience as a play.

The immediate reason for this is the self-pitying hero. He is a film star riding the crest of popularity. He's fawned on in all the horrible petty ones with which humanity rewards the successful, and he's treated as a chattel by the head of the vast studio, who insists he sign another seven-year contract. The playwright tells us that this will threaten his marriage, but the marriage he shows us doesn't seem as if it would be stable in any other setting, either. The studio's hold on the star lies in the fact that during a drunken ride the young man had killed a child. A publicity man took the rap for this, but the studio threatens to expose the true facts and so "ruin" the star's career unless he agrees to stay on as a money-maker.

Puppets, Not People

Now this story may well happen in real life and I've little doubt that the Hollywood characters Odets sketches are probably as inhuman as some of the real ones. But he by no means convinces you that these people are real. They serve only as puppets for his spleen against a colony that disgusts him.

So one loses patience with the play and its hero. There is no reason, for instance, why the hero should be able to talk so incisively about this tragedy yet do nothing about it. This is, of course, the point of Odets' tirade, but you don't accept it.

For the lines are often unbelievably corny, just the way they are in movie scripts: "Are we really at the end?" "You've gone and blown up the bridges." And the situations are so broadly painted, so overblown, that one feels Odets has been too long in Hollywood to understand that audiences do not have to be branded with a hot poker to understand a point. Indeed, it seem that the very vulgarity about which Odets complains has become a part of his own approach.

The production itself is finely done. It is certainly true of the contemporary American theater that the acting and production details are vastly superior to most of the scripts they try to bring to life.

Group Theater Reunion

Of the supporting company, I was particularly impressed with Joan McCracken. The onetime dancer who stepped to fame as 'The Girl Who Falls Down" in "Oklahoma!" plays one of those starlets whose pictures are standbys in the movie magazines but who rarely hits the screen itself. The character is a pawn in the plot, but Miss McCracken plays her with such gentle understanding and childlike grace that it is the most believable of Odets' gallery.

As always, it is a pleasure to see Garfield at work. It would be interesting, though, to see if he couldn't grow from his present stature, much as Miss McCracken has grown from her elfin past, into an actor capable of playing something other than the New York kid who does'nt know what to do with his riches. He has mastered the mixture of angry self-pity; now let him find a role which he will have to act, not characterize.

Another screen figure is the heroine, Nancy Kelly, but Miss Kelly is not at home on the stage; one can almost hear her count as she makes her moves and strikes her poses. J. Edward Bromberg tears into the cruelties of the studio mogul with the relish that comes from long waiting, and Reinhold Schunzel is fine as a suave go-between. Lee Strasberg, like Odets, Garfield and Bromberg, a Goup Theater alumnus, directed.

I'm not saying that once the poorish first act is over you won't be interested in what Odets has to say about his years in Hollywood, for this is a curiously uneven play. But I do wish that before writing it he'd waited till he'd gotten his breath.

2 Holdup Men Held For Jury; 2 Assault Cases Continued

Two men arrested Friday by Prince Georges County police on storebreaking and larceny charges were ordered held for grand jury action yesterday by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie of Hyattsville Police Court.

Another two men, arrested at the same time on assault with intent to kill warrants, received continuances of their hearings until Thursday. One of these, Arthur "Boots" Green, 43, 1108 64th st., Cedar Heights, also waived preliminary hearing before a United States commissioner for possession of six gallons of moonshine whiskey.

Gilbert O. McCloud, 31, 6700 Sheriff rd., and Arthur Owens, 40, 6300 Sheriff rd., were bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond each on charges they looted Dyke's cafeteria, 6700 Sheriff rd., of quantities of food and cigarets on March 5 and 10.

Willie Ragin, 25, 1002 66th ave., Cedar Heights, and Green, both charged with assault with intent to kill on warrants sworn out by a Fairmount Heights woman, were placed under $500 and $1000 bond respectively. All four men were arrested at Green's residence, police reported.

Pilot Escapes Death in Leap, Passenger Dies

Kelso, Wash., March 14 (U.P.)—Pilot Donald Evans and his passenger, Thomas McGinnis, decided to jump when the engine of their plane began to sputter as they flew over the mountains.

McGinnis of Renton, Wash., jumped first.

Evans tried to follow but as he jumped, his foot caught in the doorway. He dangled head downward as the plane roared toward the earth.

With the plane's motion buffeting him against the fuselage, Evans fought for several minutes before jerking loose, pulling his ripcord, and floating to earth. He suffered a sprained ankle and bruises.

When he reached the ground, he learned that McGinnis was killed. His parachute failed to open and he fell 2000 feet into the branches of a tree.

3 Get Away After Holdup, Police Chase

Three holdup men, two of them brandishing guns, early yesterday robbed a TB (Md.) service station attendant of $30 and made their escape after a high-speed auto chase by District police through Northeast Washington.

About 2:30 a. m., the trio entered the Triangle Service Center, at the intersection of Routes 5 and 301, and forced William Hyde, the attendant, to hand over the money. Then, Maryland State Police reported, the bandits departed and Hyde spread the alarm.

Maryland State police, told that the holdup men were driving a new convertible, radioed Prince Georges County and District police. The car was spotted at Benning rd. and Oklahoma ave., according to District officers, and the chase began. After several blocks, the bandits' vehicle eluded the police. Speeds up to 85 miles an hour were reached.

A total of eight District police cars participated in the chase before the holdup auto got away. The car was reported to have been stolen.

2d Negro Woman Put on Red Jury In New York

New York, March 14 (AP).—A second Negro woman was called to the tentative jury today as the conspiracy trial of 11 top Communists ground into its ninth week.

Drawn from the jury panel as replacement for one of six persons excused from service during the day was Mrs. Ida F. Howell.

Mrs. Howell joins Mrs. Thelma Dial, a Negro who was the first prospective juror to be selected. Both may be eliminated either by defense or prosecution before the final jury is approved.

Defense attorneys had spent weeks before the process of selecting a jury began complaining to Federal Judge Harold R. Medina that jury-picking systems in the New York Federal district discriminate against minority groups, including Negroes.

Commerce Lifts Ban On Tin for Beer Cans

The Commerce Department yesterday lifted restrictions on the amount of tin manufacturers can use from their quotas in making beer and animal food cans.

The overall limitations on the amount of tin that can be used generally in making cans remains in effect, however.

The change merely means manufacturers can devote more of their available tin to making beer and animal food cans. Formerly the amount used for making those types of cans was limited in proportion to the amount used in the full year 1947—50 per cent for beer cans and 75 per cent for animal food containers.

Train Bandit's Prosecution Here Delayed

The United States Attorney here last night was awaiting word from West Virginia officials before filing District Court charges against George L. Ashton, 21, one of two modern-day train robbers.

Ashton appeared briefly yesterday in District Court and told Judge Richmond B. Keech he desired to have the case disposed of here rather than be extradited to West Virginia, where the Baltimore & Ohio train was held up and estimated $1500 in loot taken from passengers.

Ashton was captured here Thursday after gunplay in which his partner, Luman Ramsdell, 22, was seriously wounded.

Ransdelll was reported "greatly improved" at Gallinger Hospital yesterday, and off the critical list.

Judge Keech cautioned Ashton to make no plea before consulting a lawyer. Ashton replied he had funds of his own and was seeking to contact a John Webster as his attorney. The case was then continued until the court appearance of the lawyer.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay said he would defer filing charges here until he gets definite word of the preferences of West Virginia officials.

Fay is willing to have the defendants tried here, but said he will abide by the decision of the State officials.

According to Fay, the train robbery could be construed as a violation of statutes forbidding theft from interstate commerce carrying a 10-year maximum sentence and also as violation of the "antiracketeering" interstate robbery statute carrying a 20-year term.

Man Who Killed Mother-in-Law Given 3 Years

A 37-year-old Goodhope (Md.) man was sentenced to three years in the Maryland House of Correction in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday on a manslaughter charge in the fatal shooting of his mother-in-law.

The prison term was imposed by Judge Stedman Prescott on Jerry Kimble, former building contractor. Kimble originally was charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Margaret Davenport in her Goodhope home in August, 1947. A jury convicted him of the lesser charge February 15 after hearing testimony that the woman was shot as she wrestled with Kimble for possession of a shotgun.

According to court authorities, Kimble fled from the county after the shooting, but surrendered himself to county police about two months ago. He was indicted during his absence.

Favored Kentucky, St. Louis Bounced Out of NIT

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., March 14.—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler is singularly unperturbed for a man who is being sued to the amount of $2,800,000. He is making no attempt whatsoever to save any such sum out of his $50,000-a-year salary, in case he has to pay up, he says.

In fact, the Chandler smile is in such constant evidence around the Florida training camps it could be suspected he was the party of the first part rather than the chief defendant in the damage suits filed by Danny Gardella, Max Lanier and Fred Martin.

POVICH

The latter trio is hauling organized baseball into the courts you remember, and they are quite aggrieved they say at the boycott they are under for jumping to Mexico. They charge that baseball is a trust in violation of Interstate Commerce; that the contracts they violated were invalid anyway, and that Chandler's decree suspending them for five years took away their livelihood.

Chandler says he isn't disturbed a bit about raising the $2,800,000 they want. "That's Walter Mulbry's responsibility anyway," grins the Commissioner. "He's the treasurer of organized baseball."

ANYWAY, THERE IS no immediate cause for panic either on his own part or baseball, says Chandler, as a consequence of the damage suits. "We don't expect to lose the decision in the lower courts, and if we do, we will certainly appeal all the way to the United States Supreme Court and that could be a four-year piece of legal business."

His own action in suspending the 20 players who jumped to Mexico, Chandler defends vigorously. "In the first place, they jumped contracts and so deserved little consideration. In the second place, organized baseball in America was being threatened by the raids of the Mexican Pasquels who were encouraging our fellows to run out on their contracts. The Pasquels were enemies of American baseball, and any players who went to the camp of the enemy did our game and our country a disservice."

He had to suspend them for a long term of years, Chandler explained. "Suppose I announced I would suspend them for only one season. That might have encouraged others to jump. A fellow like Ted Williams who was offered $100,000 to play in Mexico for a year might have been tempted, if he thought he could be reinstated quickly. I had to keep our boys in line."

CHANDLER HAS ONLY contempt for the court action the three disgruntled players brought. "They're the tools of ambulance-chasing lawyers who are out for some notoriety, and finally roped in three players to agree to the action. The other 17 wouldn't go for it and I have telegrams from most of them assuring me they would be no party to any such suit."

He admitted that he was on the verge of lifting the suspensions of all the players this season but that the court suits prevented any such act of generosity. "I was ready to temper what I thought was justice with a little mercy and welcome them all back, but I can't do that now. It would be construed in some quarters as an admission that baseball is in the wrong, and I won't compromise our game.

"These suits don't frighten me. I won't be scared into doing anything. I may be beaten, but not because I was scared. I don't know anything about the reports that some club owners want us to settle out of court. I do know that when I handed down those five-year suspensions all the club owners applauded me."

ORGANIZED BASEBALL hasn't anything to apologize for, he declared. "Some articles have been written in the vein that we know our reserve clause is illegal and that we have been getting away with murder all of these years by enforcing it. That's as far from the truth as anything could be.

"As far as organized baseball knows, we are obeying the law by enforcing the reserve clause. We were told the law by the United States Supreme Court that upheld the reserve clause in 1922, and nothing could be clearer. The highest court in the land assured us that we had nothing to fear from the antitrust or interstate commerce regulations.

"In fact, I invite every player who thinks he has a grievance against our administration of the game to sue us. There's nothing more satisfactory than knowing if you are in the right. We think we are, and aren't afraid of any showdown."

Boxing Commission Rejects Kirsch's Promoter Application

The latest effort to arrange action for Hein Ten Hoff, boycotted German heavyweight, ran into a snag yesterday when the District Boxing Commission rejected an application for a promoter's license by Fred Kirsch.

The commission's ruling was based on a regulation which calls for three years' residence in the District prior to the granting of a promoter's license. Kirsch has been living in Prince Georges County, Md., for several years.

Kirsch, who planned to bring Hoff to Washington for a bout in Uline Arena, said his next move will be to ask M. J. Uline, the arena's owner, to take out a license to promote fights. He would then seek a matchmaker's status with Uline and go ahead with plans to bring Hoff to Washington.

Yesterday's ruling by the commission was good news to Goldie Ahearn, Uline Arena promoter for the past seven years, who claims a "run-around" in Uline's negotiations with Kirsch.

"Kirsch wanted me to put this guy Mein Hoff, or whatever his name is, on one of my shows," Goldie sputtered, "but I turned him down. Hoff was a German soldier, wasn't he? Nobody else in the country will use him. People in New York tell me don't touch him and that he can't fight a lick. Why should I stink out the joint with a boxer they've boycotted."

'Jumpers,' Baseball Will Go to Court Today

New York, March 14 (AP).—Organized baseball will be called into Federal Court tomorrow to defend its action in suspending three former major league players for jumping to the Mexican League.

Federal Judge Edward Conger issued an order directing leaders of the National game to show cause at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow why Danny Gardella, former New York Giant outfielder, should not be reinstated immediately.

Scheduled for hearing at the same time is an application by Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers, for a temporary order directing their reinstatement.

In their application, filed a week ago, Lanier and Martin also ask that organized baseball be directed to permit them to sign contracts which do not contain a reserve or termination clause.

The three players are among several who were banned from professional baseball for five years by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler after they left their clubs in 1946 to play in Mexico.

In the action which will be heard tomorrow, all three are asking for their return to baseball pending determination of damage suits totaling $2,800,000.

The suits attack the reserve clause—that portion of every baseball contract which binds a player to one club until he is sold, traded or released—as a violation of the anti-trust laws.

Defendants in the suits brought by Lanier and Martin are Chandler, President Ford Frick of the National League, President Will Harridge of the American League, President George Trautman of the National Association of Minor Leagues and all 16 major league clubs.

Lanier has asked damages of $1,500,000 and Martin $1,000,000. They accused baseball of being a monopoly and are seeking permanent injunctions against contracts containing the reserve clause and against keeping them on the ineligible list.

Gardella, seeking damages of $300,000, directed his suit against Chandler, Frick, Harridge and Trautman but only one Major League team—the New York Giants.

He also based his application for reinstatement on the charge that baseball is a monopoly and violates the anti-trust laws because of the reserve clause and various agreements between clubs.

Cooper Whips Jose Cardenas

Jimmy Cooper, 124, Washington, pounded out a 10-round decision over Jose Cardenas, 126, Mexico, last night at Turner's Arena before 906 fans. It was the second fight between the two, Cardenas having taken the first fight a year ago.

Cardenas raised a "mouse" over Cooper's right eye in the second round and tried to outbox the U st. perpetual motion kid. Cardenas tried to close the eye but did not succeed.

Cooper, scoring in flurries, was the stronger puncher and had much the better of the exchanges especially in the late rounds. Cooper had a lot left near the end to come out on top of several toe-to-toe slugging exchanges in the last two rounds.

The take was a gross of $2197 and a net of $1,466.07.

In the semifinal Harvey Jones, 171, of Baltimore, decisioned Johnny Holt, 169½, of Washington in five rounds.

In four-rounders Willie Jackson, 155, Washington, knocked out local rival Speedy Robinson, 153, and Little Dynamite, 143, Washington, outpointed Tony Longo, 144, of Baltimore.

In other five-rounders Charlie Bennett, 144, of Washington, lost to Gene Harley, 154, also Washington, and Roy Wirt, 144, of Roanoke, Va., fought a draw with Miles Jones, 146, of Washington.

Nats Lose Out in 9th, 4-3

Phils' Waitkus Hits 2-Run Homer Off Masterson With Score Tied, 2-2

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 14.—The Nats made seven hits against the Phillies' pitching today and no hit at all with 2000 Tinker Field fans who saw the town's first exhibition game of the season. The Nats took a 4-3 beating.

It happened all of a sudden in the ninth inning at a time when Walter Masterson had no worse than a 2-2 tie in his pitching fist. And then defeat set in, with a bang.

It was a loud bang by Eddie Waitkus over the rightfield wall, 380 feet distance, with Gran Hamner on base. Waitkus, the former Cub for whom the Phillies swapped Dutch Leonard during the winter, blasted a Masterson curve ball that "hung," as the hitters say.

The Nats apparently didn't have much right in the ball game anyway. The Phillies outhit 'em, 11 to 7. Waitkus' blow in the ninth became a two-run homer because Rookie First Baseman Lou Bevil previously fumbled Ashburn's bunt.

There was a brave attempt by the Nats to get both those runs back against pitcher Charles Bicknell in the ninth. Rookie Outfielder Clyde Vollmer doubled to center with one out for his second straight hit, and with two out Rookie John Simmons scored him with a single to left, but defeat encompassed the Nats completely when Bevil flied out.

Ray Scarborough was bumped sort of hard for three innings in his pitching debut of the spring, but he yielded only one run in his three-inning turn despite five hits.

4 Hits Off Masterson

Bill Nicholson, another former Cub in the Phils lineup, singled to right and scored the game's first run on Buddy Blattner's double to right in the second inning. The Nats got that one back in the third when Evans walked, stole second and scored on Gil Coan's single to center.

The Phils went in front, 2-1, in the fourth on Silvestri's single, Kozar's wild throw to second base and a single to center by Ashburn. The Nats tied it up in the seventh when Len Okrie blasted a double to left, advanced on Masterson's safe bunt and scored on Vollmer's single to center.

SCARBOROUGH was pleased with his pitching effort despite the five hits he allowed. "They got 'em off my curve ball, none when I was bearing down with a fast one," he said . . . Al Kozar, who has made four errors in the Nats' exhibition games, obviously is shy of Florida's uncertain infield hop . . . the Phillies are somewhat of a scourge in the Grapefruit League. Today's win was their fourth straight . . .

Oklahoma Loses, 57-56, To Nebraska

Kansas City, March 14 (AP).—The Nebraska Cornhuskers stalled through the closing seconds for a 57-to-56 victory over Oklahoma tonight in their play-off and earned the right to meet Oklahoma A.&M. for an NCAA Western regional berth.

Nebraska led at the half 27-25.

Oklahoma, after twice defeating Nebraska in regular season play, which ended with the teams as co-champions, put on its typical late rally. But the lanky Cornhuskers were not to be denied this time.

Nebraska built its lead to four points in the first 15 seconds of the second period on Whitehead's tip-in. With five minutes gone Nebraska was out in front by six points, 36-30. After that Oklahoma at best could only watch the brief scoring sprees of Nebraska.

Oklahoma's last bid came with two and one-half minutes remaining, when the Sooners trailed 50-54. Paul Merchant scored from under the basket. Freiberger got a couple of free throws while Malecek was picking up one point for Nebraska.

That cut Nebraska's lead to one point. But Claude Rutherford scored from near the free throw line to up the margin to three points. Oklahoma's last field goal came on Freiberger's short toss with a minute and 18 seconds remaining. Oklahoma got the ball twice after that, but was unable to score. Nebraska stalled the last 58 seconds.

Gonzales Gets Top Seeding

New York, March 14 (AP).—Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles was seeded first today in the men's singles division of the National Indoor Tennis Championships opening here Thursday.

Billy Talbert of New York, defending indoor titlist, was given the No. 2 spot in the men's singles seedings. Only foreign player in the 64-man field will be the veteran Jean Borotra of France.

Gertrude Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., was placed at the top of the women's seedings when Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., decided not to defend the women's singles title.

Oregon State Wins Title

Corvallis, Oreg., March 14 (AP).—Oregon State College captured the Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship by jumping to an early lead and holding off the UCLA Bruins to win 41 to 35 tonight.

The States also won a berth in the NCAA Western regional playoff at Kansas City.

Raleigh, St. Joe Win

Raleigh's Athletic Goods girls team last night defeated the F. B. I., 33-28, and St. Joseph's class B team romped 40-22 over Eastern A. C. in the first round of the Merrick Club Girls Championship Tournament.

Loyola Ousts Wildcats 67-56; Bowling Green Beats Billikens, 80-74

Bradley Wins Over W. Kentucky, 95-86 | San Francisco Stops Favored Utah, 64-63

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—Upsets broke the National Invitation Basketball tournament wide open today as all four seeded teams were bounced out of the quarter finals.

Loyola beat first-seeded Kentucky, 67-56; Bowling Green smashed second-seeded St. Louis, 80 to 74; San Francisco bowled over third-seeded Utah, 64 to 63; and Bradley shocked Western Kentucky, 95 to 86, in the greatest rash of upsets in the 12-year history of the tournament.

And so, to the wonderment of all, Loyola plays Bradley and San Francisco meets Bowling Green in the semifinals Thursday night.

The Afternoon . . .

Bradley and Western Kentucky put on a record-shattering performance in the first game of the afternoon, but Loyola quickly took the edge off their efforts.

Kentucky, which lost only one game in 30 during the regular season, had been heavily favored to sweep through the Invitation tournament and the NCAA tourney, in which they are also entered.

It was Kentucky's first defeat since the Nation's No. 1 quintet bowed to St. Louis, 42-40, last December 30. Kentucky had won 21 games since and brought a 29-1 record in the Garden Meet.

It was Loyola's 24th victory of the year against five defeats and the Ramblers second of the tourney. They routed CCNY, 62-47, last Saturday.

Thus, the Chicago lads, who got into the turney as an afterthought when the field was increased from eight teams to 12, ruined Kentucky's hopes for a basketball double slam.

Kerris Has 23

Jack Kerris, Loyola's fine center, was magnificent as he paced the 12 point underdog Ramblers to their astonishing triumph.

The 6-foot 6-inch Chicago pivot, playing more than half the game with four personal fouls against him, dropped in 23 points on seven field goals and nine free throws.

The rollicking Ramblers from Chicago, 15-1 shots to win the tourney, engineered the upset by coming from behind six times to beat mighty Kentucky.

It was a super-thriller in which no team led by more than four points until Loyola clinched the decision in the closing minutes of play with an unbroken nine-point string while holding Kentucky scoreless for five minutes.

Fouls Tell the Story

The fouls told the story. The Wildcats committed 29 infractions and lost three of their aces—All-Americans Alex Groza and Wallace (Wah Wah) Jones and Walt Hirsch on fouls.

With both teams even on field goals at 21 each, Kentucky's excessive fouling enabled Loyola to cash in on 25 out of 33 free throws for their margin of victory. Kentucky made good on only 13 out of 21 from the 15-foot mark.

Less mindful of his four personals than was Groza of the four he had, Kerris completely dominand at Night . . .

Bowling Green came from behind at halftime to defeat second-seeded St. Louis after a one-handed push shot by San Francisco's Frank Kuzara in the last five seconds had beaten Utah in the first game on the night schedule.

Gene Dudley a Bowling Green substitute, scored five points on two field goals and a free throw in the final two minutes to break the backs of the second-seeded Billikens and pave the way for an exclusive semifinal of Cinderellas.

Two large Garden crowds—12,592 for the matinee session and 15,587 for the evening—were left limp and gasping by the rapid-fire series of upsets that fell one upon the other.

Bills in Front

The Bills jumped to the front at the start and seemed comfortable enough at the half with a 38-35 advantage. It was only three points, but it seemed more considering the superior polish the St. Louis crew displayed. St. Louis had led by as much as 13 points that first half.

But this orange-clad Bowling Green troupe, led by a 6-foot-11 giant named Charley Share, wanted to get in on the upset act and started a mighty second-half drive that produced eventual victory.

Big Share, shaking away from Easy Ed Macauley's watchful guarding, pulled Bowling Green to within 2 points of St. Louis at 46-44 after 3 minutes and 50 seconds of the second half. Gene Dudley tied it up with a set shot, and then the circus began.

After that the score was tied four times and the lead changed three times before Dudley scored five straight points to give Bowling Green a 76-72 advantage with 50 seconds left to play. That did it.

Share the Hero

Share, with 3 inches of height on Macauley, proved the real difference in the teams, although he fouled out of the game with 5 minutes and 15 seconds left to play. Macauley also fouled out, but only two seconds were left then.

Mac Otten was the big scorer for Bowling Green with steady plugging that produced 22 points, Share got 15 and Dudley 14. Macauley scored 19 for St. Louis, several of them magnificent hooks from the side in the second half.

It's hard to say whether this St. Louis loss or the Kentucky defeat

piration December 31, 1948.

Representative L. Mendell Rivers (D., S. C.), who has asked for a congressional investigation of the city's municipal links, said last night, "the appointment in no way alters my belief that something is wrong. I still want an investigation."

Announcement of the Interior Department's 2-year-old commitment to Leoffler, left two other bidders, the D. C. Recreation Department and the Cleveland Concessions Co., out in the cold.

Davidson said that he'll be happy to discuss the Recreation Department's future bids when that group settles its playground segregation problem.

Harry Wender, chairman of the Recreation Department's concessions committee, said, "I am surprised, astonished and deeply disappointed. I wonder whether there's an honest person left in the world." He said his group would hold a special meeting this morning at 10 o'clock.

Ray Alvis, spokesman for the Cleveland group, said, "I have just begun to fight. I may take legal action, but will wait until I meet with Congressman Rivers before I make up my mind.

"I was told in October of 1947," continued Alvis, "that I'd be given equal consideration when the old contract expired in December, 1948. There's collusion somewhere in the Interior Department."

Davidson explained he waited three months to announce his recommendation because he, too, was aroused by the public's "interest."

The Assistant Secretary said he waited until Golfdom, a links magazine, had completed a survey of municipal courses around the Nation.

The survey showed that Washington's admission rates of 40 cents for weekdays, and 75 cents for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, are among the lowest in the country, and that, generally, "the Washington job has been well done."

Herb Graffis, editor of the survey, said that of 156 municipal courses studied, only three provide 40 cents weekday golf, that the national average is 85 cents. He said also that in the other cities, weekend rates average $1.10.

Davidson said he was not attempting to give Leoffler a clean bill of health, but that a few of the public and press complaints "have been unjustified."

He said that under the new contract, the average golfer will have a chance to express himself on a new "grievance committee" to be formed at each of the five local clubs, and that complaints will go through Leoffler to the Secretary of Interior.

Leoffler said last night that he hadn't received official notification that he would get a new contract.

The concessionaire added, however, that "after 28 years of operating the courses here, I've learned not to wait for official notifications.

"I have gone ahead in the past three months," he said, "and begun drainage operations on the East Potomac Park and Anacostia courses. The District Sewer Co. is doing the work for us, guiding the excess water into the river.

"I haven't waited for an estimate. But I don't expect that the drainage, plus the complete renovation of the Potomac Park miniature golf course, will come to more than $25,000," he said.

Leoffler's annual $8500 salary, plus his average yearly profit of $16,060 since 1943, has been the target of critics, who've complained that the profits should have been used on improvement of courses.

Davidson said that Leoffler's income was "not too high because of his risk of taking a loss in operating five courses."

Davidson said that the commission will exercise a "closer supervision" of Leoffler's operations in the future. He said that under the proposed contract, the Interior Department will be able, after each of the first four years, to reopen to contract to public bidding if Leoffler does "not do a good job."

Davidson said that in the future a clause in the contract stipulating that at least 5 per cent of the gross income on the courses be used on maintenance will be enforced. In recent years the 5 per cent has been turned back to the Interior Department.

Davidson outlined a five-year plan of improvements that will be undertaken, contingent on operational profits and congressional appropriations. The improvements are:

Interior Aide Promised Lease Two Years Ago

1. At Langston, construction of a new clubhouse and maintenance building, and provision for correct drainage,

2. At Anacostia, complete regrading of the course and provision for correct drainage.

3. At Fort Dupont, enlargement of present 9-hole course to 18 holes, install section of heavy pipe for drainage in lower portion, and completion of the entrance road and parking area at clubhouse.

4. At East Potomac Park, continuation of hydraulic drilling to correct settlement of entire area and extension of water to all tees,

5. At Rock Creek, construction of a new clubhouse, building of underpass under Military road and enlargement of greens.

6. Construction of new 18-hole courses at Fort Hunt, Va., and either at Suitland, Md., or on the Baltimore-Washington parkway.

Embree or Starr?

Browns Must Find a Sub For Sanford

(This is another in a series of articles about the prospects of major league teams for the coming baseball season.)

By Gayle Talbot

Burbank, Cal., March 14 (AP).—Every year at this time the St. Louis Browns may be depended upon to show up either with (a) a new manager or (b) a new owner.

The system prevents St. Louis fans from beginning to suspect that their American League entry is in a rut.

This spring it is the turn of Manager Zack Taylor to remain on the job while the DeWitt brothers, Bill and Charlie, bend off queries as to where they got the money to buy the club. They hint that they found it under a culvert.

The only big task facing him this spring, really, is to find a replacement for Fred Sanford, a workhorse who dropped 21 games for the Browns last season and was the "losingest" pitcher in the league while winning 12.

Sanford went to the Yankees in a deal which involved $100,000 cash and brought Pitchers Red Embree and Dick Starr and Catcher Sherman Lollar to Sportsman's Park.

While Taylor freely admits that Sanford is a much better pitcher than his '48 record indicates, and says that he hated to lose him, it is no cinch that either Embree or Starr, or both, won't turn out to be equally valuable merchandise after a year under Hank's kindly tutelage.

In addition to this potential windfall from the Yanks, the Browns go into the '48 campaign with three really fine ball players—Third-Baseman Bob Dillinger, Second-Baseman Gerry Priddy and Outfielder Al Zarilla.

They hit last year, respectively, .321, .296 and .329. Priddy just signed what is said to be the best Brownie contract in history, and he probably will fetch his present owners about $175,000 next winter. If not sooner.

The club has a fair shortstop in Ed Pellagrini, and an infield aspirant named Bill Sommers who hit .326 in 153 games last year for San Antonio, a Browns farm.

Dick Kokos, a 21-year-old who hit .298 after joining the Browns in midseason last year, and Paul Lehner who hit .276 in 103 games, represent quite a fall-off from Zarilla in completing the first-string outfield.

Williams Hitless in Three Tries

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Johnny Pesky banged out three hits, including two doubles, and drove in two runs today to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees. A crowd of 5006 saw the Sox sn. New York's two-game winning streak.

Lefty Mickey Harris blanked the Yanks without a hit in the three middle innings to get credit for the victory.

Joe Page, Yankee southpaw relief hurler, was charged with the loss. The Sox broke a 1-1 tie at Page's expense in the fifth. A walk and singles by Dom DiMaggio and Pesky accounted for the winning run.

Boston's Ted Williams went hitless in three times at bat.

Browns Beat Cubs in 10th, 12-11

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns, bolstered by Ken Woods' three-run homer in the ninth, handed the Chicago Cubs their third straight licking today by an extra-inning 12-11 count.

Woods' smash put the Browns ahead 11-9, but the Cubs tied the score in the bottom half with the aid of Al Walker's homer and a pinch single by Forrest Burgess.

Paul Lehner's triple—his fifth hit of the day—and an outfield fly gave the Browns victory in the tenth.

promoting fights at Uline's remained a question. His March 24 scrap between Sonny Boy West and Buster Tyler has been canceled and he is now looking forward to his opening program at Griffith Stadium on May 9.

The boxing commission tempered its refusal to grant Kirsch a license by going on record as opposing any movement that would bar Hoff from bouts here because he "served in the army of the nation of his birth."

Terps Schoolboy Field Day May 7

The University of Maryland yesterday set its twenty-eighth annual high school field day for Saturday, May 7.

The track and field events will be run off in two divisions, one for county high schools, and one for the Maryland Scholastic Association, made up of public and parochial high schools in Baltimore.

The two big events are expected to be the scholastic division one-mile relay and the one-mile relay for Washington high schools.

No Mingling, Chandler Says

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 14 (AP). The office of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler tonight announced several playing rule changes, including one that bars uniformed players from mingling with fans and friends before the start of a ball game.

The rule regarding fraternization ha been changed to read that players in uniform "shall not be permitted to occupy seats in the stands, nor to mingle with spectators" and adds that no manager, captain, coach, or player shall address the spectators nor shall players of opposing teams fraternize.

That change was the major one agreed upon at the meeting of the baseball rules committee at Sarasota, Fla., on March 3 and released today to become effective immediately.

Other changes include one that a manager can be fined and suspended if his team refuses to play and that a pitcher's glove must be uniform and dark in color, plus several other minor amendments.

Baltz Reelected Regatta Head

Edward C. Baltz was reelected president of the President's Cup Regatta Association yesterday at a meeting at the Willard Hotel. Baltz announced that the board of directors had been expanded to exceed not more than 50 members and that for the first time there would be two general chairmen; one for special functions of the regatta committee and the other to supervise the powerboat, rowing, swimming and canoeing events. Cochairmen will be named at a special meeting.

ated the back-board duel between the two stars and scored 15 points in the second half while holding Groza to one free throw.

Kerris himself was fouled 10 times and that was the big factor in the exits of Jones and Groza.

The Ramblers, refusing to be cowed by the great record which Kentucky brought into the tournament, left the floor at half time with a 32 to 31 advantage after a nip-and-tuck battle in which the score was tied six times and the lead changed hands on eight occasions.

Beard Has 15

Jones and dynamic Ralph Beard, another All-American, sent Kentucky off to a 36 to 32 lead at the start of the second half, but that was the widest advantage the Wildcats were to maintain for the rest of the game.

A pivot shot by Kerris tied the score at 37-all, a free throw by Gerry Nagel later tied it at 42-all and then five straight points by Kerris deadlocked the game for the last time at 47-all.

Kentucky then moved off to a 50-to-47 lead, but Loyola ran off nine straight points to gain a 56-to-50 advantage that spelled the Wildcats' doom. The Ramblers were still opening up distance as they closed out the game with an uninterrupted eight-point string.

Nagel, who scored 10 points and played a brilliant floor game, was Ferris' chief support.

Beard, in a game effort to pull the game out for the Wildcats, was Kentucky's big gun, scoring 15 points, 13 of them in the second half. Groza got 12 before fouling out.

The opening game today set a tournament scoring record.

The 181 points topped the record of 161 set by Rhode Island State and Bowling Green in 1946, won by Rhode Island, 82 to 79.

Bradley set a new mark for field goals, 41, breaking the tournament record of 39 set by De Paul in 1945.

Handicapped in height by the towering Hilltoppers from Western Kentucky, Bradley depended on spectacular speed and scrap to rally from a 50-45 halftime deficit to win almost breezing.

Kentucky Faces Villanova in NCAA

New York, March 14 (AP).—Kentucky's double-trouble basketball team, shooting at two major tournament titles, will face high-scoring Villanova in the Eastern regional NCAA tournament next Monday. Illinois, the Big Nine champion, and Yale, Ivy League winner, will come together in the opening game of the doubleheader Monday night.

The two winners will meet Tuesday with the winner leaving immediately for Seattle, Wash., to face the Western regional tournament victor in the championship game, March 26.

Utah Upset By 'Frisco

was the most stunning. But surely there was shock to the nation.

The San Francisco-Utah game was a thrilling contest that went right down to the final whistle for a decision.

Fighting an uphill battle in the second half, Utah pulled into the lead, 63-62, on Vern Gardner's driving layup and the big clock said only two minutes remained.

With pressure mounting, Don Lofgran, the six-foot-six Oakland, Calif., performer who sharred in San Francisco's first round 68-43 triumph over Manhattan, missed two free throws that would have put his team ahead.

Then with time running out, Utah waived three foul shots in the last minute in an effort to keep possession of their thin 63-62 lead.

San Francisco stole the ball with ten seconds remaining and Kusara missed a shot from the side of the basket.

Then there was a jump ball and Frisco got it on the tap. The ball was passed to Kusara about 30 feet out and he took dead aim. The ball went through the mesh without hitting the rim.

3 Champs on 21-Bout Card At Turner's

A trio of novice titlists from last year's tourney step into the faster company of the senior division tonight at Turner's Arena in the second preliminary round of the District AAU boxing championships.

The lads making initial bids for berths on the team participating in the national amateur championships next month are Frankie Tavenner, the 126-pound novice king from Georgetown Big Brothers Club; Apollo Club's Willie Davis, who topped all the novice lightweights in 1948, and Herbert Stowe, 12th st. Y., the 160-pound winner.

Tavenner has moved into the lightweight class, where he will meet Tony Scott, Andrews Field entry, while Stowe, scheduled to battle St. Mary's Club veteran Bobby Blunt, has stepped down to the welterweight division.

Should Tavenner or Davis survive their opening encounters they may have a crack at Claude Lawrence, the defending senior lightweight champion from St. Mary's. Lawrence opens his title defense tonight against Sam Kelsey, a rugged lad from Liberty AC, who reached the finals of the recent Golden Gloves senior 126-pound sector.

Also fighting in one of the 15 senior battles on tonight's 21-bout card is rangy Ralph Meador, winner of the D. C. AAU novice middleweight crown in 1947. Competing unattached, Meador faces Hezeziah Williams of Edwards AC, in a 175-pound match.

A novice runner-up of last year to break into senior company tonight is Nat Williams, Mel AC who squares off with Liberty AC's Dave Key in a light heavy duel.

What looms as slashing bantamweight battle will pit George Cole, Southwest Police Boys Club, against Dave Primrose, P.. B. C. No. 2. In 1948 Primrose reached the senior flyweight finals in both the AAU and Golden Gloves tournaments.

Lions Close Season Tonight

The Washington Lions will close out the American Hockey League season tonight at Uline Arena against the New Haven Ramblers at 8:30 p. m.

New Haven currently is battling for third place in the eastern division with the Springfield Indians and tonight's game is an important one for them.

Coach Frank Beisler yesterday termed the season "a disappointment," but added that the Lions have had more than their share of serious injuries. Practically every player on the team was out at one time or another with some type of injury.

Paul Gauthier the veteran goalie, played only seven games all year and Norm Burns and Pat Wilson were also out for extended periods with serious injuries.

The local team goes into their final game deep in the mire of last place in the league. They have a record of 11 wins, 4 ties, and 52 defeats.

Ben Hogan Leaves His Bed Briefly

El Paso, Tex., March 14 (AP).—Bantam Ben Hogan left his hospital bed for the first time today.

The tiny golfing ace was moved to a wheel chair late this afternoon and spent nearly 30 minutes sitting in the sun.

His wife, Valerie, said she was "overjoyed" with the improvement Ben has shown, and added that her husband's spirits were "excellent."

Hogan has been in the hospital since February 2, when he was seriously injured in a car-bus smashup near Van Horn, Tex.

Colleges Are Criticized as 'Too Bookish'

Roanoke, Va., March 14 (AP).—The Nation's educators, in contrast to other professional fields, are 50 years behind the times in using scientific information available in the field of human development, according to Miss Gladys Merville, elementary supervisor for Norfolk schools.

Speaking at a conference of 140 State supervisors and directors of instruction here, Miss Merville charged that teachers who try to base their work on scientific findings are constantly being frustrated and blocked by such things as grade lines, standards, promotions and regimentation.

"The absolutes of today often become the obsoletes of tomorrow," she said, and educators must realize the value of constant experimentation and evaluation. A greater need for an understanding of democratic principles and how they are developed was cited.

Miss Merville criticized colleges as being too "bookish and academic." Many teachers, she continued, have been trained to think by fitting everything into patterns.

Dr. Louis E. Armstrong, professor of secondary education at George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, said children cannot grow into their future responsibilities if they are constantly being told what to do. "They want the right," he said, "to act on their own purposes, for to act on the purposes of another is to act as a slave."

'Lonely Hearts' Killers Due Today In Mineola, N. Y.

Mineola, N. Y., March 14 (AP).—Nassau County District Attorney James N. Gehrig said today two confessed "lonely hearts" killers were due to arrive Tuesday from Grand Rapids, Mich., for trial here.

Earlier today the State of Michigan, which has no death penalty, denied a habeas corpus petition presented on the grounds that the pair, Raymond Fernandez, 34, and his chubby partner, Mrs. Martha Beck, were entitled to a "speedy trial."

The man and woman have admitted, according to Michigan police, the slaying of two widows and a baby girl to cover up a "lonely hearts" racket which they had worked in many States.

Fernandez and Mrs. Beck will be tried here for the slaying in Valley Stream, N. Y., of Mrs. Janet Fay, 50, whose body was found in the cellar of an Ozone Park, Queens, N. Y., house.

Under an agreement, the pair, if not convicted here, will be returned to Michigan to be tried for the slayings there. New York has a death penalty.

Lunacy Verdict Dismissal Asked

A lawyer who was committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital after killing two men and wounding another, yesterday asked the Supreme Court to order his release and dismiss a lunacy verdict.

He is Daniel Williams, 41, who has been in the hospital since November 10, 1947. At his trial he said he had been nursing a grudge because he had been refused a certificate to practice law here. On May 15, 1947 he entered Municipal Court where he shot and killed a clerk and wounded another man. He then ran from the building and, in an ensuing gun battle, killed a policeman at 6th and F sts. nw.

Atomic Project Planned for Ships, McMahon Says

By The Associated Press

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) said yesterday a huge new research project is to be started soon on atomic plants for submarines and ships.

He said the Atomic Energy Commission will spend about 500 million dollars in the next five or six years building new atomic reactors for the project. It is to be located in a Western State.

McMahon is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. He told about the project in an interview.

McMahon talked to reporters after a meeting of the joint atomic energy committee with AEC director David Lilienthal and other commission officials.

"At the end of this research," McMahon said, "We are hopeful we can demonstrate that mobile (atomic) power plants not only are feasible but are here."

Signal for Right Turn Changed For Maryland

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—It will be legal for Maryland automobile drivers to signal a right-hand turn in either of two ways for the next several months.

W. Lee Elgin, the State's commissioner of motor vehicles, gave this assurance today.

For several years the proper signal for a right-hand turn has been sticking the left hand straight out the window and rotating the hand and wrist in a forward circle.

The current Maryland General Assembly has changed the signal to conform with the one in general use: sticking the left arm out with the hand and forearm pointing straight up. This signal becomes legal June 1.

In the meantime, the motor vehicles department is distributing 1949 auto registration cards that show the old signal on the back. They had to be printed before the legislature could act on the new signal.

Galvin Takes Oath As Labor Official

Michael H. Galvin, Boston attorney, was sworn in yesterday as Undersecretary of Labor.

Galvin took the oath from Federal District Judge Matthew McGuire in the presence of cabinet officials and representatives of labor unions.

CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey and General Counsel Arthur J. Goldberg were invited but claimed prior engagements. The AFL was represented by President William Green and Secretary-Treasurer George Meany.

John W. Gibson, CIO union man who is assistant secretary of labor, had been suggested for promotion to undersecretary but the AFL opposed the move.

Berwyn Fire Laid To Television Set

A short-circuited television set caused the $290,000 fire that swept the Town Hall Shopping Center in Berwyn, Md., and injured 11 persons early yesterday.

This was revealed yesterday by Richard S. Houchens, chief of the College Park Fire Department, after an investigation with Chief James W. Just, of the University of Maryland Fire Extension Service.

Chief Houchens also reported the fire could have been confined to a basement tavern housing the television set, had not a sudden draft, created when someone opened a front door, swept into the hot, smoke-filled tavern.

"The draft," he said, "caused an explosion that blew the place like a piece of dynamite." It sent flames shooting "straight on through the roof," injuring firefighters with flying glass and debris, he added.

The College Park Fire Department, which responded to the first alarm with the Branchville department at 12:44 a. m., was working in the basement tavern when the blast occurred. Second and third alarms followed rapidly, and a general alarm went out at 1:43 a. m.

Soon after that, nearly 50 pieces of apparatus were blocking traffic along the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard. Hose lines were fed from every plug within half a mile of the center. Hundreds of spectators milled about to watch the flames, which rose as high as 40 feet in the air.

Firemen fought the blaze for about five hours. When it was finally under control, between 5 and 6 a. m., the building was virtually destroyed by the flames, smoke and water. The eight shops it housed were gutted and large portions of the second floor and roof destroyed. The basement was flooded.

The 17-year-old building is in the 8100 block of the Baltimore boulevard, a short distance from the University of Maryland.

Civic Group Offers Zoning Row Solution

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night passed a resolution suggesting how to end the controversy between county heads and planning officials over enforcement of zoning ordinances.

The action was taken following recommendations of the advisory council of the federation on a resolution by Blair Lee 3d suggesting that enforcement be administered either by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission or by agents of the County Council.

The resolution stated that the council should have access to the records of the building inspectors of the Park and Planning Commission, the city of Takoma Park, the towns of Kensington and Chevy Chase View and other communities.

It also stated that the belief of the federation is that either solution must be temporary in nature and that all building inspection should ultimately come under the jurisdiction of the county council.

Boy Prisoned For 9 Years

which separated him from the rest of the family, and listened to the radio through the barrier. In winter, he told police, his room was cold; in summer, unbearably hot. He told time by fading light and the years by the end of summer.

Police said he appeared poorly fed and to have rickets. He was weak when they found him, and had difficulty going upstairs unaided.

The neighbors, police said, never suspected the presence of the boy, who had been trained to remain silent. The family is receiving municipal aid, but Mrs. Sullivan claimed none for her imprisoned son. So investigators never saw him.

Mrs. Sullivan told police her husband left her more than 14 years ago. Later he returned, but found she was to have a child by another man, and walked out of her life for good. Gerald was born in 1934 and was boarded in Jamaica Plain until he was five years old. His father paid for his keep.

Then the father died, and Mrs. Sullivan brought the boy to live with the family, in Hampshire st., Roxbury. She told her other children, all legitimate, that he was a cousin. He was locked up there, too.

When the Sullivans moved to Terry street, his new prison became the one he occupied until his getaway.

Police found his window boarded up across the bottom sash, with chicken wire outside and the shade nailed halfway down.

The rest of the flat, however, was cheerful and well kept, plentifully stocked with food and full of work-saving appliances.

In court today, Mrs. Sullivan maintained a stony calm. After she was led out, however, she sobbed, "I know I did wrong. I know he hates me . . . I didn't want anybody to know about him."

Today Gerald was happy, enjoying a life he had never known at home. He wore boy's clothes and shyly made friends with other children in his foster home. He ate hungrily.

After nine years, he had found a world other children take as a matter of course. And his mother, whose shame took an incredible course, was the one who was alone.

CIO Seeks to Have Rent Bill Sent Back to House Committee

Federal rent controls any time they choose.

Even some Administration leaders appeared to doubt they could muster sufficient strength to turn back an amendment by Representative John Bell Williams (D., Miss.) proposing to give State Legislatures or comparable governing bodies of counties and cities power to veto Federal rent ceilings.

Under Williams' amendment, which has bipartisan support, the housing expediter must decontrol any area 15 days after a governing body of such area has sent him a registered letter certifying passage of a resolution calling for decontrol.

Would Allow Slidestep

The amendment has a strong appeal for members of Congress of both political parties, besieged as they are by both tenants and landlords among their constituency. The Williams plan would obviously enable baffled congressmen to turn the whole matter back to their own areas and tell constituents the remedy for grievances lies in their own hands.

Republican forces in the House have already served notice they will ask for recommittal of the bill with instructions to amend it to a simple extension of the present law for 90 days.

On the Senate side, the filibuster situation has piled a heavy accumulation of stumbling blocks in the way of final action on rent control.

Although a Senate Banking subcommittee yesterday voted to strengthen several provisions of the bill, the measure has many committee hurdles to surmount.

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the full committee has bluntly served notice the committee will not vote on rents until "the situation in the Senate is resolved."

Both Federal and District of Columbia laws expire March 31 and it is conceded that they will not be renewed if ever allowed to expire.

The District rent control extension bill is expected to be brought up for House action directly following disposition of the national rent legislation. The local measure also would extend controls until June 31, 1950.

A public hearing on extension of District rent control will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday before the Senate District Insurance and Banking Subcommittee.

In announcing the hearing, Subcommittee Chairman J. Allen Frear, jr., urged all witnesses to be "as brief as possible" in their testimony. The hearing will be held in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol.

Senator Charles Tobey (R., N. H.), ranking committee Republican and a former rent control supporter, said he favored an extension for six months only to enable the individual States to take over this job if they desire.

States' Job, Tobey Says

Tobey said he believed the time had come for cutting off extensions of wartime controls and returning those powers to the States.

"Some 40 State Legislatures will be meeting in the next six months," Tobey said. "This would put them on notice to take action on rent control if they wish."

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the subcommittee drafting a rent control extension bill, told reporters there is "rather a strong feeling" in the subcommittee "that the individual States ought to get started on standby rent control laws of their own and get them on the statute books."

Sparkman and his committee, nevertheless, have been devoting conscientious effort to drafting a strong rent control law.

Points Agreed On

The subcommittee has not yet agreed on the length of time the law should operate but it has decided upon these provisions:

1. The Federal rent control administrator may reestablish rent controls in any area where local advisory boards urge it.

2. Permanent residential hotel units will be recontrolled at the rent level of October 31, 1948. Trailer camps used for permanent residences may be recontrolled if local advisory boards approve.

3. The rent control administrator may sue for triple damages in behalf of tenants for excess rent collected above ceilings.

4. Luxury apartments renting for $290 or more a month will be decontrolled. The Housing Expediter could fix a lower cut-off figure if he determined there were luxury apartments in an area renting for less than $290.

Administration Stand On Pay Increases Being Formulated

The Administration's personnel bigwigs are in a huddle—trying to write a report to cover the many bills in Congress to increase Federal salaries.

Pressure for the report—which is supposed to reveal the Administration's stand on the pay problem—is being exerted by both the Senate and House Civil Service Committees. It's a good bet that the report will make these points:

1. That the door will be left open a wee bit to another over-all pay raise, but the Administration definitely won't recommend any specific amount or formula for a pay raise.

2. That no pay bill now before Congress will be indorsed by the Administration. However, the report will approve any move by the Congress to eliminate the inequalities in the pay system.

3. That the Classification Act should be streamlined and salaries fixed in relation to the responsibility of the many jobs.

NATIONAL DEFENSE: Louis Johnson, the nominee to be National Defense Secretary, had a closed session the other day with the top civilian defense assistants. He emphasized these two points: (1) that he wanted all Secretary Forrestal's assistants to remain on the job, and (2) that he would leave politics at the door when he took the oath of office.

NFFE: The executive council of the independent National Federation of Federal Employes yesterday again called on Congress to enact the Federal employe loyalty program into permanent law. Its statement in part:

"The membership of the NFFE comprises an accurate cross-section of Federal personnel who feel that Government employes can have but one loyalty; who have not been disturbed or impressed by raucous cries that 'morale of the Federal service is being undermined' by the investigations; and who do not believe that the investigations are either destroying or jeopardizing the civil rights of Federal employes.

"Much has been said about the danger of the use of association as a test of determining loyalty. It is perfectly clear, however, that so much publicity has been given to the list of subversive organizations issued by the Justice Department that Federal employes and those desiring to enter the Federal service have been put upon full and ample notice that if an individual insists upon association with dubious groups or individuals, a natural result properly can be that the Government as an employer declines either to admit such persons into its employ or to continue on its rolls employes who maintain such associations.

"The best possible way to avoid suspicion is to shun suspicious persons and questionable activities. Day to day developments continue to furnish incontrovertible evidence that there are two types of employes whose continuance in the Federal service is dangerous to the national welfare.

"First, there are those who, deliberately and with their eyes open, engage in subversive practices. Second, there are those who from extreme naivete, plain gullibility, or mental instability, lend themselves to the uses of stronger and more unscrupulous characters. Vigorous enforcement of the loyalty program is plainly vital. Beyond that, it is essential to insure its continuance as a bulwark of security from subversives."

JOBS: There are openings in the Air Force for these employes: lithographic pressmen, $1.59 an hour; lithographic photographer, $1.90 an hour; photostat and blueprint operator, and photographic aides, $2284 a year, and ozalid worker, $2498 a year. Call Republic 6700, Branch 3167 for details.

NAVY will give the first of its 50-year service pins to three employes of the Naval Gun Factory here Thursday. The awards will be made by Assistant Secretary Kimball who will direct Navy's civilian employes. Navy has 5 50-year employes, three of them in this city. The three are: Wallace E. Mattingly, John N. Sioussa and George Poole.

Navy also has 600 civilians who have 40 or more years of service: 7200 with 30 years of service, and 21,000 with 20 years of service.

UNEMPLOYMENT: The Administration has asked the Senate to vote $9,013,000 additional for FSA's Bureau of Employment Security. If the money is approved, the State offices of the bureau will be able to hire more than 5000 employes. Also, increased salaries for State employes will be paid from the appropriation.

In a message to the Senate, the Budget Bureau explained that its original estimates of BES operations were made before the "recent substantial rise in unemployment" and before the salaries of many state employes were raised.

HOUSE CIVIL SERVICE Committee meets again today on the bill to raise the salaries of Federal executives. There's some hope that something along the lines of the Senate bill will be approved.

The Miller subcommittee yesterday gave its okay to the Murray bill which would give married women employes the same survivorship rights as men. Under the present law a married woman can't assign survivorship benefits to her husband. The bill was indorsed by Warren Irons, chief of Civil Service's retirement division. Meantime, the Senate committee is planning full-dress hearings on all retirement bills. Chairman Johnston will conduct the hearings.

High Court To Rule on NCHA Rent Control Case

Law on Lease Increases To Be Decided; 8000 Units Involved

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to decide whether the Federal Government, like any private landlord, must obey the District's rent control law.

The case involves some 8000 wartime built housing units controlled by the National Capital Housing Authority. The Court of Appeals last September ruled rents in these units are subject to control under the law.

The court argument began when NCHA attempted to raise from $38.20 to $43 the monthly rent of Reginald P. Wittek, a Navy machinist living at 5 Quadrant Green sw. Wittek and six others went to court.

The Government claimed it was exempt from rent control and the Municipal Court agreed. But the Court of Appeals reversed the decision and upheld Wittek.

John Ihlder, executive officer of the NCHA then asked the Justice Department to take the case to the Supreme Court.

Ihlder declared that NCHA rents are set at cost levels, that the agency makes no profit, and that when costs increase, rents must go up as well or, in effect, the agency would be subsidizing tenants.

Affected by the outcome of the court case are these NCHA units: 3259 low rent permanent dwellings and 4837 war housing units, of which all except 600 are of temporary construction.

Supreme Court Asked to Rule In Fares Case

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to settle the disagreement between the Capital Transit Co. and two Virginia bus lines over the joint-fare system for riders to points across the Potomac River.

A three-judge tribunal in District Court last November upheld the District traction line and set aside an Interstate Commerce Commission order prescribing the joint fares and transfer privileges and specifying how the fares were to be split. The other lines are the A. B. & W. Transit Co. and the W., Va. and Md. Coach Co., Inc.

It was testified last fall that 24 per cent of the 17,000 bus riders to and from Virginia points such as the Pentagon and Navy Annex had been using the joint fare system.

During the court battle between the transit lines, commuters have been receiving 6-cent receipts on cash fares. If the appeal should be upheld by the high court, these receipts would be redeemable.

The District Court held that Capital Transit runs to the Virginia points did not constitute interstate commerce and therefore the District Public Utilities Commission, not the ICC, could control fares. In asking the Supreme Court to hear the case, the Government said the District Court was wrong in this decision.

Capital Transit yesterday asked the high court to affirm the District Court decision or else dismiss the case but the two other bus lines asked a hearing on the issues involved in the controversy.

Colasanto Wins Plea For Audit

Alexandria Council Agrees to Financial Check of His Tenure

The Alexandria City Council yesterday granted the request of Nicholas A. Colasanto that an audit be made of the city's finances covering the period of his tenure as city manager.

The ousted city manager, who left office last night, said he made the request because, "I think the people of Alexandria are entitled to an audit." Colasanto said he did not "deem it proper" to answer the 10 charges of failure levied against him when he was fired last Tuesday. He indicated, however, that the audit would answer some of them.

Among the charges made against him were that he failed to pay off a $200,000 note owed by the city last December and that he failed to see that certain work was performed, as called for in the 1948 budget.

The auditing firm of Ernst & Ernst is scheduled to start work on an audit of the city's 1948 account in the next few days. The effect of yesterday's resolution, which passed unanimously, will be to extend the period covered by the audit to include 1949 through yesterday.

Meanwhile, there were these developments in the council squabble that followed the ousting of Colasanto by a 4-to-3 vote.

1. Robert S. Marshall, jr., local housing administrator, who was picked as Colasanto's temporary successor by the same vote, took the oath of office and posted bond yesterday preparatory to taking over as city manager today.

2. Councilman R. Samuel Luckett said he had asked the city attorney to prepare an amendment to Ordinance No. 430 to assure the legality of Marshall's appointment. The amendment, Luckett said, would empower the council to make immediate appointment in the case of death, sudden firing or resignation of city officials without giving the two weeks' public notice now required by the ordinance.

Extra Funds Asked For Justice, Treasury

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to provide an extra $1,380,000 for the Justice Department and $1500 for the Treasury Department.

The amount for the Justice Department includes $1,300,000 to meet salaries and expenses of employes handling claims against the Government by persons of Japanese ancestry. An additional $80,000 was asked for legal activities and general administration in the criminal division.

The Treasury Department fund is to cover benefit payments to White House police and the Secret Service.

Self-Defense Pleaded in Slaying Case

Alice Logan Fired In Fear of Life, Her Lawyer Says As Trial Begins

Alice Lucille Logan, 24-year-old former cigar store clerk, pleaded self-defense yesterday in the slaying of her sweetheart, William Green.

The woman, whose trial began in District Court yesterday, is charged with shooting Green three times last November 11 as he tried to flee the room once allegedly occupied jointly by the couple at 654 Morton pl. nw.

Prosecutor Cecil Heflin told the jury of seven men and five women that the defendant fired the fatal shots in a rage at the news that Green was returning to his wife, Ethel.

Brutality Alleged

Defense Attorney John H. Wilson, in his opening statement described Green, a former postal employe and former pugilist, as "a vicious and brutal man" who had beaten Alice Logan and who had once used force to get her to commit an unconventional sex act.

He said the defendant fired in fear of her life when Green ran into his bedroom apparently to get his pistol.

Alonzo Hopkins, a janitor in the building, testified he heard "a riot" and said he saw the defendant fire three shots at the fleeing man.

Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut is presiding at the trial.

Jury Selection Slow

The first degree murder trial of Lawrence Goodall, 24, of 412 Oakdale pl. nw., charged with the hold-up-slaying last October 12 of Nathaniel Johnson, druggist, was recessed yesterday until 10 a. m. today, with final selection of a jury still uncompleted.

Selection of a jury in the Goodall trial started at 10 a. m. By the time the 11 tentative jurors were selected, the original panel of 46 had been exhausted by challenges.

Indictments Charge Two With Swindles

A spinster and an Army colonel were listed yesterday by the District grand jury as victims in separate swindles totaling almost $24,000.

Indicted on charges of false pretenses was Mrs. Helen L. Adams, 32, of 1834 Columbia rd. nw. James K. McCarty, police investigator, charged that Mrs. Adams over a three-year period took $22,500 from her erstwhile landlady, Miss Marion L. Grimes.

Miss Grimes gave the money involved to Mrs. Adams to settle the estates of two brothers, it was said. The elderly woman was to receive her money back plus use of a house in Arlington for a boarding house, it was alleged.

Police said that Miss Grimes was told by Mrs. Adams that she had two adopted brothers who had become wealthy and that she was sole heir to their fortune of more than $150,000.

Charged with grand larceny and larceny after trust of $1548 was Frederick M. Russ, 29, a former real estate man. The victim, according to the grand jury, was Col. Marcus S. Griffin, of Fort Knox, Ky.

In the Russ case, it was related that Colonel Griffin last year was seeking to purchase a home here. When he went to a real estate firm, he found Russ, who promised him a home if payments were proper. After three months, Colonel Griffin demanded his money back, but was refused, according to police.

Two Groups Fight Proposal For Shifts in Four Schools

A proposal by school officials to juggle use of four school buildings to provide quarters for the city's Americanization program hit a snag yesterday.

Two groups, the Adams School Parent-Teacher Association, and parents of children attending sight-saving, Braille and hearing conservation classes at the Adams School, said they would oppose the transfers.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning and his staff have recommended that the Board of Education move pupils attending the special classes out of the Adams School into two other schools to provide for the Americanization program.

The board will act on the recommendation when it meets Wednesday at 2:50 p. m. at the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. nw.

Under the proposal, Americanization students, most fo them adults would use one floor of the Adams School, 19th and California sts. nw., while elementary students continued to use another floor.

Pupils in special classes would be split between the Cooke School, 17th and Euclid sts. nw., and the Tyler School, 11th and H sts. se. The Webster School, 10th and H sts. nw., currently housing the Americanization program, would be turned into an office building for school personnel.

Donald B. MacPhail of the Adams P.-TA, said that his organization is 100 per cent opposed to "lumping" adults and children in the same building.

O. H. O'Flaherty, spokesman for the parents of the Braille, sight saving and hearing conservation students, said decentralization of the special program for handicapped children may result in their losing as much as a year in their studies while adjusting to new environments.

The Adams School has been specially equipped to meet their needs, he said.

He pointed out that classes at Adams are small, to permit the handicapped children to mix with normal children, who are used to seeing others with hearing aids and thick glasses; teachers are familiar with the program, and the school has a cafeteria. The handicapped children would have none of those benefits at either Cooke or Tyler, the spokesman said.

Both MacPhail and O'Flaherty said they will attend the board meeting to oppose Dr. Corning's proposal.

Retired Brewmaster Samples Bock . . .

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

ANOTHER SPRING IS NEAR—Fritz Klein, 68, of Vienna, Va., who arrived from Germany, some 50 years ago, samples a stein of bock beer yesterday after his tour of duty as a special policeman for the Heurich Brewery. Klein retired some years ago after serving years as a brewmaster in West Virginia and as kettleman for the old Abner Drury Brewery here. Five years ago he came out of retirement and took his present job with Heurich—just to "keep in touch." He and his wife raise chickens at their Vienna home

Bandits Rob Filling Station, Two Groceries

Hour's Work Yields $270; Attendant Locked in Rest Room

Holdup men victimized two grocery store owners and a filling station attendant of about $270 last night in wide-ranging forays, all within an hour.

Max Migdal, 43, owner of District Grocery Store No. 57, 2737 Sherman ave. nw., was robbed at gunpoint of about $150 about 8:35 p. m. Migdal said he was alone in the store when a man held him up after pretending to buy a package of cigarettes.

Migdal described the man as a light-skinned Negro, about 19 to 20 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, wearing an Army field jacket, mixed gray pants and a brown felt hat which he lost while escaping on foot along Harvard st. nw.

Frank P. Stanton, 22, of 5526 4th st. nw., attendant at the Takoma Service Station, 4th st. and Blair rd. nw., said nearly $80 was removed from the station cash register by a man who forced him into the rest room and jammed the door shut with a screwdriver.

Stanton said he was held up by a man about 25 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, with curly black hair, who wore an Army field jacket, and had what looked like a .38-caliber gun. He said the man was last seen walking south on Blair rd. nw.

Mrs. Esther Lotker, 59, of 5301 Edmonston rd., Hyattsville, Md., owner of Jack's Market, 1820 15th st. nw., said $40 was taken from her cash register by one of two men who ordered two small pork chops.

As she was cutting chops, Mrs. Lotker said, she heard the register ring, but didn't see the man in the front of the store because her "customer" at the meat counter purposely blocked her vision.

Mrs. Lotker said the two men who came into her store were Negroes, young and about 5 feet 5 inches tall.

Not For War

D. C. Woman Declines to Pay Tax Bill

A former woman Government economist and an ardent pacifist has told the Government she won't pay $80 in back income taxes because the money would be used for war.

Mrs. Miriam Cornelius, 50, of 9 2d sts. ne., admits she owes the money but says she will no longer "finance the manufacture of more weapons for mass destruction."

Mrs. Cornelius quit the Labor Department in December, 1947, after 12 years' service because she said she did not approve the use to which the taxes withheld from her Government salary were being put.

She said she and the Collector of Internal Revenue had exchanged correspondence on the question of her unpaid bill.

On the two occasions she received reminders from him, she said she wrote the collector personal letters outlining the reasons why she could not and would not pay.

Mrs. Cornelius says she is one of 41 United States citizens, calling themselves "The Peacemakers," who announced last week they would not comply with Federal income tax laws. Pointing out that 80 per cent of the United States budget "is devoted to past, present and future wars," some of the group have agreed to pay 20 per cent of their income tax.

But not Mrs. Cornelius.

Approximately $55 of her 1947 tax was not withheld, she said, and this she refuses to pay. In 1948, she said, her tax amounted to only $23, which she also refuses to pay.

Last March she wrote the Bureau of Internal Revenue in announcing her intentions, "I do not want to have a share in any future killing of human beings . . . or to contribute in any manner within my control toward preparations for another war."

Liquor Dealer Testifies to Price Boycott

Distributor Stopped Deliveries on Refusal To Obey, FTC Hears

A large retail liquor dealer yesterday testified that a wholesale liquor firm here refused to do business with him after he sold their products at prices lower than they suggested.

The testimony was brought out at Federal Trade Commission hearings to determine whether the Middle Atlantic Distributors, Inc., wholesalers of Canadian Club, Hiram Walker's Imperial, Walker's Distilled London Dy Gin and Walker's Deluxe, has entered into unlawful agreements with retail dealers in an attempt to set minimum resale prices in violation of the FTC Act.

Martin Goldberg, proprietor of the Giant Liquor Store at 3508 Georgia ave. nw., told the commission examiner he had received letters from the firm asking him to mark up their brands 33 1-3 per cent before reselling them. The letters stated that failure to comply with the minimum markup would result in termination of their business relations.

When he continued to sell at lower prices, Goldberg said he was denied further shipments of liquor.

Two representatives of the firm called on him after the shipments were stopped, he said, and told him he had "disobeyed" orders and the company could "no longer do business" with him.

In a conference with officials of the wholesale firm, during which Goldberg asked to be allowed to resume business with the firm, he said he was told that if they "let me go," they would have to do the same for everyone else and their requests would be worthless.

The distributors are presently being sued for $75,000 treble damages in the District Court by Maurice Milstone, owner of Milstone's Acme Liquor Store of 927 Pennsylvania ave. nw., on charges of illegal restraint of trade.

Milstone, also, claims the defendant refused to do business with him when he failed to comply with requests.

The FTC hearings will continue today at 10 a. m.

Red Cross Says Unemployment Among Veterans Is Serious

Unemployment among veterans is becoming a serious problem, statistics released by the District Red Cross Home Service yesterday indicated.

More than half of the sums spent by the home service in February went to veterans and their dependents, it was reported. A total of $5707.11 was expended in 1059 cases.

Aggravating the upward trend, according to the report, is the fact that a number of veterans are completing training in various fields and are finding themselves unable to make a work adjustment.

The number of transient veterans stranded in Washington without jobs continues to be high, concerning which the report stated: "Emotionally disturbed veterans are having greater difficulty adjusting to competition in employment."

Driver Hurt Fatally in County Race Of Two Cars

Police Hold Second Motorist Following Crash on Highway In Prince Georges

A Glenn Dale Sanitarium employe was killed last night on U. S. Route 50, one-half mile from Crain highway, Prince Georges County, during what police said was a race between the victim's car and another vehicle.

James M. Jones, 28, of Vista, Md., was pronounced dead at 10:15 p. m. at Freedmen's Hospital. Four of six other occupants of the two cars were injured.

Maryland State Trooper Noble K. Collison said Jones was racing with another car driven by Charles H. Wilson, 19, of Mitchellville, Md., along the Defense hwy.

The trooper said Wilson, to avoid head-on collison with a car coming in the opposite direction, ran into Jones' car.

One of Drivers Held in Death From Collision

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Payton Davis, 28, of 706 7th st. ne., held for action of the grand jury in connection with the death last month of John A. Butler after an auto-taxi collision at 8th and E sts. ne.

Butler, 51, of 6221 Clay st. ne., was a passenger in a cab driven by James F. Padgett, 60, of 906 Evarts st. ne., when the accident occurred on February 7. He died the following day at Casualty Hospital of a crushed chest and abdomen.

Ran Car Into Cab

Testimony showed Davis, a hospital attendant at Walter Reed, was driving north up 8th st. ne. when his car collided with Padgett's cab, which was traveling east on E. st. ne. across 8th st.

After the accident, Davis was charged with driving while drunk, driving at an unreasonable rate of speed, and failing to yield the right of way to the taxicab. His case has been continued in Municipal Court to April 19.

Tests made at Gallinger Hospital after the accident showed Davis to have .09 per cent of alcohol in his system, according to testimony by Cpl. Michael S. McCarthy, of the Accident Investigation Unit.

District Coroner Dr. Richard Rosenberg, testified a person is considered under the influence of alcohol only if he has .15 per cent of alcohol or more in his system.

Five Testify as to Speed

Five witnesses testified yesterday that Davis was traveling at a "more than normal" rate of speed. A. W. Gilmore, of 323 A st. ne., said he was on Maryland ave. ne. at 8th st. waiting for a stop light to change when he saw Davis travel up 8th st. at "40 to 50" miles per hour.

Davis, who took the stand voluntarily, said he had stopped for a red light at Maryland ave. and was traveling about 20 or 25 miles per hour when the accident took place. He said he had two bottles of beer at lunchtime the day of the accident, but nothing between then and the time of the crash about 8 p. m.

There First, He Says

Davis also testified he reached the intersection of 8th and E before the taxicab. Padgett had told the jury he stopped his cab at a stop sign before entering the intersection, and stated there were no other cars approaching on his right at that time.

In another action yesterday, the coroner's jury cleared Caroline S. Labold, 48, of 1312 Saratoga ave. ne., in connection with the traffic death of Alexander Randall, 85, of 1329½ 5th st. nw., after an accident February 15 at 5th and O sts. nw.

Boy, 9, Starts Fire In Friendship House

A 9-year-old boy yesterday started a fire in the attic of Friendship House, 619 D st. se., destroying books and some furniture before it was extinguished.

The boy, who admitted setting the fire, was believed to have set fire earlier to a waste-basket in the nearby Wallach Elementary School, where he is a third-grade pupil.

He was released in custody of his parents, pending investigaton by juvenile authorities.

According to police, the boy entered Friendship House during his school's lunch recess, and headed immediately upstairs. A social worker later chased him out. Within a few minutes, smoke was found in the attic.

Police questioned the boy, who remained near the scene. He admitted starting the fire with a match and candle, but could give no reason for his act, police said.

Miss E. M. Crook, principal of Wallach school, said the boy comes from "a very fine family but is a nervous child," who recently returned to school after a year's confinement in bed with tuberculosis.

Unlawful Healing Charged

Simon D. Brooks, 51, who police say operates a church-rooming house at 27 Logan Circle nw., was charged with violation of the healing arts law. According to Municipal Court papers, he gave without a license three bottles of medicine and a pill for a backache claimed by Policewoman Audrey Farr. The case was continued until Friday.

Tax Sales Advertised

A record list of tax delinquent properties was sent to three Montgomery County newspapers yesterday to be advertised for sale.

March 12 was the county deadline for payment to avoid publication of delinquency.

As of yesterday, a $5.50 penalty fee was assessed against delinquent bills. Of this amount, $4.50 is a charge for advertising each property, and $1 is a penalty.

County officials estimated the number of delinquents at between 1500 and 2000, as compared with about 700 last year.

Miss Tuffy, Ex-Nurse, Dead at 53

Miss Margaret L. Tuffy, 53, retired registered nurse, died Sunday at Doctors Hospital after a 10-day illness.

Miss Tuffy, before retiring because of ill health two years ago, worked for 16 years in the office of Drs. Charles Hyde and Ross Morris in the Medical Building.

Born in Scranton, Pa., the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Tuffy, she received her formal schooling there, coming to Providence Hospital for her nurse's training.

After she was graduated as a registered nurse from Providence she was supervisor of the emergency room, hospital division of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Miss Tuffy is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Thomas F. Nealon, Mrs. William L. Sullivan and Miss Mary Tuffy, all of Scranton; Mrs. Thomas Murray, Mrs. Bernard Duffy, of Kansas City; and one brother, John Tuffy, Phoenix, Ariz.

Funeral services will be held in the Cusicks funeral home in Scranton with requiem mass at the Church of Nativity, and burial in the Cathedral Cemetery.

Albert Roy

Montreal, March 14 (AP).—Albert Roy, 74, who retired six years ago as vice president of the International Union of Furriers of the United States and Canada, died today.

3 Men Indicted in Burglary Of Former Policeman's Home

Three men were indicted yesterday for the $61,900 burglary of the home of a former police sergeant here.

The District grand jury made the return after a vain effort by defense attorneys to prevent the filing of the indictment.

Indicted for housebreaking and grand larceny were Stance W. James, 29, of 1332 9th st., nw., Oliver W. James, 34, 1600 A st., se., and Louis H. Singleton, 40, of 910 Westminster st., nw. Stance James was also charged with carrying a pistol without a license.

Safe Also Taken

Victim of the burglary which included theft of his safe was Richard H. Beckley of 1800 New Jersey ave. nw. He now operates a pool hall.

The James brothers were arrested February 20 and then taken before United States Commissioner for arraignment. They were released on bail and then the commissioner twice continued the case.

The James attorneys contended that the indictment should be delayed until after the commissioner's hearing but the United States Court of Appeals found yesterday that the continuances were reasonable and within the law.

Indicted for alleged violations of numbers lottery laws were Lloyd Johnson, 25, and Frederick Burruss, 45, both of 1202 G st. ne.; Martha Clanton, 25, 2908 Georgia ave. nw., and Sinclair Lucas, 40, 70 Q st. nw.

Johns Reindicted

Alvin N. Johns, 17, was reindicted for second-degree shooting murder of Zeb Jeffries, 29, 1505 Vermont ave. nw. Johns was convicted recently of the same offense, but after the verdict he was discovered to be a juvenile and the conviction was voided. Juvenile Court waived jurisdiction thereafter, thus opening the way for a new District Court trial.

Charged with incest and carnal relations with his 15-year-old orphaned niece was William U. Cole, 36, of 311 4th st. se. Cole had been drinking and his wife was away at the time of the assault, according to police.

Joseph H. Alvey, 29, of Woodbridge, Va., was charged with taking indecent liberties with an eight-year-old boy. Milton T. Johnson, 36, of 600 Harvard st. nw, was indicted on a charge of taking indecent liberties with a six-year-old girl.

Dr. Donahue, Pharmacist For D. C., Dies

Dr. Thomas Francis Donahue, 57, chief pharmacist of the District Health Department, died of a cerebral hemorrhage yesterday in Georgetown Hospital.

Mr. Donahue

Born in Georgetown, Dr. Donahue took his degree in pharmacy at George Washington University after attending St. John's College Preparatory School and Dr. Donahue owned a drugstore for 18 years at Wisconsin ave. and O st. nw. Eight years ago he sold the store to become chief pharmacist in the Health Department.

He served three years as a pharmacist's mate at the Naval Medical School here in World War I.

Dr. Donahue lived with his wife, Mrs. Mary M. Donahue; two daughters, Mary Frances Donahue and Mary Ellen Donahue, and a son, Thomas Francis Donahue, jr., at 1631 35th st. nw.

Also surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Donahue; a sister, Mary H. Donahue, both of 3343 P st. nw., and four brothers, Dr. James J. Donahue, 211 E. Underwood st., Chevy Chase; Dr. Matthew E. Donahue, 3215 R st. nw.; Maurice K. Donahue, 119 Allan rd., Yorktown Village, Md., and John F. Donahue, 5912 Cedar Parkway, Chevy Chase.

Miss Newman Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Miss Magdalene R. Newman, 75, retired Department of Agriculture bibliographer, will be held today at 2 p. m. at the S. H. Hines Co., 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Mechanicsville, Ohio.

Miss Newman, who lived at 5330 Colorado ave. nw., died Saturday at the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital after a six-week illness.

A native of Mechanicsville, Miss Newman taught in the public schools there after her graduation from Ohio Wesleyan University. Later she was librarian of the Dayton, Ohio, public library.

In 1911 she came to Washington to become librarian at the Smithsonian Institution.

She was a member of the D. C. Library Society, the Ohio State Society and the American Association of University Women. Survivors include two nieces, Mrs. Charles S. Hyer of the Colorado ave. address, Miss Virginia Newman, of Beltsville, Md., two nephews, Dana B. Johannes, of Silver Spring, Md., and Herbert M. Newman, of Petersburg, W. Va.

Hugh A. Bell

Funeral services for Hugh A. Bell, 96-year-old retired building contractor, who died Sunday at Sibley Hospital, will be held at 11:30 a. m. today at Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial will be in Washington National Cemetery.

Mr. Bell was born in Orangebill, Canada, and later moved with his family to Memphis, Tenn., where he spent most of his life. He came to Washington six years ago to live with his daughter Mrs Ethel B. Rasure at 1900 Minnesota ave. se.

He also is survived by a son, Walter A. Bell who lives in Virginia.

W. H. Moore Dies; 45 Years In U. S. Service

William Herbert Moore, 63, a Federal employe for 45 years, died unexpectedly Sunday at his home, 1747 Church st. nw.

Mr. Moore

Mr. Moore started his Government career with the Post Office Department in Valdosta, Georgia, where he worked for 15 years.

Moving to Washington in 1918, Mr. Moore joined the audit review section of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and was employed there until ill health forced his retirement on January 1, 1949.

A graduate of Georgetown University Law School in the class of 1921, Mr. Moore was a member of the University Club and the Barristers Lodge, No. 48, FAAM.

Mr. Moore is survived by his widow, Pearl Lee Moore of the Church st., address, a step-mother, Mrs. William F. Moore, of Valdosta, Miss Christie Moore, of Valdosta, and Mrs. Fred Hills of Kenya, Africa, and three brothers, Redding, Terrice, and Felton Moore, all of Valdosta.

Funeral services will be held Wednseday at 3 p. m., at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw.

Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

I. Philip Dinowitzer

Private funeral services for I. Philip Dinowitzer, 67, a director of the Euclid Nursery School, 1428 Euclid st., nw., were held Saturday in Miami, Fla.

Mr. Dinowitzer died Friday in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, following a heart attack, while on a holiday outing with his wife, the former Miss Lillian Kisliuk, and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lasky of Santurce, Puerto Rico.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Dinowitzer attended schools there, and later worked for a number of years in the jewelry designing business. In 1907 he moved to Washington and established a hardware business.

The Euclid Nursery School was started by Mr. Dinowitzer and his wife in 1929.

Besides his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Lasky, Mr. Dinowitzer is also survived by another daughter, Mrs. Wilma Barron, of New York; a grandson, Geoffrey Warlock Barron, of New York; two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Denwit and Mrs. Evelyn Moss, and a brother, Abe Denwit, all of Los Angeles, Calif.

Col. John O'Laughlin Dies; Publisher of Service Journal

Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, 76, publisher of the Army and Navy Journal and assistant Secretary of State under President Theodore Roosevelt, died last night at Walter Reed Army General Hospital.

Mr. O'Laughlin

Colonel O'Laughlin's death ends a distinguished career in journalism.

From 1893, when he was employed in the Washington bureau of the New York Herald, until his death, his ability and interest led him to the four corners of the world.

He covered the blockade of Venezuela in 1902; he was in Europe for the Associated Press on roving assignment during 1903 and 1904; he was in Moscow at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War.

Returning to this country he worked in Chicago for the Tribune, became its Washington correspondent and stayed until 1914, when he switched to the Chicago Herald.

Followed T. R. to Africa

In 1910 he pursued Teddy Roosevelt deep into the African jungles, and came back with exclusive stories and the material for a book, "From the Jungle Through Europe With Roosevelt."

His devotion to T. R. was ardent, and the President appointed Colonel O'Laughlin to many jobs of state including secretary to the United States Commission to the Tokyo Exposition, and First Assistant Secretary of State.

He began a distinguished World War I career in January, 1918, under Major General Goethals, acting Quartermaster General of the Army. He was later sent to France where he served in the Intelligence Section.

For five years after the war he worked in the advertising business in Chicago and in the post of assistant to the chairman of the United States Shipping Board.

Bought Journal in 1925

And in 1925 he bought the Army and Navy Journal, an acquisition close to his heart, for he had become convinced that the way to peace in America was through armed strength.

Under his leadership that publication was raised to the highest level of circulation and prestige in its 85-year history.

In 1944, Colonel O'Laughlin ably withstood a blast from the Russian newspaper Pravada, which declared the Journal was publishing "pro-Hitlerite propaganda." Colonel O'Laughlin admited a long admiration for the Russian people, but dismissed the Pravada charges as "silly" and reaffirmed his responsibility to "defend and support" America and Americans.

Wins Army Certificate

A year ago, in recognition of his services as publisher of the Journal, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall presented Colonel O'Laughlin with the Department of the Army Certificate of Appreciation, which read in part:

"His untiring devotion to the best interests of the United States . . . constitute an important contribution to the Army and the maintenance of national defense.

In 1896 Colonel O.Laughlin married Miss Mabel Hudson of Philadelphia, who served as president and secretary of the corporation which published the Journal. She died in December, 1947. They had no children.

He was a member of the Gridiron Club, the National Press Club, and the Chevy Chase Club. His home was at 2435 California st., nw.

Lawrence H. Lund

Pittsburgh, March 14 (U.P.).—Lawrence H. Lund, vice president and treasurer of Westinghouse Electric Corp., died of a heart attack in his office here today. Lund, 51, joined Westinghouse in 1921, in the accounting department. He was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank at Cleveland.

MISS KATHARINE MATTHIES, third vice president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, (left) and Mrs. David Clearman, State regent of the D. C. Society, D.A.R., met at the District society's forty-eighth annual conference meeting yesterday when the former reported and the latter presided

Oppose World Government

Resolutions Adopted At District DAR Parley

By Genevieve Reynolds

Delegates to the D. C. Daughters of the American Revolution's Forty-eighth State Conference, yesterday adopted a series of resolutions calling for the extension of the Un-American Activities Committee; expulsion of Communists from Government service; opposition to Federal Aid to Education and Compulsory Health Insurance.

The some 180 delegates representing more than 60 chapters in the District also went on record in opposition to world government. All resolutions with exception of the Federal Aid to Education were unanimously indorsed with loud applause. Four delegates voted against it.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, speaking against the resolution on Federal Aid to Education, declared, "education is the basis of democracy. Federal Aid to Education will be no more controlled than our land grant colleges which have existed for 100 years."

One delegate talking against the resolution said that the poor country sections need Federal aid to pay teachers adequate salaries and to bring up the educational standards of backward areas.

Ban on Magazines

Mrs. Wilfred J. Clearman, chairman of the resolutions, contended that Federal Aid to Education meant federally controlled schools and a step onward to socialism.

Today the delegates will vote on resolutions opposing the International Labor Organization's proposed "Freedom of Association and Protection of the Rights to Organize, 1948," participation of the United States in International Trade Organizations, plus a resolution calling for the ban of the "senior scholastic" magazines from the District of Columbia schools.

Another resolution passed at the afternoon session held yesterday in the Smithsonian Institution's auditorium called upon the District Daughters to inform themselves and expose whenever possible the menace of communism and Fabianism. "Ideologies of communism and Fabianism threaten to destroy our form of government by subtle infiltration into schools and colleges in the name of youth movements," stated the resolution, "into women's groups in the name of peace; into labor groups in the name of higher wages and control and even into church and patriotic organizations."

Commending the Committee on un-American Activities of the House of Representatives for its work in exposing subversive activities, conference delegates further requested the committee to "intensify, expand and broaden its scope in the exposure of all subversive activities in our country and its dependencies, and in our armed forces both within and outside the Continental United States."

Expose Communism

Contending that various groups and individuals in the name of world peace are seeking to set up a superstate for World Government, the adopted resolution put the State delegates on record as "being unalterably opposed to World Government."

The resolution calling for the expulsion of all Communists from Government service also asked that any person connected with any sort of Communist Front organization be removed from Government service and that every precaution be taken to prevent the employment of any such persons hereafter.

Opposition to Federal aid to education expressed in the indorsed motion was based on: (1) Rejection of similar bills by Congress for the past 12 years; (2) System of local and State collection and dispensation of taxes; (3) Taxes would come from same sources but be administered by the Federal Government; (4) Education would be federally controlled.

Expense of maintaining a Federal Health Bureau would leave very little collected from health insurance in which to give the patient sufficient medical care was one of the many reasons advanced by the resolution opposing Compulsory Health Insurance.

Representative Ralph W. Gwinn of New York, principal speaker at the morning session, predicted "By 1956 at the latest we will have a Socialist Labor government unless we do something to prevent it immediately."

He called upon the District delegates to return to their home districts where they were born to participate in politics and to form an opposition army to the CIO's Political Action Committee. "Let's crusade now in the election districts for freedom and fight further encroachment of socialism," asserted Gwinn.

Medals Awarded

Citations and medals were awarded to 10 winners in the District DAR's Good Citizenship Pilgrimage Contest by Miss Katharine Matthies, third vice president general and Mrs. Roy C. Bowker, national chairman, DAR Good Citizenship Pilgrimage. Prize winners included Elizabeth Manney of Roosevelt High School, first; Joan Whitehurst of McKinley High, second; Gracia Taketa of Woodrow Wilson, third.

Honorable mention and citations went to Nancy Born of Anacostia High School; Elaine Cohn of Anna Burdich Vocational High School; Sarah Pfeiffer of Calvin Coolidge High School; Billie Jean Rainey of Central High School; Dora Dolores Smith of Chamberlain Vocational School; Angela Bachman of Eastern High School and Billie Jean Cox of Western High School.

Featured at last night's session were reports of the State regents and committee chairmen. Resolutions and continuation of reports will highlight today's session which will get under way at 9:30 a. m. in the auditorium of the Natural History Building of the Smithsonian Institution.

Danish Pianist Visiting Here

Dr. Victor Schoeler, Denmark's foremost pianist, and Mrs. Schoeler are staying at the Shoreham Hotel for a few days before going to Chicago where he has an engagement with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The visitors were the guests in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hansen, also of Denmark, gave a dinner at the Shoreham. Both the Schoelers and the Hansens expect to return to their home country next month. But Dr. and Mrs. Schoeler will be back in the fall.

MRS. NORMAN LITTELL (center) as program chairman of the Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon yesterday, arranged to have as guest speaker the Ambassador from Burma, U So Nyun (left) to give club members a background of Burmese life. Greeting the speaker is Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, president of the club

Burma Unknown Country Says Envoy

By Nicha Soure

Burma is reaffirming her faith in the charter of the United Nations "despite many setbacks," the Ambassador from Burma, U So Nyun, told members of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday at the club's weekly luncheon meeting.

"America knows as little of Burma as Burma knows of America," he said in giving the club members a general view of the history and economic life of the country.

Too often Americans are associated with Hollywood divorces while in the American's mind, via cheap novels and movies, Burma is a country of murders, witchcraft, man-eating tigers and idolatry, according to the Ambassador. Nowhere, he continued, does one hear of the Burmese civilization where temples were built, at the time of the Norman conquest of England, that are still wonders of the world.

Although once an independent kingdom, after three wars with the British, Burma was "tacked on" to the Indian empire through a "political accident," the Burmese Ambassador said. On January 4, 1948 Burma was given her independence by an act of the British Parliament but "all is not milk and honey today," he declared.

In Ambassador Nyun's opinion one must expect restlessness and discontent in a country steeped in poverty after a war which is in the transition period from political subjugation to political independence. He said the trouble lay in the short supply of machines and the difficulties in transportation and communication.

In a question and answer period following the talk, the Burmese Ambassador said there was a Communist Party in Burma but the government would suppress all violence and revolutionary methods. "We are not opposed to varied political ideas," he said, "but we are opposed to the revolutionary methods used."

The Burmese Ambassador reminded the clubwomen that although it takes big countries to win a war, it takes a collection of small countries to win the peace.

Wash the Bread Box

Bread boxes should be washed weekly and dried thoroughly. If possible they may be put in the sun to air.

Fruit Compote for Dessert

A delicious fruit compote for dinner desserts may be made from orange segments, pineapple, pear slices and halved preserved figs.

Zestful Cream Sauce

Cream sauce for vegetables takes on new interest when it is flavored with lemon sauce, Worcestershire sauce and celery salt.

Orange Grating Tips

Grate orange rind before squeezing for juice.

In grating, only the colored portion of the rind should be removed. This portion contains the oils that give the flavor.

Use a grater or shredder to remove rind.

When the shredder-type is used, the resulting grated peel is in the form of fluffy orange flakes.

To remove all the rind from the grater quickly and easily, use a dry vegetable brush.

It's easier to wash the grater right after using—use the vegetable brush again.

Woman Fears Her Dear Husband May Get Involved in Serious Trouble, Due to His Confidante Role in Deadly Feud

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Tom and Fay have been married 20 years and have two daughters, 18 and 19. They adore their father and he is devoted to them.

For about five years everyone thought they were a happy family; then something happened between Fay and Tom and they grew apart. When they weren't fighting they were ignoring each other, and gradually they lost all their friends except my husband—who is Tom's best friend.

Seth and I, being very happy, naturally are very sorry for them; but within the past year I've grown very nervous about Tom's behavior. He has rushed to our home speaking excitedly with great emotion about Fay's refusal to divorce him. And once he told Seth, when they were alone in the library, that he could choke her to death.

Man's Best Friend Has Hateful Wife

I AM AFRAID that my dear husband will get involved in serious trouble if he doesn't drop Tom; but he answers me with, "what kind of a friend do you think I am?" He tries to bring them together, without actually entering their harsh arguments.

Tom and Fay have separate rooms, absolutely no intimacy, and can't be happy together, he tells my husband. He is a prosperous business man and would like to settle quietly for a Reno divorce, giving Fay the house and a comfortable income, but she refuses to sign the papers. She says he may go with other women or live with women, but she will not release him. She nags him and laughs at him and says the law is on her side.

I think Tom is interested in another woman but my husband denies it. He says all the poor man wants is peace, and that I don't know the half of what goes on. The neighbors are talking but Seth has warned me not to gossip. I think the wife is slightly insane; and I am very worried about the whole thing and really want help. What can be done? A. J.

Close Friends Lack Helpful Objectivity

DEAR A. J.: It is an axiom of psychiatry that you can't help an agitated person "see straight" if you become emotionally involved in his distraction. That's why "best friends" are seldom able to give constructive advice to a feuding husband or wife.

They tend to take sides, or offer soothing sirup, instead of appraising the whole picture objectively, searching it with impartial interest, and prodding the complainant to a "saving" awareness of his own shortcomings or blind spots, which usually are 90 per cent responsible for his "trouble."—and which are the first obstacle to be overcome, in rising out of his chronic difficulty.

This is the only real help anybody can give another who is wrestling blindly with a hated or hateful relationship. And your husband hasn't given such help to Tom, or Tom wouldn't be going in circles, in a fog of self pity, and talking dangerously of choking Fay for viciously laughing off his wish to escape from her.

Acts Like Horse in Burning Barn

YOU HAVE cause to be worried for Tom as well as Fay; and it is high time Seth realized that he has failed absolutely in the role of would-be conciliator. Tom is showing no more sense than a horse trying to escape from a burning barn; and he needs stiff applications of logic to quiet him down, before he gets "hipped" on the notion that Fay is the sole enemy of his happiness.

Very likely Fay is mentally ill; and maybe she is unconsciously courting destruction at Tom's hands, as a vindicative way out of her own misery. But the fact that she won't "give" him a divorce—the "easy" solution of strife he wants—doesn't make him a candidate, per se, for sentimental sympathy. Rather is puts his character to test. It requires him to show whether he is a man or a muddlehead;—and so far, he's been a muddlehead.

If Fay is wickedly making life hell for him, he is morally entitled to leave her, and with fine legal help he can surely establish constructive grounds for doing so. And if he is so mixed up now that he doesn't know right from wrong, or so stymied by guilt feelings that he shuns an open hearing, then he should have top-quality psychiatric treatment to clear his head. But bawling to Seth is no help whatever; and Seth is "de-railing" him by encouraging it.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Youth Agencies and Democracy

American families are fortunate in having so many fine youth agencies to which the young people of the family may belong. This week one of these groups, the Camp Fire Girls, is celebrating its national birthday.

Fathers and mothers will be interested to know that the Camp Fire Girls are working hard to help their members learn a kind of living democracy that should carry over into home living. Not only does the program stress the good-neighbor policy through sending food and clothing to needy youngsters abroad, but in the everyday activities of the members the ways of democracy are being learned.

Here, for instance, is a description of a meeting of 7 and 8 year old.s. The girls are planning a hike. After there had been a majority vote to go on the hike rather than to visit the newspaper plant in town, "winners and losers enthusiastically joined in making the next decisions: Sue and Jane would choose the trail, Dot and Betty would do the marketing, Peg would supervise the lunch-packing," and so on through the group. Each group was proud of its own part in the cooperative expedition; each felt a personal responsibility toward making sure that everyone had fun.

In Bridal Procession

The marriage of Miss Jeanne Kaplan to Joseph Levin took place March 6 at the Broadmoor Hotel.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Luba Kaplan and the late Morris Kaplan. Mr. Levin's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Levin.

Mrs. Levin wore a ballerina length gown of dusty rose taffeta and royal blue lace and she carried white orchids with her white Bible. Mrs. Isadore Widre of Santa Monica, Calif., was matron of honor. Sam Levin served his brother as best man.

Following their Bermuda cruise, Mr. and Mrs. Levin will live in Washington.

Sherbert—LaMotte

Mr. and Mrs. John Leroy Sherbert have returned from their honeymoon in South Carolina to reside in Washington. They were married on February 21 in Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride is the former Miss Doreen Elzine LaMotte, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. John LaMotte of Orlando, Fla.

Dunbar—Coan

Miss Janet Speer Coan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Speer Coan of Karachi, Pakistan, and Washington, D. C., was married on March 12 at Princeton, N. J., to Jack Dunbar, son of William G. Dunbar and the late Mrs. Dunbar of Cleveland, Ohio. The Rev. Guy Bensinger performed the ceremony in Miller Chapel of the Princeton Theologial Seminary.

Miss Nancie S. Coan was her sister's only attendant and Stuart F. G. Coan was best man for his brother-in-law. The newlyweds will make their home in New York.

Mrs. Dunbar was graduated from Hartridge School in Plainfield, N. J., and Vassar College.

Glynn—Warvel

The marriage of Mrs. Gertrude Young Warvel to William Hodgson Glynn 3d of Pittsburgh, Pa., took place on March 12 in the chapel of Foundry Methodist Church. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris performed the ceremony.

William A. Young gave his cousin in marriage and Miss Eliza Crump was her only attendant. Jack Edwards served his brother-in-law as best man.

The bride wore a black suit with a black picture hat trimmed with lace and pink roses. Her corsage was of lavender orchids. The newlyweds will reside in Washington. Mr. Glynn, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. William H. Glynn 2d of Pittsburgh, was graduated from St. Vincent's College and also studied at Duke University, Harvard and the University of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Glynn is the sister of Carey Lenox Young of East St Louis, Ill.

Cliff-Dwellers Building Pyramids; Eric Johnston Learns Cinema Protocol

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THINGS WE'VE LIKED LATELY. Rebecca West's remark anent a famous American journalist: "He's a very dear chap. But he's massively insulated against intelligence."—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman passing on a wisecrack about Washington's outstanding widows. Lumped together generically, they're called the "Fifty Overage Destroyers."

The small but determined trickle of fashionable ladies converging at a Massachusetts ave. residence for an enjoyable Sunday afternoon Pyramid Club get-together—The Croonolas, small blue plastic kazoos, presented guests as afterdinner noisemakers at Mrs. George Mesta's party for Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder.

Eric Johnston, newly returned from California, tells a story pointing up to Hollywood's sensitivity to marital mixup. At a dinner-dance given in the Johnstons' honor by Irene Dunne, he leaned across his hostess to Bob Montgomery, announced he was baout to dance with the latter's wife. However, Mrs. George Murphy, seated on Eric's left, had no partner, so he trod a measure with her. Returning to his seat, Montgomery glared at him. "And, may I ask," he snarled, "just who do you think is my wife?"—And, speaking of things cinematic, the cheerful prospect of bouncy Betty Hutton, plus other twinklers, Washington weekending for the President's News Photographers' dinner and being cocktailed Friday by Johnston in the Motion Picture Industry's snappy I st. building.

Off the Shoulder

MILWAUKEE CHANTEUSE HILDEGARDE'S new-line, off-shoulder evening dresses: At the premiere of J. Arthur Rank's "Saraband," a full blown green and black checked taffeta skirt, the black lacy blouse long sleeved, the decolletage straight across arms, bosom, at least six inches below shoulder tip. At Mrs. Mesta's, a skintight black lace sheath, its similar decollete edged with pink ribbon threaded ruffles.

After Sunday's abortive peace conference, Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle's wry compliment to Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas. "Scott's middle initial should be 'P' instead of 'W.' The P standing for 'patience,' of course."—The necktie printed all over with sailing ships, a favorite of Senator Paul Douglas, who hails from inland Illinois.

Jean Palmer, former Waves captain, now admissions head at Barnard, in town briefly, finds the most difficult civilian life adjustment, having to wear high heels on social occasions.—Odd sight near wartorn Dupont Circle Sunday night, Mrs. John Davis Lodge, Mrs. Edgar Mowrer, in full evening regalia, carrying papier mache window boxes filled with white iris, roses, stock, tobacco flowers, jonquils, narcissi. The blossoms were part of the table decorations at the Norman Littells' outsize dinner for Charles La Follette.

Flowers That Bloom

SARTORIALLY SPEAKING, Mrs. Bill Boyle's, wife of the executive vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, habit of pinning a small bunch of violets to her lapel.—Mrs. Robert Guggenheim's springiest of spring hats, off-face golden straw, massed with flowers, bowed in emerald green ribbon.—Mrs. William Mann's versatile, two-inch wide diamond bracelet which she wears evenings as a choker, fastened round neck with gown-matching velvet or satin.—Mrs. Peter Dewey's impeccable wrist-length gloves, worn days, nights, afternoons.—The filmy black lace over red satin, gown plus capelet, worn by Mrs. William McC. Martin, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Manners Department: Politest public servant hereabouts—Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk, whose soft voice, modest way, charms even the toughest legislator—Senator Pat McCarran's way of discovering whom he's talking to, who's talking to him, at a big dinner. He passes pen, placecard, asking autographs of those within conversation range.

Elaborate Preparations Made To Celebrate Iran's New Year

The dinner to be given by the Ambassador of Iran and Mme. Ala next Monday night celebrates the festival of Norouz, the Persian New Year.

Norouz is also the first day of spring and the sun's vernal equinox. The Iranians have celebrated the arrival of spring for many centuries as evidenced by the rows of sculptured reliefs at Persepolis showing groups of people from every part of the mighty Alchaemenid empire bringing their tributes to the ruler of Iran on this occasion.

Preparations for the fete day begin 15 days before the event, when each household plants in a shallow bowl seeds of wheat or lentils. On March 21 they have sent up a thicket of fresh green shoots as a token of spring.

In the villages of Iran the "man who burns fire" parades through the streets several days before the festival, accompanied by a masked troupe of performers wearing high hats and cloaks of many colors to which are fastened tinkling bells.

The last Wednesday of the old year is a special festival called Chahr Shambah Suri. On the eve of this day each family used to prepare bundles of dry wood or desert thorn and make a bonfire. Everyone then jumped over the flames repeating a verse to the flames. The fire must not be breathed upon and the dead ashes are scattered at a crossroads.

The New Year begins a period of five days of official holidays devoted to making social calls. During the first two or three days the eldest members of the family remain at home to receive visitors. Return calls are paid in the remaining days. Large sums are spent on the entertainment of friends and relatives and there is a general atmosphere of contentment and rejoicing.

The thirteenth day of the New Year is considered unlucky and it's then that the bowls of green shoots are thrown out into the streets. Everyone troops into the open country taking along an elaborate supply of food and spends the entire day in the fields. The people believe that in this way they not only welcome spring but also carry the bad luck associated with the thirteenth day away from their homes to abandon it in the country where it can do no harm.

Where to Buy Nylon Cord

Please tell the lady who wrote you about stringing beads recently that the notions counters now sell nylon cords in different weights which require no needle. R. O.

To M. C. K.: If you will send us your name and address, we will mail you the recipe requested.

I refer to a query in your column of March 5 regarding a cleaning agent for Chilean copper. My husband and I have a rather extensive collection of copper and brass, mostly Indian, but some British and South American pieces. I believe I have exhausted the list of local cleaning products and, much, to my sorrow, I have also had a few pieces lacquered. Lacquer is definitely not successful on either Asian or Latin American copper.

The best, and certainly the easiest, cleaning method I have discovered is the following: Sprinkle the article liberally with fine, mild, cleansing powder, then go over it with the cut side of a lemon, squeezing the juice out a bit as you rub. Wash with plain water and dry. No hard rubbing is necessary and the results are truly miraculous on either copper or brass. I go over our pieces about twice a month to keep a high gloss.

The only caution is that a fine scouring powder be used so that there will be no scratches.

In trailing my husband to and from foreign posts, I have discovered only one really fine commercial cleanser, a British product called "Brasso." I have searched for it unsuccessfully in Washington. I would be grateful if anyone could tell me where to find it here. C. E. C.

Re: Home corned beef, here is my recipe:

A handful of coarse-fine salt for each pound of meat.

A level tablespoon of dark brown sugar for every 2 pounds of meat.

A piece of saltpeter the size of a large pea for every 4 pounds of meat.

Add a quart of water (more if needed), boil, and then simmer to dissolve salt. Cool. Have stone crock large enough to hold meat and brine (covering meat 1 inch). Place meat in crock, pour cold brine over it and water if needed to cover meat. Weight down meat with old plate and scrubbed stone. Use no metals. (I'm using a glass quart fruit jar, filled with water.) Set stand in cool place. Three days is the minimum for light corning, five or seven for heavier. Meat will not get saltier after the long time and unless kept in refrigerator or very cold place, should be used. Cover crock with stone or large plastic cover. J. H. D.

BIDS AND PROPOSALS 6

Drawings and specifications for the construction of a Consolidated High School at Montevideo, Virginia, near Harrisonburg, Virginia, will be available for distribution to General Contractors on or about March 21, 1949, by Clarence Wenger, Architect, 85 West Market Street (second floor), Harrisonburg, Virginia. Applications from Contractors interested in bidding this work should be filed promptly with the Architect, and the bidding material will be forwarded as soon as possible. The Architect will furnish to each prospective bidder one complete set of drawings and specifications for a deposit of $75.00. The full amount of this deposit will be refunded only to prime contractors who submit a bonafide bid and who return the documents in good condition. If no bid is submitted, the refund will be $35.00. Additional sets will be furnished to prime contractors, subcontractors, and suppliers for a deposit of $75.00 per set, of which $35.00 will be refunded upon the return of the documents in good condition. All Plans and specifications must be returned to the Architect. No split sets will be issued. Attention of prospective bidders is called to the Code of Virginia requiring the registration of Contractors. Bid Bond or other acceptable surety in the amount of two (2%) per cent of the bid is required with all bids. Performance Bond and Payment Bond each in the amount of fifty (50%) per cent of contract will be required as a condition of signing a contract. Bids will be opened and publicly announced at 2:00 P. M., Thursday, April 28, 1949, in the Assembly Hall, third floor of the Rockingham County Court House. GEORGE S. ALDHIZER 2D, Chairman, Rockingham County School Board.

That Day Is Here

Once more that dreaded day is here . . . When no one may relax . . . Unless he has attended to . . . His U. S. income tax . . . Of course so many people now . . . Are paying as they go . . . But always there are certain ones . . . Who are a little slow . . . They just decline to pay . . . Until the closing moment of . . . The last accounting day . . . When it is so much easier . . . To keep the records clear . . . By sending cash to Uncle Sam . . . Throughout the current year . . . And if the debt, is overpaid . . . There is no cause to wail . . . For there will be the pleasure of . . . A rebate in the mail.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It Was More Than Mere Coincidence, Bobby

Hank Hawkins of 4701 S. 7th st., Arlington, Va., wonders if we've heard about the time little Bobby got curious about where his parents were born.

Pop said he was born in Dublin. Mother listed Philadelphia as her birthplace.

"And me?" asked Bobby. They told him he was born right here in Washington. That caused Bobby to furrow his brow for a while, and finally exclaim:

"Gosh, how did we all ever manage to get together?"

NOBODY HOME

One of our better known Washington matrons tells me that she had an enlightening encounter with an electrician the other day.

It seems that enough odd jobs had accumulated around the house to make it advisable to call for expert help. So she called up the electrician and outlined the nature of the various gadgets that needed fixing. He promised he'd be over on Monday.

Monday came and went without any sign of the repairman, and so did Tuesday. On Wednesday the housewife called up to find out why.

"We sent a man out Monday," she was told, "but you weren't home."

"You're mistaken," said the lady firmly. "I was home all day, waiting for your man. I should have gone downtown that day, but I made a special point of staying home, because I thought he'd be here."

"Now that's strange," mused the voice at the other end. "When he came back here Monday afternoon he said he rang and rang your doorbell, and nobody answered . . . oh, oh—I get it now. That was one of the things you wanted fixed, wasn't it?"

BUT YOU CAN'T HEAR SPIKE JONES ON A NEWSPAPER

Henry E. Geer of Mansion Inn, Luray, Va., is intrigued by a little item about newspapers which appeared in The Washington Post recently.

It pointed out that newspapers are very handy for lining the kitchen wastebasket, and for pantry shelves. They also protect your chairs when you have to use them as makeshift ladders for odd jobs around the house.

Besides, the article pointed out, you can crumple up a newspaper and use it to clean the burners on a gas range, and you can also use it for packing stuff away in the attic.

District Liner Geer thinks that this clearly demonstrates the superiority of newspapers over radio.

If you don't believe it, just try crumpling up a radio and cleaning your gas range with it.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three kittens, about 8 weeks old." (Georgia 9360 after 1 p. m.)

"We're leaving for Iran on the 21st, and taking cats to Persia would be like carrying coals to Newcastle. Can you find a home for our two cats? They're male and female, about 1 year old." (Woodley 7491.)

"Black female kitten, 5 months old." (Trinidad 2453.)

"Small female terrier; very affectionate but good watchdog." (Sligo 5229 after 6 p. m.)

VAGRANT THOUGHT

If the publicity stories about the Cherry Blossom Festival have already begun, can Spring be far behind?

MISCELLANY

The "Ell Jay" who used to contribute jingles to this space promises that she'll send some more, now that she's settled in Richmond, Va. She's Mrs. Laura Jackson, whose new address down there is 3208 Chamberlayne ave. . . . Margaret D. Klein, a Capital Transit "Information Hostess" at Union Station, is ready for any kind of unusual information request. The other day a fellow showed up at her booth with a terrific toothache, and assured her he'd go nuts if she didn't find him a dentist real quick. Margaret located a dentist, and sent her suffering client on his way whereupon he demonstrated his gratitude to Capital Transit by hopping into a cab. . . . Fraser S. Gardner of 5410 3d st. nw. sends me a grocer's invoice which lists 16 pounds of meat for $2.62. Lamb and mutton are 16 cents per pound, steak 18 cents. P. S.: The date of the invoice is September 9, 1903.

PERSONAL NOTES

Traffic Director George Keneipp: One of my constituents reports that you have installed "right-handed parking meters" on the "left side" of the 2300 block of 18th st. nw. Don Cameron says there's no parking on that side of the street between 7 and 9:30 a. m., but you'd never know it from the signs on the meters. Whatsa matter—were right-handed meters all you had left?

Bromley Oxnam and Ambassador Eliahu Elath will be the principal speakers at the seventy-fifth birthday dinner to Dr. Stephen S. Wise at the Biltmore March 20. . . . Kay Kyser, displaying his odd profile and Carolina drawl, said: "I do not mind being described as a Confederate Basil Rathbone."

Betty Comden, coauthor of "On The Town," in discussing her imminent motherhood, told her husband, Steve Kyle: "I hope it's twins, a boy and a girl—the boy 3 years older than the girl."

Luther Adler was in Cardi's one day, where his legit-theater friends asked him: "How can you, steeped in the traditions of the theater, get yourself to do those radio programs?" Adler shrugged: "It's easy. I just tell myself, 'This is not I; I'm in Europe right now. Another person is reading these lines.'"

George Oppenheimer and Kay Swift have collaborated on a television series, a musical version of Frank Sullivan's "Aunt Sarah Gallup" stories.

Maria Casares, the French actress, won her role in a sexy film by heeding Orson Welles' advice: "When you go for your test, carry a copy of 'Alice in Wonderland' under your arm. Then theyr'e sure to sign you to play a sultry siren."

The day after John Murray Anderson finishes his job staging the Rngling Circus, he'll start on the minstrel show for the Diamond Horseshoe . . . Clendenin Ryan tells of his grandfather, Thomas Fortune Ryan, being examined by a legislative committee and telling them: "My lawyer, John Quinn, tells me what I may not do." He then was asked: "And who tells you what you may do?" and answered: "For that I use Elihu Root."

39 Ex-Legislators Draw U.S. Pay

By Drew Pearson

The list is supposed to be secret, but 39 former Senators and Congressmen are drawing retirement pay from the Government. Several are independently wealthy; two have prison sentences hanging over their heads. Many others fully deserve pensions for their long service to their country. However, the greed of those who don't deserve pensions is likely to hurt those who do.

Andrew J. May

Only eligibility requirements are that the applicant must be at least 62 years old and have six years' service in Congress. The amount he can draw is figured at 2 per cent of his average salary, multiplied by the number of years he served. The average payment is $3238 annually, but runs as high as $6500.

Although the law went into effect only two years ago, these retirement benefits are retroactive.

Two of the first to apply for the handout were former Congressmen Andrew May of Kentucky and James Curley of Massachusetts, whose itchy palms had already got both of them prison sentences. May was convicted of embezzlement and is waiting to serve a term behind bars. Curley served five months of a prison sentence for mail fraud, before it was commuted by President Truman. Now Mayor of Boston, he is drawing retirement pay along with his mayor's salary.

Another who no sooner got voted out of Congress than he signed up for retirement pay is Minnesota's former Congressman Harold Knutson. A power in the 80th Congress, he fought brusquely against social benefits for others, and helped bar about 700,000 traveling salesmen from social security.

This is also true of Colorado's Robert Rockwell and Michigan's Bartel Jonkman—both nickel-nursing veterans of the 80th Congress. Rockwell was the darling of the power lobby, and Jonkman squeezed all he could get out of the Government after the election by flying to South America as a lame-duck Congressman—at the taxpayers' expense.

Also on the retirement list are former Senators Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, Burton Wheeler of Montana, James Tunnell of Delaware, Jim Mead of New York, George Radcliffe of Maryland, Peter Gerry of Rhode Island, a millionaire Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota and Raymond Willis of Indiana. The first five voted for social security for others so are not inconsistent today.

Some of the former Congressmen who also receive monthly checks from the Government, are: William Pittenger of Minnesota, Clarence Lea of California, Dan McGehee of Mississippi, J. Roland Kinzer of Pennsylvania, Butler Hare of South Carolina, James Wolfenden of Pennsylvania, Fritz Lanham of Texas, Hatton Sumners of Texas, Herman Kopplemann of Connecticut, Malcolm Tarver of Georgia, William Tom of Ohio, John Folger of North Carolina and Edward McCowen of Ohio.

Also there are former Congressmen Louis Ludlow of Indiana, George Gillie of Indiana and C. Jasper Bell of Missouri.

While America is shooting through the air in jet planes and sitting on a nest egg of atomic bombs, many farmers a few miles off the beaten track can't get so much as a goose-necked, country telephone.

The amazing fact is that, by the last count, the U.S.A. had fewer rural phones in 1945 than in 1920.

To remedy this, President Truman had made up his mind to appeal for more phones for the farms in his State of the Union Message—that is, until some of the boys in the White House talked him out of it. Now, without any push from the White House, a few Senators and Congressmen are trying to work out a bill to increase telephone service to farms.

The blunt truth is that those in most urgent need of phones can't get them. Most farmers still have to hitch up a horse or wheel out the truck to get a message to their neighbors. In case of illness or disaster, they are cut off without any rapid means of communication.

Back in 1920, 38.7 per cent of American farms were linked with telephones. Then the depression hit, farmers couldn't pay their bills, and by 1940 the percentage of rural telephones dropped to 25 per cent. This started picking up during the war until it reached 31.8 per cent in 1945, the last official count.

Telephone companies now boast that a record 45 per cent of American farms have telephone service. This does not agree with the Agriculture Department's estimate, which is 42.2 per cent for 1949, or just a shade over what it was 30 years ago.

Note—State by State, the percentage of farms having telephone service ranges from 3.7 per cent in Mississippi to 79.3 per cent in Iowa.

The Justice Department is investigating a significant price-fixing scandal in Salt Lake City involving the Uptown Appliance and Radio Co. Briant Badger, president of the firm, has filed a $500,000 lawsuit, charging that he was forced out of business for refusing to take part in an illegal price-fixing scheme.

Badger claims that Leland B. Flint of the Flint Distributing Co. threatened to cut off supplies to his store unless Badger subscribed to price-fixing and agreed to hold back the sale of certain articles—in order to give the illusion of scarcity. When Badger refused, all national-brand radio and electrical appliances were cut off and those he had on display were actually taken back.

Because certain newspapers shut their eyes to the story, even after Badger filed suit, he dramatized his plight, by placing a coffin in his show window and playing a funeral dirge over a loudspeaker. Meanwhile, the FBI is investigating Badger's charges for a report to the Anti-Trust Division of the Justice Department.
